Senate Storm Breaks Over Hopkins Role In Primary

Wheeler Accuses WPA Chief of 'Playing With Human Misery.'

Ickes and Wallace Also Are Assailed

By Robert C. Albright.

Works Progress Administrator Harry Hopkins and other Administration officials yesterday were charged in the Senate with "reprehensible" conduct in "butting into the political primaries of the Democratic Party."

The new charges of "politics in relief" lent impetus to a coalition drive in the Senate to remove spending-lending bill funds from discretionary use by specific earmarking amendments. Action on the relief measure slowed to a standstill, and log-jammed behind it was the wage-hour bill passed Tuesday by the House.

A field day of criticism directed at Hopkins, and later spreading to other New Deal officials, was touched off by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana. Wheeler accused Hopkins of "playing politics with human misery" in taking sides in the Iowa Democratic primaries.

Support Given Wearing.

Wheeler referred to Hopkins' statement on Tuesday that if he were a voter in Iowa, he would support Representative Otha D. Wearin, who is seeking to unseat Senator Guy M. Gillette.

"Such activities cannot go on under cover," said Wheeler, serving notice that "every time I hear about it I shall call it to the attention of the public."

"It cannot be said that the Administration does not know anything about it on the one hand and then permit somebody else to issue the same sort of statement. The Administration must take full responsibility for statements by (Secretary of Interior) Ickes, by Hopkins, by (Secretary of Agriculture) Wallace and by (Postmaster General) Farley with reference to these matters."

Lengthy Battle Rages.

Deep into the afternoon raged the dispute over the Hopkins statement. Majority Leader Barkley defended the relief administrator's statement as a "natural" response to a newspaperman's question.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, challenged this, and said he was informed that Wearin's office told reporters "if they would go down to the WPA" they would get an interview from Mr. Hopkins on the subject of the Iowa primary race.

Expressing personal friendship and esteem for Hopkins, Clark said he had "made a terrible mistake," and declared it meant local political leaders would say to relief workers:

"If you don't vote for Wearin, you are going to lose your job. If you vote for Gillette, your family is going to be hungry next week."

Clark said that if Hopkins deliberately was indicating his wishes to relief workers over whom he holds "the power of life and death," it was "not only an impropriety, but it amounts to one of the greatest

House Passes Fair Trade Act For District

12 Bills Cleared Up in Day; Slum Clearance Plan Is Expanded.

By James D. Secrest.

Twelve District bills, including amendments to the Alley Dwelling Authority act and a proposed fair trade practice law, passed the House yesterday in rapid-fire fashion in a special District day session.

Unexpectedly, Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, called up two bills to give firemen a 5-day 60-hour week and police and firemen the privilege of retiring at 55 after 25 years of service. On the calendar for almost a year, the bills were expected to die with adjournment.

Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, made a futile attempt to stop their passage by raising a point of no quorum, but he was unable to leave a committee meeting to debate the issues.

Later he obtained leave to extend his remarks in the Record, asserting that the 5-day week would cost the District $500,000 a year and necessitate the employment of 207 additional firemen.

"If the firemen are to have a 5-day week," he said, "the police should be given the same privilege. That would cost another $1,000,000."

The bills, sponsored by Representative Jenckes (Democrat), of Indiana, are expected to be stopped in the Senate, at least for the present session.

Exhausted from its two-day intensive debate on the wages and

Hopkins Defends Ohio Tree Census As Useful Project

WPA Administrator Hopkins last night termed "ridiculous assumptions" criticisms of a WPA allotment of $179,000 for use in a tree census project in Cleveland. Representative Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, had criticized the undertaking as one to "count the trees."

Hopkins declared it was "a wholly meritorious project," and cited an indorsement of it by the "Republican city administration."

The project, Hopkins added, will bring "relief to jobless persons in distress," as well as "permanent value to the entire city."

Morgan Gives Details of His TVA Charges

'Hidden Subsidies' Backed 'False Yardstick,' He Tells Congressmen.

By Sidney Olson.

The ousted chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority sat hunched over a Senate committee table for five hours yesterday to pile up a 200-page indictment of his former fellow directors.

Dr. A. E. Morgan, the scholar-engineer of Yellow Springs, Ohio, told ten Congressmen in explicit detail what he had refused to tell the President—the basis for his repeated charges that TVA Directors David E. Lillienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan are guilty of dishonesty, lack of integrity, bad faith and conspiracy.

Amplifies His Charges.

The schoolmasterish manner and droning voice of the gaunt, hawk-faced Ohioan, detailing complex and intricate tales of "subtle misrepresentation" and "skillful falsification," combined to disappoint the hundreds of thrill-seekers who packed the morning session. The afternoon hearing "played" to a comparatively empty house in the echoing, marble caucus room in the Senate Office Building.

Morgan, returning to the Washington limelight for the first time since the President deposed him in March for "contumacy" in refusing to substantiate "grave and libelous charges," endeavored vigorously to support and amplify his charges yesterday.

Candor Held Lacking.

Nervously emphasizing his remarks with jabs of a long yellow pencil, the President's first choice for the job of heading the country's biggest concentrated social experiment specifically charged:

Inaccurate and misrepresentative reports to the President, Congress and the public by the board majority.

Costly mismanagement and wasteful methods in the power program of the Authority.

Lack of candor in statements to Congress and the public on the power program.

Improper and misleading accounting, reporting and publicity on the "yardstick" power program.

"False yardstick" comparisons, with use of "hidden subsidies" from other Government agencies

Senate Leaders Fail to Agree On Wages-Hours Compromise

By the Associated Press.

An effort of Senate leaders to agree on compromise wage-hour legislation which they all could support failed yesterday.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Administration's floor leader, and Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, opponent of the House-approved bill, held a lengthy conference but reached no agreement.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, told reporters that Republicans will vote as they choose individually on the wage-hour bill.

McNary said he personally would vote against sending the legislation directly to a conference between the Senate and House—a move planned by Administration leaders and opposed by Harrison.

Earlier Barkley said he would seek to have a Senate-House committee appointed at once to work out a compromise between the House bill and the version passed by the Senate last July.

There were indications, however, that Senate foes of the inflexible labor standards in the House measure would try to route it back to the Senate Labor Committee. Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the group, has contended the legislation should establish variations in wages between the North and the South or between industries where conditions warrant.

Wheat Price Tumbled by Heavy Crop

July Grain Quoted at 5-Year U. S. Low; Cotton Also Drops Sharply.

Tumbling wheat prices, as the Nation started harvesting an indicated near-record winter wheat crop of 754,153,000 bushels, yesterday confronted the Administration with an intensified crop surplus problem.

July wheat, the new crop, dropped to the lowest level in five years at Chicago, closing at 72½-⅝ cents a bushel, 46 cents lower than a year ago. Except for the 1930-34 period, wheat prices were the lowest in 30 years.

Cotton also continued to decline, as a result of heavy foreign selling. October cotton went down from 8.35 to 8.25, and final prices at New York were 16 to 19 points net lower.

Great Surplus Indicated.

Government officials expressed little surprise at the continued decline in wheat, despite indications of considerable rust in the first Texas grain harvested, due to excessive rain.

J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the commodity exchange administration in the Agriculture Department, said that the first carload received at market had tested only 51 pounds to the bushel and the grain was considerably shriveled.

Nevertheless, it was pointed out that generally throughout the wheat belt, weather conditions had not been adverse since the May 10 forecast which indicated a combined winter and spring crop of approximately 950,000,000 bushels. This, with an anticipated 200,000,000 bushel carry-over from the 1937 crop, would give a total supply of some 1,150,000,000 bushels, as compared with an average annual consumption, domestic and export, of 750,000,000.

World Crop Also Bigger.

Added to this report was one released Monday indicating larger world wheat crops. Plantings in 22 countries which accounted for 89 per cent on last year's harvested acreage in the Northern Hemisphere, excepting Soviet Russia and China, the Agriculture Department said, are about 4 per cent larger than last year.

A decrease of about 1,500,000 acres was expected in Australia, which, if not offset by increased seedings in Argentina, would indicate a world wheat crop, except for Russia and China, about 3 per cent above that of 1937.

AAA officials, meanwhile, were pressing efforts to prevent disastrous price crashes by means of wheat loans, authorized in the 1938 farm act, and by bringing about assurance of drastic acreage cuts in the next plantings.

Trade Developments.

By William V. Nessly.

Secretary of State Hull warned last night that "too many nations" today are heading for the "fearful" consequences of excessive efforts toward economic self-sufficiency.

In a radio address in connection with the celebration of foreign trade week, the Secretary related impressive improvement in this country's foreign trade, which he attributed to the reciprocal trade-agreement program. He declared that an "urgent and outstanding task" for mankind is "a reassertion of order under law in the relations among nations and a reinvigoration of healthy international trade," then added:

"The alternative is fearful to contemplate. But it must be faced by all thinking people today everywhere . . . In the long run, excessive efforts toward autarchy will undermine and break down the domestic economic structure of the country persisting upon such a course. The resulting economic collapse will drag down with it the political structure of government and to a disastrous extent the social structure of the Nation. Too many nations in the world are today steering straight in the direction of such an economic, political and social Niagara."

Message from Roosevelt.

The secretary read a message from President Roosevelt, which said:

"This annual observance throughout the country of Foreign Trade Week is an altogether fitting recognition of the vital role of foreign commerce in the economic life of the Nation. Our own experience, no less than that of other nations, is living testimony to the fact that a healthy and vigorous flow of trade between nations is an indispensable requirement for general and lasting prosperity.

"We have profited by that experience. For four years our Government has been engaged in a major effort to reopen the channels of trade. The trade agreements that we have concluded with 17 foreign countries during this period attest to the progress that has been made. With patient persistence we are thus gradually building more secure

O'Connell Denied Jersey City Permit

Jersey City, N. J., May 25 (AP).—Public Safety Director Daniel Casey tonight denied once again an application for a permit for Representative Jerry O'Connell (Democrat), of Montana, to speak in Jersey City, asserting he was convinced such an open-air meeting would lead to serious disturbances "inevitably resulting in riot."

19 Hurt in Mass. As Cigarette Hits Gasoline on River

Fall River, Mass May 25 (U.P.).—A cigarette tossed on the gasoline-glazed surface of Taunton River was blamed tonight for an explosion and fire in which 19 persons were injured and the tanker Elwod partly wrecked.

Thirty crew members escaped by flinging themselves into the water as oil-fed flames streamed over the metal deck.

Seaman Stephen Berner, of New Haven, Conn., was in critical condition. Stripped of his clothing by the explosion, he had only his cap on when picked up.

Mrs. Marjorie Clair, 26, of Roanoke, Va., wife of the first engineer, was trapped in her cabin, but pulled to safety through a porthole by seamen who heard her screams.

Dewey Arrests Hines, Boss of Tammany

'King-Maker' Accused in $100,000,000 Policy Racket Inquiry.

By the United Press.

New York, May 25.—James J. (Jimmy) Hines, moon-faced Tammany Hall leader, whose political power for years has been almost legendary, today was arrested on "lottery racket" charges by agents acting for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

The district attorney said the arrest of Hines, regarded as the most powerful single figure in New York and the virtual "boss-maker" of Tammany, was a result of his investigation of the "Dixie Davis" Case.

J. Richard (Dixie) Davis was attorney for the late Arthur Flegenheimer, known as "Dutch Schultz," king of the policy racketeers, and was reputed to have succeeded the racketeer as head of the multi-million-dollar lottery organization.

Davis was arrested recently in Philadelphia at Dewey's request.

The charges against Hines concerned allegedly "specific instances" of "influencing and intimidating judicial officers and others charged with the duty of enforcing and administering the laws of New York."

The county grand jury will be asked to indict Hines jointly with Davis and several others linked in the policy-racket inquiry. Meanwhile Dewey, who personally sum-

Americans Fly Cedillo Planes, Mexicans Say

Potosi Towns Bombed by Craft With U. S. Pilots, Federals Charge.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, May 25.—An undetermined number of San Luis Potosi towns were bombed today by Gen. Saturnino Cedillo's planes which the Mexican minister of war charged were piloted by United States pilots.

Government censorship interrupted telephone communications with the San Luis Potosi state capitol before details were learned.

Uncensored dispatches from San Luis Potosi, center of the agrarian leader's rebellion, reported a force of 2,000 rebels were near Rio Verde, in the northern part of the state, which federal troops captured last week in the uprising's only important engagement.

Reports from Tampico, oil port on the Gulf of Mexico, said a plane presumed to be one of Cedillo's flew over, dropping quantities of rebel propaganda.

The leaflets, ostensibly from the San Luis Potosi state government, denied the authority of President Cardenas and urged the army to follow the rebel movement within 15 days.

Officials announced three alleged Cedillista aviators arrested at Nuevo Laredo, Tamaulipas, on Monday would be court-martialed on charges of rebellion.

The government charged they were en route to the United States to fly planes back to Cedillo.

Minneapolis Head Of A.F.L. Union Is Murdered in Auto

Minneapolis, May 25 (AP).—William S. Brown, president of General Drivers Union No. 544, was shot and killed as he sat in his parked car in front of 1213 Washington avenue north shortly before midnight tonight.

Brown was found slumped over the wheel, several bullets apparently having entered his body.

Brown was head of the same union with which Patrick J. Corcoran, who was slain November 17, 1937, was affiliated. Corcoran was a member of the executive board of the union, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Forty Planes Raid Down Coast, Sink British Ship, Wounding 2.

By the United Press.

Valencia, Spain, May 25.—Loyalist dispatches said tonight that 300 persons were killed and 1,000 wounded when 40 insurgent planes raided Alicante, 100 miles south of Valencia.

The civil governor of Alicante said it was "the war's worst air raid" on the city.

[Meanwhile, government forces closed in on Tremp, last source of hydroelectric power for Barcelona's war industries and a key to the insurgent line in Catalonia, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's note.]

Hundreds of houses were demolished at Alicante.

The insurgent air fleet attacked Alicante at 10:30 a. m. after a series of other raids up the coast in which the British freighter Thorpehall was bombed and sunk a mile off Valencia Harbor.

The first mate and another member of the crew were wounded by shrapnel and three other sailors suffered minor injuries, but the entire crew was rescued and brought to Valencia.

Envoy Back, Sees Victory.

Czechoslovakia may become the key to the Spanish civil war, Dr. Fernando de los Rios, Spain's Ambassador to the United States, said yesterday.

Fresh from Barcelona, where he observed the destruction inflicted by insurgent bombs, the bearded diplomat, once president of the University of Madrid, envisioned Spain as a flaming frontier between the democracies and dictatorships of the world.

The loyalists will win, he predicted.

"We will hold out until the rebels break up from friction in their own ranks," asserted de los Rios, adding that the government, far from through, does not need to depend upon a smashing offensive to win.

"We must check the rebels so long that they will crumble from a lack of victories," de los Rios said. "Decomposition has set in."

He implied that the Czech republic is fighting diplomatically for those things for which the Spanish republic is at war.

"The torch of liberty falls into the sea in Spain, and goes out," he said. "In Czechoslovakia, it falls on hostile borders, and an explosion is likely."

14 Oil Firms Facing Trust Trial Agree to Pay $400,000 in Fines

By the United Press.

The Justice Department announced yesterday that 14 oil companies and 11 executives awaiting trial at Madison, Wis., on antitrust charges, plan to enter nolo contendere pleas and pay maximum fines and cost totaling $400,000.

The department said that the pleas, "amounting virtually to pleas of guilty," have been accepted by the department and recommended to Federal Judge Patrick D. Stone.

The defendants comprise the second group to be brought before the Madison court, where 46 were convicted on similar charges last winter. These cases have been appealed.

The present indictments charge the oil companies and their executives on three counts with violation of the Sherman antitrust act in fixing maximum margins of gross profits for gasoline jobbers and adopting agreed-upon uniform jobbers' contracts and other terms and conditions pertaining to the jobber business.

The department said eight indicted companies and eight of their officials who have not agreed to Czechs Curb Planes.

By the United Press.

Prague, May 25.—An official German protest against "hostile" frontier incidents tonight resulted in an order prohibiting Czechoslovak military planes from flying closer than 3 miles to any foreign border.

Germany's protest was said by German quarters to have warned that Czech troops must be withdrawn from Sudeten German areas if war threats are to be dissolved, but the military order made no mention of land forces.

Government officials said that the order was evidence of Czechoslovakia's effort to prevent any "inadvertent incidents" which might provoke greater troubles.

The German protest laid stress on alleged "violations" of the Czech-German frontier by Czechoslovak military and police planes.

The order affects not only the 1,315 miles of German border, but the Hungarian, Rumanian and Polish frontiers as well.

The protest was delivered to the foreign office by the German minister, Dr. Ernst Eisenlohr. It was believed the government immediately informed the British and French ministers of the German protest, anxious to keep the Paris and London governments aware of developments to facilitate conciliation.

Eisenlohr was understood to have gone to Munich Sunday to confer with Fuehrer Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, who ordered the protest.

On Monday Eisenlohr protested the shooting of two Sudeten German peasants by Czech border guards at Eger, an incident which aroused indignation throughout Germany and in the Sudeten areas because of Hitler's "protective" interest in 3,500,000

Commons Rejects Inquiry on Plane Supply 'Fumbling'

London, May 25 (U.P.).—The House of Commons tonight gave the government's air rearmament program a 329 to 144 vote of confidence after Prime Minister Chamberlain asserted that war tomorrow would find the British air force "one of the most formidable fighting machines in the world."

The vote defeated an opposition motion for a sweeping inquiry of the "fumbling fingers and faltering feet" of aerial rearmament, which allegedly is falling far behind Germany's pace.

The new air minister, Sir Kingsley Wood, revealed that as a result of a British war ministry mission's visit to the United States to investigate the possibility of purchasing American-made fighting planes, two American firms will send representatives to Britain immediately to resume negotiations.

By Edward T. Folliard.

The United States Government, for political as well as trade reasons, is hurrying plans for a new and fast steamship service to South America.

Foreign countries, particularly Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany, have been sending their best liners to Latin American countries as part of their "peaceful penetration" programs, and the result has been damaging to American prestige and trade. President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have been trying to do something about the situation ever since they attended the Montevideo peace conference in December, 1936.

Yesterday the United States Maritime Commission announced that on or about September 1 three swift luxury liners would be put into service between New York and Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine. Three others, plans for which are being drawn by the commission's draftsmen, will be added.

To Be Bought by U. S.

The three vessels that will inaugurate the service are the California, Virginia and Pennsylvania. They recently were removed from the San Francisco-New York service because of heavy operating losses, and the Panama Pacific Line is about to close a deal with the Maritime Commission whereby they will become the property of the Government.

The only passenger service between the two Americas now is provided by the bankrupt Munson Line, which operate four combination passenger-cargo vessels, all of them verging on obsolescence. The Maritime Commission is attempting to obtain the ships through foreclosure proceedings to protect its claims on the company. Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission, said the ships would be continued in service until the newer vessels have been reconditioned and are ready to sail.

"South America," Land said, "is rapidly becoming our best customer. Last year our exports to South American countries were $318,384,000 as compared with $204,220,000 in 1936. Our imports during the same period were $291,505,000 in 1936, and $421,760,000 in 1937.

"American steamship service to South America has long been inferior. It has reflected on American prestige and has seriously retarded the development of a rich trade for which enterprising European countries have been aggressively bidding with modern steamship services. The expansion of our commerce and the development of international relations between the United States and the countries of South America require an immediate improvement in our steamship facilities."

60-Day Limit Is Set.

To avoid delay in reconditioning the California, Virginia and Pennsylvania, the commission has announced no bid will be considered which contemplates more than 60 days for the work.

The ships are 600 feet in length, with a speed of 18 knots and accommodations for 232 first-class and 181 tourist passengers. They are less than six years old and are among the first in the American merchant marine.

Nevertheless, they will be thoroughly reconditioned. Swimming pools will be installed, cabins will be made more comfortable, dining saloons will be air-conditioned, and a lido deck and other features added. Crew quarters will be improved and enlarged.

The commission will place the ships in the American Republics Line, the freighter service the Government now operates to South America with ten vessels. This will make available a balanced service of luxury liners for passengers and fast cargo, and cargo carriers for the general trade.

To Offer Line for Sale.

The commission will offer the line for sale or charter. However, if no satisfactory bids are accepted, the commission will continue to operate the service until conditions become more favorable.

The three ships being designed by the commission for the South American trade will be of 32,000 tons each and will have a speed of 25 knots.

Germany, which is making a special drive to improve her South American trade, has been sending an increasingly large number of ships to South America. The German officers are well trained in the art of entertainment. Numerous luncheons, dinners and parties are given aboard the ships in honor of influential South Americans in various ports. Besides this, Germany makes a habit of sending naval training ships to Latin American ports, and the young naval cadets are given plenty of shore leave in order to generate good will for the Reich.

Labor Act Revision Urged by Industry

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Revision of the Wagner labor act was urged by the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers today as a prime remedy for the recession.

As an equally important impetus to trade, the industrialists advocated immediate abandonment of efforts to enact new legislation known as the Walsh-Healey bill, imposing additional drastic penalties on substantially all American business."

Charles R. He said that if the Wagner act could not be revised at this session of Congress, the Government should indicate it would do so at the next session.

Representative Lewis (Democrat), Maryland, asked the Postoffice and Commerce departments yesterday to approve plans for air express, passenger and mail service from Baltimore to Morgantown, W. Va., by way of Cumberland.

Earle's Slate Given Support By President

Governor Bares Pledge; Farley Issues Plea for Lewis Backing.

By the Associated Press.

The Democratic Party's topmost leaders yesterday renewed their assurances of support for the victors in Pennsylvania's recent primary election and acknowledged simultaneously the need for help from the beaten C. I. O. forces.

Gov. George H. Earle, backed succesively for the Senatorial nomination by the State committee faction, reported after a White House conference that President Roosevelt "assured us personally of his whole-hearted support of the whole ticket."

Farley Sees Unity.

National Chairman James A. Farley said he recognized "the Democratic Party can't win (Pennsylvannia in November) unless they have the substantial support of all elements of the labor movement." Farley added, "I fully expect to see them united."

Still, no word came from John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain, and Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who supported the losing ticket. Lewis, Guffey, the defeated candidates and their allies met on Tuesday, but did not define their position for the fall campaign. Lewis saw the President last week.

With Earle at the White House were Charles A. Jones, nominated for Governor over C. I. O.-backed Thomas Kennedy and David L. Lawrence, Pennsylvania Democratic chairman. Earle and Lawrence said they did not have any demands from Lewis and Guffey, but offered harmony "without equivocation, reservation or reprisal."

Restricts Investigation.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 25 (AP).—The State Supreme Court today refused to permit a grand jury investigation of charges that fired the recent Pennsylvania primary campaign unless the inquiry were restricted—a condition immediately accepted by the man assigned to conduct it.

The court allowed 20 days in which an amended writ, with more specific charges, might be submitted.

Bribery and Coercion.

The charges—bribery and political coercion—highspotted the primary fight.

Former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti made many of the charges, demanded a grand jury inquiry and was thrown out of Earle's cabinet.

"In not a single one (of the eight charges) was there a crime charged as having been committed in Dauphin County," the court observed.

Senators Give Up Rail Compromise

By the Associated Press.

Senators interested in railroad legislation said yesterday they had abandoned hope for a compromise to permit approval at this session of more liberal R. F. C. loans to railroads.

Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, who introduced the bill, and Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, said the proposed 15 per cent railway cut had aroused so much opposition to the measure that it probably would be pigeonholed.

There were predictions that the brotherhoods eventually would accept wage cuts of 5 or 10 per cent to help tide over "shaky" railroads until revenues increase.

Move to Nullify Stockyard Case Held Despotic

Kansas City Commission Agents Fight Wallace's Supreme Court Plea.

Opposing the Supreme Court rehearing of the Kansas City stockyards case, counsel for Kansas City commission agents yesterday told the court that underlying the Government's arguments is the "political philosophy of a totalitarian state."

The Government is seeking reconsideration of the court's decision in favor of the commission agents in their fight on an order of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace reducing their charges.

Challenged By London.

Hughes' opinion, appealing for "fair play" by independent Government agencies, and criticizing Wallace for not giving the commission men a fair hearing, was sharply challenged by Wallace. The Government sought reconsideration of the case, contending the court has reversed itself in a subsequent decision on the a labor board case. A ruling is expected from the court next Tuesday.

Frederick H. Wood, attorney for the Kansas City stockyard commission agents, disputed the Government's contentions in his brief filed with the court yesterday.

"In its last analysis" said the brief, "the argument of the Government on the submission of this case was that it was no business of the courts whether or not administrative officers and tribunals accord what the Court has now aptly called the 'rudimentary requirements of fair play' to those over whose rights and liberties they are given power.

"The reason assigned was that to permit the courts to inquire into the conduct of such tribunals would be 'destructive of orderly administration.'

"The Government's real objection to the court's decision is not that the Court has reversed itself, but that it has refused to accept this argument.

"It is an argument based upon the political philosophy of a totalitarian state and not a free people. Administrative convenience and dispatch may not be put above the essential requirements of fair play and due process."

Wood's brief added that the Government's argument "is nothing more than an ingenious device to persuade the Court to give validity to an order which it has held void."

It said that "as long as the powers of prosecutor and judge are united in an administrative officer or tribunal, their exercise must be kept scrupulously separate, or the requirements of due process and fair play are not met."

WorldCongress Is Given Papal Plea for Peace

100,000 Watch Gorgeous Eucharist Pageant in Bucharest.

By the Associated Press.

Budapest, May 25.—A hundred thousand devout Catholics today heard a papal plea for peace at the opening of the thirty-fourth Eucharistic Congress.

The holy father's message, which called the eternal laws "the safest foundations for justice and peace," was read by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state, before a lofty altar in Heroes square.

The reading of the papal bull formally opened the congress after a gorgeous pageant enacted in the vast square. Thousands upon thousands of priests wound in solemn procession past the royal box where Regent Nicholas Horthy and Lady Horthy waited.

Hungarian ministers and other dignitaries were there in medieval costume and Hungarian officers in gala uniform. But the pomp and magnificence of the high clergy outshone even these.

2,000 Masses Celebrated.

Every bell in the city pealed in a cascade of sound as the procession flowed around the square. First came mendicant monks, then other priests, canons, abbots, bishops and finally the cardinals. At the end came Cardinal Pacelli, the papal legate.

Fanfares greeted his arrival at the altar, decorated with flowers and snow-white linen. Then the singing of Veni Creator signaled the opening of the congress.

During the morning the prelates celebrated 2,000 masses in 100 churches and chapels as a prelude to the first session.

It was estimated 1,000,000 persons, representing 37 foreign countries, would see some of the ceremonies. Thirty thousand Hungarian pilgrims arrived during the day from the provinces and thousands from abroad.

American Greeted.

Father Elmirus Eordogh, Hungarian-American priest from Toledo, Ohio, headed a group of 280 United States pilgrims.

"Today in all churches of the United States more than 20,000,000 Catholics are praying before the Holy Sacrament for the success of the congress," Father Eordogh said.

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, leading Catholic dignitary to attend from the United States, was greeted with the greatest reverence by the prelates during a morning meeting.

Joseph Scott, Los Angeles writer and attorney, speaking as "an ordinary citizen of the United States," brought "warm greetings from American Catholics."

$300 Stolen Here In 24-Hour Period

More than $300 was stolen from District homes and snatched in pocketbooks during the last 24 hours, police records showed yesterday.

Mrs. Virginia Caton, 2810 North Third street, Arlington, Va., reported losing $34 to a man who snatched her pocketbook in a downtown store. Jane Greveruns, 2523 Fourteenth street northwest, said she lost $4 when a young colored man snatched her pocketbook on Euclid street, between University place and Fourteenth street.

A $75 gold watch was stolen from his home at 1550 Fourteenth street northwest, Robert W. McGinnis reported. Jasper P. Hartley, manager of a service station at New Jersey avenue and K street northwest, reported $81 stolen from the counter while he was busy with a customer.

Green Resignation Accepted by Union

The international executive board of the United Mine Workers, headed by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. leader, adopted a resolution yesterday accepting the resignation from the Mine Workers Union of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The resolution censured the A. F. of L. leader, charging he had "betrayed" the Mine Workers Union, had fostered and promoted a rival union among mine workers, and had appealed to organized labor in Pennsylvania to oppose the candidacy of Thomas Kennedy in the latter's recent bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Green resigned last February from the Mine Workers Union, in which he had held membership for 40 years.

Pick-Up Squad Seizes 20 Women Downtown

Twenty women were arrested last night by members of Lieut. Joseph Shimon's pick-up squad as the special group of police raiders swept suddenly on the downtown area. All were held for investigation. Carroll Takes Stand to Relate How He Killed His Sweetheart

Says He Didn't Fulfill Pact Because He Believed She Still Lived.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 25.—Donald Carroll, jr., 16, sitting in the witness box with shoulders slumped and thin hands shaking, today told how he killed his 18-year-old sweetheart, how together they put the pistol to her breast and how he pulled the trigger and saw her arms thresh in a spasm of death.

He said, in the barely-changed voice of an adolescent, that he shot Charlotte Matthiesen in a contract to die with her—"because that was the only way we could always be together."

But, when the prosecution asked him why he failed to carry out his end of the bargain, he said it was because he thought the girl still lived and he "wanted to save her."

"She did die, didn't she?" asked Prosecutor Joseph Loscalzo.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you try to shoot yourself?"

"No, sir."

"Why didn't you? There was the agreement to die."

"I was thinking of saving her."

The defense by its questions attempted to show that the boy lost track of everything at the explosion of the pistol—fired in a bedroom of his home March 24.

"Did you ever hear a gun explode before and see blood spurt out?" counsel asked.

"No, sir. . . . After it happened I wished it hadn't happened."

Intermittently through four days, Carroll testified, Charlotte had discussed with him "the most beautiful way to die"—to die together as lovers in romantic operas had.

Nevertheless, Charlotte, he said, had not wanted him to die but to "keep on living."

"I asked her how long it would take to die—would it take a long time? She said no; you died right away."

As he described their walk to the bedroom where Charlotte died, the boy acknowledged that there was a sexual interlude before he got the pistol.

"She . . . took the pistol from under the pillow," he went on. "I was alongside her looking into her face. I handed her the pistol after putting six bullets in the magazine." She was unable to fire it, he added—"I remembered I hadn't put a bullet in the chamber."

DOUGLAS CARROLL, 13.

". . . I could see the bullets come up in the chamber. She was very nervous then. She asked me to use the gun. . . . she helped me find her heart. After that, we held the gun to it. She gasped and moaned; her arms and legs moved. I thought she was still alive."

"I decided the best thing to do was to call the police."

The first defense witness was Carroll's brother, Douglas, 13, who marched to the stand and gravely told of returning home from school the day of the shooting and hearing Donald crying.

"He was praying for the Lord to kill him," Douglas said.

When he entered the living room of their Jackson Heights home, the youngster said, he noticed his father's Army pistol on the sofa.

"I didn't think that was a very safe place for it," he said, "so I took it into the kitchen and put it on a shelf."

The youthful defendant smiled for the first time since his trial opened Monday when he saw his brother take the stand. Judge Thomas Downs had asked young Douglas if he knew "what happens when a boy swears before God to tell the truth and then doesn't tell the truth."

The question seemed to puzzle Douglas, but Judge Downs permitted him to testify.

U. S. Plans Drive On Syphilis; Free Drug Bill Signed

Plans for a national syphilis-eradication program were disclosed yesterday by the Public Health Service coincidentally with President Roosevelt's signing of the La Follette-Bulwinkle bill.

The measure, authorizing appropriation of $3,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, will permit the Public Health Service to conduct a 48-State educational campaign, bring about more complete reporting of cases and provide physicians with free drugs to treat needy sufferers.

Grants to the States will be spent on projects decided upon jointly by the State health officers and the Federal service. Typical projects include more and better laboratory facilities for blood-test diagnosis, follow-up work to bring lapsed patients back to treatment and post-graduate courses for physicians, nurses and social service workers.

Airline Blames Engines for 10 Deaths in Crash

Victims Killed by Burns in Cleveland Tragedy, Coroner States.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 25.—Two engines, which unaccountably failed 8 miles from port, were blamed tonight for the plunge of a luxurious United Air Lines plane into a suburban gully and the fiery death of ten persons.

James Brandon, veteran pilot, was making a left turn, apparently trying to lift the falling craft over a clump of trees into a small field, as the ship struck late last night, airline officials said.

Seven passengers, a copilot and the stewardess also died in the fire that followed. Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said all apparently died from fire rather than the smash.

Engines Blamed.

As Department of Commerce investigators sought causes for the plunge, airline officials completed a preliminary inquiry and blamed failing engines. The plane was bound from Newark to Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

Denis Mulligan, chief of the Air Commerce Bureau, ordered a committee of investigators yesterday to check on reports that the United Air Line plane, which crashed near Cleveland last night, was on fire before it hit the ground.

"If this is true," Mulligan said, "the accident probably was caused by power-plant failure."

Secretary Roper designated Bryan M. Jacobs, assistant director of the bureau, to head a special board of inquiry into the cause of the accident.

The other members are George W. Vest, chief of the Enforcement Division, and Philip C. Salzman, airline maintenance inspector.

Co-Pilot Feared Weather.

Los Angeles, May 25 (AP).—Testimony that Sidney Willey, co-pilot of the transport plane that carried nine to their death on May 16, was dissatisfied with weather conditions over the mountains was given today before a Federal board of inquiry.

"About 20 minutes before the take-off," said S. B. Smith, control tower operator at the Union Air Terminal, "I told Willey there were no breaks in the weather around Los Angeles and he said:

"'I would like to go out and look around for a hole to get through, but Whittemore is in a hurry to get away.'"

Fred Whittemore, Northwest Airlines official, piloted the plane on its delivery flight when it hit a mountain side and burned.

Sore and Saved.

The two most thankful men in Washington last night were Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, transatlantic flier, and his business associate, Maj. F. A. MacLean.

They arrived at Newark Airport Tuesday evening just in time to catch the 7:30 p. m. "sleeper" for Chicago, only to be informed by United Airlines officials that Capt. Boyd's ticket was not valid for that particular plane.

"We stormed around the airport," Capt. Boyd said. "We insisted that we be given accommodations on the plane—but the officials were adamant. My ticket would have been good on any other plane but that one. And I sure was sore about it."

Missing Boy of 2, Found in Stream, Saved by Parents

Two-year-old John Gordon Janschek, jr., was saved from drowning by his mother and father and an uncle, Wilbur Hamilton, who pulled him from the bottom of a shallow stream running through the Janschek property at Waldorf, Md., yesterday.

The child was missing from the house 10 minutes before the search started. He was found flat on his back with his head under water. He was kicking around but unable to get up.

The parents rushed him to Providence Hospital here, where he was treated for shock and exposure.

Theft of $500 Fittings Is Charged to Woman

A charge of grand larceny, involving the theft of $500 worth of furnishings from a leased apartment, was placed yesterday against Jean Louise Devin, 24, of New York City.

She was arrested by Detective Sergt. Norman Hodkinson, Seventh Precinct, on the complaint of Mrs. Rachael F. Wood, 1420 Thirty-fifth street northwest. Miss Devin was held under $5,000 bail pending further investigation.

Bloomfield, Ind., May 25 (AP).—Daniel M. Blackmore, 30, hurt in an automobile accident nine years ago when he was a Purdue University student, died today of his injuries.

U. S. Grand Jury To Work Nights in Auto 'Trust' Case

South Bend, Ind., May 25 (AP).—The Federal grand jury investigating alleged antitrust law violations by the "big three" of the automobile industry—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler—decided today to work nights as well as days to speed the inquiry.

District Attorney James R. Fleming said the investigation, in which the Government seeks indictments against the three manufacturers and their associated finance companies, probably would require several weeks of day and night sessions.

Attorney Assails Bill on Dentistry

Paul E. Jamieson, attorney, yesterday charged that a bill to regulate dentistry in Washington would make a criminal of anyone who scrubbed his false teeth.

Appearing before a sub-committee of the House District Committee, Jamieson said the legislation would put out of business certain dental laboratories. Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, said some measure of control of dentists was necessary because of the effect of their work on a man's health.

Judge Fines Five As 'Sharpshooters'

Five young men, who on Sunday allegedly sent rifle bullets whizzing past the heads of workmen repairing damage done to Pennsylvania Railroad property the previous day by other youthful sharpshooters, were fined $15 each in Police Court yesterday.

The five were shooting at targets on the railroad track behind the National Training School for Boys, according to testimony before Judge Hobart Newman. Those fined were Maurice A. Peterson, 18, of the 400 block of Tenth street northeast; Roland G. Thornton, 18, of the 900 block of Fifteenth street southeast; Edward C. Neff, 23, of the 300 block of Douglas street northeast; Lemuel T. House Passes 12 D. C. Bills to Clear Calendar hours bill, the House accepted the District measures without bothering to have them read. Only the fair trade practices bill aroused a handful of members to protest that it would raise the cost of living. On a roll-call vote, however, the House approved it, 210 to 81.

District

Alley Plan Unopposed.

Threatened opposition to the Alley Dwelling Authority amendments, which make possible an expansive low-cost housing and slum-clearance program, failed to materialize, as members who had previously voiced objections were not on the floor.

Following a two-hour session on District legislation, Chairman Palmisano exultantly called attention to the fact that he had cleared the calendar of all local bills. The District PWA loan act amendment, as yet unreported, remains the only important bill to be passed on this session.

A futile fight on the fair trade practice bill, which would prohibit the sale of any trade-marked article below cost, was led by Representatives Celler (Democrat), of New York; Arnold (Democrat), of Illinois, and Jenckes.

Dirksen Defends Bill.

Palmisano, author of the measure, left the defense to Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri.

Cochran said that the legislation was designed to protect the independent merchant. He suggested that if chain stores and mail order houses could be abolished the depression would end.

Arnold charged that the fair trade bill was "railroaded" out of the District Committee without adequate hearings, while Celler recalled that President Roosevelt had denounced the Millard Tydings rider to the 1938 District revenue act, which was similar to the Palmisano bill.

The only bill passed yesterday which had previously been adopted by the Senate was the proposal to set up a lunacy commission of two physicians and a full-time lawyer. The measure, which will put an end to the present open trials in insanity cases, except when demanded, now goes to the White House.

Senate amendments on two House bills, which propose to regulate beauty and barber shops in the District, were accepted so that the measures could be sent to the President.

Amendments Accepted.

The Commissioners' bill to modernize the District zoning act of 1920 was accepted by the House with only a minor amendment offered by Representative Cole (Republican), of New York, a member of the District Committee. The amendment inserted the word "substantial" before alterations for which a permit would be necessary.

The same bill ran into the opposition of citizen groups before the Senate District Committee on Tuesday and was held up for further hearings. Chairman King yesterday scheduled a hearing for the opponents for next Tuesday at 10:30 a. m., although two days of testimony were held previously.

The District narcotics bill, modeled after the uniform narcotics act, was passed by the House without debate. It had previously passed both houses, only to die with the adjournment of the Seventy-fourth Congress.

First Such Law Here.

The legislation constitutes the first proposed law to prohibit the manufacture or possession of narcotics in the District, although the Harrison narcotic act has been applicable here as in the States.

One of the bills passed in routine fashion is intended to eliminate a "joker" in the 1939 District revenue act, which would cost the city $500,000 if left uncorrected. It bars business and professional men from deducting personal property taxes on motor vehicles from their payments on the business privilege assessment.

Four minor measures approved by the House provide:

The renaming of Daniel road Oregon avenue and the present Oregon avenue Swann street.

Clarification of the law exempting the Y. W. C. A. from taxes in order to include a new building recently constructed.

outrages ever committed in this country."

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, said he could not believe Hopkins would deliberately "become the political agency for destroying men serving their Nation here," but he warned that "those why cry for bread will listen to those in control of the flour."

Cites Power of Hunger.

"Hungry people will do anything," McCarran told the Senate, "and those who control the source of living in the United States, whether WPA or any other agency—their least gesture is enough to turn those who are hungry in support of those who control the food supply."

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, interposed that such statements "might also have some effect on the consciences of members of Congress" because "we are all human being."

Earlier Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, told the Senate that if Hopkins had deliberately made such a statement for political effect "we ought to have guts enough to denounce it as it ought to be denounced."

"There is no rule of law which applies to men who are distributing these great sums of money," said Johnson. "No Constitution affects them. The Constitution affects only men like the Senator (Wheeler) and myself. It affects only ordinary individuals."

Meanwhile, Brady M. Stewart, managing Gov. A. B. Chandler's campaign for Kentucky's Democratic senatorial nomination, charged in a letter to President Roosevelt that Federal funds are being used by the WPA to further the renomination of Senator Barkley. Copies of the letter were sent other Senators, but no reference to the charges was made in yesterday's floor debate.

Barkley Withholds Reply.

"For the first time in our observation," Stewart wrote the President, "the Works Progress Administration, which was conceived and established to feed the families of the unemployed, irrespective of the politics, race or creed of those to be served through its directing heads, is seeking to drive hungry and destitute people to vote for a certain candidate for office."

Stewart charged that Kentucky WPA officials have given instructions that only those passed on by Barkley's campaign manager should be given relief, and State WPA employes have been told that unless they made campaign donations for Senator Barkley "they would be discharged immediately from their jobs." He said "every Federal relief agency in Kentucky is frankly and brazenly operating upon a political basis."

At the Capitol, Barkley said he would have no comment to make until the President had replied to the letter.

Last night Hopkins wrote to Stewart saying the President had asked him to reply to the Stewart letter and declaring he would take "suitable action" on any information of a "sufficiently specific nature." Hopkins referred to his previous assertions that political beliefs and activities of WPA workers would not jeopardize their jobs, and said it is his firm intention to see that this guarantee of the personal rights of our workers is observed."

Earmarking Urged.

Wheeler cited the Hopkins commitment for Wearin in Iowa as "evidence" that the Senate should earmark funds in the $3,247,000,000 spending-lending bill in such a manner as to take it out of politics.

"If such a statement is not evidence that this money should be earmarked by this body, then I do not know of anything that should be," said Wheeler. "If the Senate does not have the courage to stand up and earmark these appropriations so that they cannot be used for political purposes, then we do not deserve to be members of the United States Senate"

In the Senate, the spending-lending bill remained at a standstill, after three days of debate, as earmarking efforts gathered backing from conservative and some liberal Democrats. Debate on a new flood of amendments was expected to delay final action until next week.

Road Proposal Made.

First effort to earmark WPA funds was made yesterday by Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, who proposed that $484,500,000 in WPA road funds should be prorated among the States by population, with no State receiving more than 10 per cent of total funds. Earlier Bailey had moved to earmark nearly half of PWA "pump priming" funds to give preference to PWA projects already approved, while Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, sought earmarking of $324,000,000 of PWA funds for specific river and harbor and flood control work. Senator Miller (Democrat), of Arkansas, appealed to the Senate to adopt the Copeland amendment.

As the Administration leadership opposed all restrictions on PWA's present power to advance funds for municipal power projects duplicating private utilities, Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, managing the bill, proposed a new "compromise." Adams' plan would deny PWA funds for competing municipal plants, if present private power systems were maintaining "adequate service" at "fair and reasonable rates."

But the public works administrator would be the sole judge of these questions, without right of appeal to the courts.

Means of financing the proposed $212,000,000 appropriation for farm price parity payments were discussed by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Acting Budget Director Bell and Undersecretary of the Treasury Bell at a conference with Congressional leaders. It was agreed to seek new taxes next January to meet the cost if the amendment is adopted and the payments are actually made.

Farm Finance Discussed.

In the Senate, Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, made another appeal for monopoly control, denying that the present recession was caused either by over-production or the stock market decline. He said there could be no over-production while millions in need were crying for food and while those who have the food "are equally in distress because they can find no market for their product."

In a second attack on Hopkins' Iowa primary statement, Wheeler read a telegram quoting Gov. Kraschel, of Iowa, "who has always been a New Deal Governor, a Progressive liberal friendly with this Administration," as protesting Hopkins' announcement for Wearin.

Other Instances Cited.

"I hope this will be a lesson to Hopkins or anybody else who comes in that category," said Wheeler. The Montanan told the Senate Hopkins might just as well have "put a slip in the pay envelope of every Iowa relief worker telling him how to vote."

Wheeler said it was "not the first time" Hopkins had made such statements, referring to Hopkins' support of Gov. Bailey, of Arkansas, in his unsuccessful campaign against Senator Miller. He denounced Secretary Ickes' support of the Administration ticket in the Oregon primaries as equally "reprehensible."

Gillette told the Senate Hopkins should "correct" the position in which "perhaps unwittingly" he has placed the Administration. Gillette said such statements are "definitely unjust and unfair to the President," implying that he is not "sincere" in his declarations of neutrality.

Charging that a Missouri WPA worker had been fired because his attitude toward the Administration was "wrong," Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, read to the Senate letters sent the worker reputedly from a WPA official.

Czechs Limit Planes to Meet Reich Protest

German-speaking people this side of the frontier.

It was disclosed that Germany has made several protests to Prague during the past four days. The foreign office in Berlin said it did not know exactly how many, but that there were at least four, and perhaps six.

The funeral of two Sudeten German "martyrs," killed by Czech police Saturday, was turned into a monster demonstration for Hitler.

Instead of silent mourning for the slain farmers, there were lusty "heils" at every mention of Hitler.

Green gray German military uniforms, worn by Der Fuehrer's emissaries, were sprinkled ominously among the storm-troop uniforms of the Sudeten Germans. The situation was crammed with danger.

Hitler, by his dispatch of German military and air attaches and two huge wreaths, had put the stamp of Nazi sponsorship on the "martyrization" of the two farmers.

The speakers, including Konrad Henlein, who is the "Czechoslovak Hitler" to his 3,500,000 followers, turned from eulogy of the slain to shouted warnings that "we will fight for victory."

They spoke of the "enemies" in Prague, and their friends across the frontier in Germany.

Germany Alarmed.

Berlin, May 25 (AP).—Germany regarded the situation on her Czechoslovak frontier tonight as having taken a new turn for the worse because of repeated reports of border violations by Czechoslovak military planes.

The feeling here was that the Czechoslovaks were playing a dangerous game. Apologies, it was feared, would not remove the causes of tension which, the Berliner Tageblatt warned, might be brought to the point of explosion at any moment by the reckless act of some Czechoslovak soldier.

The German foreign office denied that Eisenlohr had been instructed to protest against the massing of Czechoslovak troops in the Sudeten regions.

It was held here, nevertheless, that such military movements to within a few yards of the Czechoslovak-German border was a constant source of anxiety to Germany's frontier population.

It was declared the German side of the border was completely void of troops.

(Bitterness and fear grew in Czechoslovak political circles, some observers regarding events as an indication Hitler was on the point of issuing an ultimatum to Prague demanding withdrawal of the troops from the border region.

(Reports from Berlin that anti-Czechoslovak propaganda was being distributed in tremendous volume recalled the drive against former Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria before the absorption of Austria in greater Germany.)

Denouncing fascism, Troyanovsky said his country "cannot wash its hands of the present European situation."

"We are strong enough to meet any agression against us and to defeat any aggressor," he said.

Troyanovsky said his country was bound by principles and treaties to defend Czechoslovakia.

to prevent accurate yardstick accounting, with hidden costs unincluded in TVA power costs.

Collusion, conspiracy and mismanagement in administration, including constant surveillance of the former chairman by his associates; actions without notice to him or without his consent and a "bad moral climate" tending to "make deceit and misrepresentation a standard practice."

Subservience to political and other special interests.

"Wholly indefensible" action by the board majority in "soft-pedaling" action against the Berry marble claims, finally constituting "a deliberate effort of the part of the majority of the board to make things easy for Maj. (later Senator George L.) Berry."

Due to Morgan's exceedingly precise and cautious language, the complexity of many of the matters presented, and the actual lack of important disclosures, the day-long hearing was almost devoid of sensational moments. Possibly the strongest language used by the former head of Antioch College came when he concluded his summary of the Berry case by stating:

"The whole conduct of the Berry case shows not only an insensibility to proper standards of conduct of public business but also a deliberate effort to give special consideration to a public official on claims which had been established to be worthless by abundant information already in the hands of the board, and which later an independent tribunal found to be valueless, in spite of efforts to 'soft-pedal' facts in the hearing before that tribunal."

Lilienthal, who will present his own charges and answer those of Morgan at 10 a. m. today, was present at the morning session yesterday, smiling quietly throughout at Morgan's insinuations and occasionally dictating notes to a stenographer at his side. The TVA's general counsel, James L. Fly, took over this chore during the afternoon session.

Fly and Lilienthal were particularly impressed by Morgan's remark in the morning session that "I make no charges of corruption or that any director has taken bribes or has stolen money or profited financially through his work." Cornering Arthur de Titta, newsreel executive, after the morning session, both of them stressed the importance of having that remark presented to the country in the newsreels. Fly told De Titta, in the presence of a few reporters:

Morgan slapped at Lilienthal directly time after time during the hearing, often leaving his prepared text to remark dryly that such-and-such was another example of how "cleverly" or "shrewdly" Lilienthal had acted "behind the scenes" while avoiding any blame.

He charged that Lilienthal had changed the minutes of board meetings after previous approval of the other members; and that he had arbitrarily refused to consider an offer by Commonwealth & Southern Corporation to sell its properties in the TVA area without authorization by the board, resulting in the 18-company suit by private utilities attacking the program's constitutionality.

He asserted that while Lilienthal had criticized him before the President as secretly collaborating with private power interests to sabotage the TVA, in actual fact he had few and slight contacts with utility officials, and always with full board knowledge, while Lilienthal frequently secretly conferred with utility chieftains without Morgan's knowledge or approval.

He further charged that Lilienthal, while accusing him (Morgan) before the President of using the advice and counsel of a former Insull utility engineer, G. W. Hamilton, in drafting a power pool program, had employed and relied heavily on the counsel of a former Insull utility promotion department man, W. I. Nichols, still in the TVA as head of the division of electrical development. Morgan asserted that Nichols, long experienced in propagandizing against public power ownership, was now one of Lilienthal's key advisors.

He declared that Lilienthal had destroyed from within the President's proposal of a power pool program in the Southeast States affected by the TVA, while concealing his actual opposition; that he so worded financial statements and reports as to convey the impression of sweeping gains in power use and development by TVA when such were not true; and that Lilienthal, always supported by the "dominated" vote of Harcourt Morgan, led the public to believe that Commonwealth & Southern refused to sell its properties when the reverse was true.

He charged also that the Authority's power-sale contracts with the Aluminum Co. of America and other chemical companies included cancellation clauses which were not in proper protection of the public interests.

10,000 Gather To Bar Japan's Drive to West

Chinese Who Escaped Net at Suchow Converge, Face Air Attacks.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Friday) May 26.—Ten thousand Chinese soldiers who escaped Japan's encirclement of Suchow attempted to brace today for new resistance to the Japanese campaign inland through central China.

These forces scattered by the collapse of China's defenses at Suchow, were converging near Mengcheng, about 80 miles southeast, in Anhwei Province.

Apparently they had salvaged enough rifles and machine guns to menace the Japanese westward drive along the Lunghai Railroad.

Japanese acknowledged a strong Chinese force was mobilizing near Mengcheng but declared it had no artillery. A spokesman said Japanese forces were preparing to "obliterate this detachment," indicating they planned intensive aerial bombardments.

Japanese declared they had beaten back a Chinese army corps near Kweiteh, about 100 miles from Suchow, and had "cut a wide path" toward the important Lunghai station.

Chinese reports from Kaifeng, further inland, said a heavy counter-offensive eastward along the railroad was checking Japan's drive.

Protest to British.

Hankow reports admitted a Japanese division commanded by Lieut. Gen. Kenji Doihara had reached the Lunghai about 30 miles east of Kaifeng Wednesday night.

But Chinese, they said, were attacking from three sides and the Japanese division was able neither to advance toward Kaifeng nor maintain contact with a supporting force and supply base to the north across the Yellow River.

Chinese here declared Gen. Doihara's column was surrounded and in peril of annihilation.

A delayed report, dated four days ago, said all foreigners and missions at Kaifeng were safe despite Japanese bombings.

(A Japanese protest to Great Britain over the remarks of a government spokesman in the House of Commons who deplored the shooting of Chinese prisoners by Japanese naval detachments at Amoy was disclosed in London. The Japanese were said to regard the statement, made by Richard Austen Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, as a reflection on the prestige of their navy.)

Japanese said they had gained complete control of the 800-mile Tientsin-Pukow Railroad. They said traffic would be resumed early next month, linking their conquests—almost a fourth of all China—from Peiping to Shanghai.

Famed Priest Visits Red Cross Head

Father Jacquenot de Besanges, S. J., French priest who relief work among Chinese noncombatant war sufferers has become a legend of heroism, talks over the Sino-Japanese question with Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross.

Businessmen Approve Council To Advise Congress, President

60 Conferees, Representing Everything From Medicine to Railroads, Back Proposal for Group to Counsel in National Problems.

By the Associated Press.

A conference of businessmen, educators, professional men and economists approved yesterday the formation of a national council to advise the President and Congress.

Sixty conferees adopted a resolution to support a proposal by Chairman Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, of the Senate Manufactures Committee, for establishment of a nine-member board which would delve into many aspects of modern life.

Representing a cross section from medicine to railroads, all the conferees were given a chance to talk and none declined.

The council, it was explained, would disregard class consciousness and special interests and work for the interests of the Nation as a whole.

President J. J. Pelley of the Association of American Railroads, while indorsing the idea, said he remained unconvinced that any practical results would be accomplished. Succeeding speakers, however, thought otherwise.

From Will Durant, New York author, came an eloquent plea for the establishment of such a council as a sort of "national brain" which would investigate the social, moral and economic trends in national life.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington Railroad, said the council might cushion the shock of depressions by forecasting them and recommending combative measures.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, Chicago, editor of the American Medical Journal, suggested the council could forecast trends in food supplies and consumption, as well as giving anticipatory information on the likelihood of epidemics.

Senator Bulkley said no attempt would be made to obtain legislation on his proposal at this session of Congress. The question will be studied this summer and a bill drafted for the next session.

Priest Says War May Turn China To the Soviet

Father De Besanges Here to Talk on Relief for Noncombatants.

A protracted Sino-Japanese war will force China into the arms of Soviet Russia, although Communism and the Chinese philosophy of life and government are incompatible, the Rev. Jacquinot de Besanges, S. J., French hero in the Far East and one of the directors of the Institute of Zi-ke-wei, at Shanghai, said yesterday.

Father de Besanges arrived in Washington to confer with Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, about relief for the noncombatant masses of China.

"I am afraid it will be a long war," said Father de Besanges yesterday. "Our work is among noncompatants, and we work with both sides for the relief of innocent war sufferers."

Wearer of the Croix de Guerre, the Order of Chiang Kai-shek, the Legion of Honor, the Medal of Portugal and other decorations, Father de Besanges was the intermediary who arranged for the protection of women and children and aged people during the battle of Shanghai.

The war in the Orient has all but destroyed the New Life Movement, inaugurated by Chiang Kai-shek, Father de Besanges said, but the spirit of the movement goes on.

And the future of religious and mission life is definitely imperiled. Of the Catholic mission and church properties, between 63 and 69 per cent have been seized, Father de Besanges pointed out.

Disease is threatening China's homeless, war-ridden millions, he pointed out. Because of the expense necessary to inoculate the war refugees, a "de-lousing" process has been inaugurated, and special machines from the Red Cross are now being used.

"Humanity must be saved the moral catastrophe of starvation and complete communism," said Father de Besanges yesterday. "The situation is so desperate, and we need all the aid we can get to keep the people from starving."

Father de Besanges will have a conference with President Roosevelt, the Chinese Ambassador and possibly the Japanese Ambassador while he is here.

Roosevelt Asks Acceptance of Chaco Decision

Joins Five Presidents in Backing Award on Bloody Conflict.

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt last night joined with the presidents of five South American republics in urging the chief executives of Bolivia and Paraguay to accept the peace conference proposal which will be submitted today for settlement of the bloody Chaco controversy.

Mr. Roosevelt's action coincided with that of the presidents of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay.

In telegrams to President Garman Busch, of Bolivia, and President Felix Paiva, of Paraguay, he said that the settlement, drawn up by a peace conference which has been in session in Buenos Aires for three years, assures "peace and security to both parties."

He recalled that the United States has "co-operated loyally and actively with the governments of Bolivia and Paraguay and with the governments of the other mediatory nations in seeking a just and definitive settlement" of the dispute which cost an estimated 100,000 lives in several years of warfare.

Mr. Roosevelt said that it is of vital importance to the peace and welfare of the Western Hemisphere that the matter be settled.

He said the peace conference proposal represented a final effort to fulfill one of the obligations assumed under the protocol of June 12, 1935, when Bolivia and Paraguay agreed voluntarily to cease hostilities and await negotiation of a settlement by the mediatory republics.

The war of the Gran Chaco, once called the "Green Hell," formally was declared by Paraguay on May 10, 1933, following nearly a year of undeclared armed conflict and a futile attempt by the League of Nations to arbitrate.

Jury Indicts 25 In Operation of Two Stills Here

Bridge Expert Is Accused of Maintaining Gaming Establishment.

Twenty-five men and women were indicted by the District grand jury yesterday under a seldom applied Federal statute that permits the charging of several offenses under one section of the United States code. All the allegations related to violations of the prohibition laws.

The defendants, all of whom were named in connection with alleged illegal operation of a still, at 5201 Chevy Chase parkway, were charged with violation of the revenue laws, transporting liquor without a license and defrauding the Government through nonpayment of taxes on liquor.

Recounting 50 overt acts, the indictment, in eight pages, also named those allegedly connected with the operation of a still at 1671 Madison street northwest. They were accused of manufacturing and selling untaxed liquor, the alleged conspiracy including the purchase of huge quantities of yeast and sugar.

Barnes, Carroll Thomas, Bernard Freeman, Steve Cassassa, James Fulton Griffin, Frederick Johnson, Corbin Shields, Harold Joseph Sweeney, Thomas Levine, Helen Jeannette Levine, Ralph Brannum and Lawrence Hall.

Others indicted were: John Grafton Knott, housebreaking and larceny; Joseph Lutsky, Luther A. Collins, William J. Mamakos, Steven V. Catalano and Jack V. Moore, receiving stolen property; Charles C. Wilson Terms Limerick Case 'Perfect Crime'

'Affair Closed,' Prosecutor Says, But Police Plan to Continue Search.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

The bizarre slaying of Beulah Limerick—still unsolved by Washington police—was called the "perfect crime" by Assistant United States Attorney John J. Wilson last night.

Unless a second discovery of new evidence is made, the exoneration of Robert F. Langdon in District Court Tuesday blasted the Government's final hopes of answering the seven-year-old question: Who killed Beulah Limerick, the whoopee girl?

"I am convinced," said Wilson, "we did the right thing by taking our case against Langdon into court. Now that a jury has settled the question, the affair is closed as far as I'm concerned."

But Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, will not let the case rest with Langdon's acquittal, he said yesterday. Indicating he intended to pursue his investigation, Brown said:

"We don't intend to give up. My men are under instructions to continue their probe in the hopes of uncovering additional facts and bringing the murderer to justice."

Brown denied plans for any "immediate" inquiry into disclosures at the Langdon trial of certain irregular practices among members of his command.

Several policemen testified that on the night of the murder—December 31, 1930—Langdon, then a Fifth Precinct patrolman, had fellow officers alter the station house record books to conceal his whereabouts. This practice among policemen, said witnesses, was "nothing unusual."

In describing the Limerick crime as apparently "perfect," Wilson said the slayer used methods of covering his tracks which have defied detection. The killer left few tangible clews, it was pointed out, and succeeded in either destroying or concealing the mudrer gun.

Langdon was in seclusion last night, fearing to return to his chicken farm near New Haven, Conn. He said he was "down and out and had no plans for the future. A charge of attempting to wreck a train near his home was nolle prossed before he was brought here to face trial for the Limerick slaying.

Jewish Welfare Meeting Saturday

The National Conference of Jewish Social Welfare, oldest organization of its kind in the country, will open its thirty-ninth annual meeting Saturday at the Wallard Hotel. More than 1,000 lay and professional social welfare workers are expected to attend the five-day convention.

Speakers will include Chester Williams of the Federal Forum Projects, Washington; John A. Lang of the United States Department of Education; Prof. Joseph P. Chamberlain of Columbia University, a member of President Roosevelt's Advisory Committee on Political Refugees, and other prominent authorities on current problems.

All phases of Jewish life here and abroad will be discussed. The convention will be held jointly with the National Association of Jewish Center Workers and the National Council for Jewish Education, both of which are affiliated with the conference.

Cash Need Takes Wings as Church Has 'Pigeon Fly'

Americus, Ga., May 25 (AP).—The Women's Missionary Society of the Friedstone Baptist Church for Negroes invited friends to something new in the way of money-raising bazaars tonight—a "pigeon fly."

For a pigeon fly you need a church, a pigeon and $1. You tie $1 to the pigeon's neck, charge 10 cents admission and release the pigeon. The one who catches the bird gets the $1—but not the pigeon. It's saved for the next fly.

Anti-War Congress Will Convene Here

Delegates from church, educational, farm and labor organizations from 40 States will attend the National Anti-War Congress here Saturday through Monday, called by the Keep America Out of War Committee.

Printers in D.C. Want AFL Man In Howard Post

Baker Gets 1,418 Votes in Local Here; 603 for C. I. O. Secretary.

Washington printers, members of the Columbia Typographical Union, last night voted overwhelmingly to oust Charles P. Howard, secretary of the C. I. O., as president of the International Typographical Union.

Columbia, local chapter of the International Union, cast 1,418 votes for C. M. Baker, of San Francisco, "independent" candidate, to end Howard's 12-year tenure as head of the union. Howard was given 603 votes.

The balloting, which was Nationwide, was considered a test of the American Federation of Labor and Committee for Industrial Organization factions in the union. Baker is aligned with the A. F. L. faction.

Voting for first and second vice presidents also showed the local union strongly favoring the A. F. of L. Alfred J. Whittle, of New Rochelle, N. Y., A. F. of L. candidate, was given a vote of 1,227 as against 744 votes for Francis G. Barrett, of New York City, the C. I. O. entry. The vote for second vice president was John J. Conley, Fort Worth, A. F. of L., 1,057; Clyde M. Mills, Washington, C. I. O., 939.

Robert Frederick Freund directs the Department of Agriculture Chorus in "A Gay Nineties Picnic" in the Agriculture Auditorium. Solo numbers by Kathryn Campbell, Lenore Langford, Ethel Gribble, Katherine Warren, Doris Menter, Prudence Jackson, Layle Reed, Rolla Currie, Joel Winkjer, John Wilson, Irvin Quiog, Ralph Marston and Leonard Kaphart.

When Robert Frederick Freund arranged the "Gay 'Nineties" program for the Department of Agriculture chorus several seasons ago, he probably did not foresee the popularity this melange of songs would achieve. Every revival has been welcomed with a ready response, and there is no evidence as yet that the public is losing interest in it. Even standing room was at a premium last night in the Agriculture Auditorium, where the tenth performance was staged, and in all likelihood there will be a crowded house for the eleventh tonight.

The awakening of nostalgia for the past is not the purpose of this entertainment. The youngest listener cannot miss the comic exaggerations of the performance and the satire emblazoned in some of the costumes.

Gayety, however, is the dominant mood of the soloists and choristers in the lively presentation of a program that begins with "The Sidewalks of New York" and ends with "Ta-Ra-Ra Boom de Aye."

Wheat Prices Tumble as U. S. Harvests Heavy Winter Crop

Farm

handles wheat problems, was in the West conducting meetings of farmers at which emphasis is being placed on the huge surplus in sight this year and the urgent need for sharp slashes in acreage allotments, to be made in July.

As the price sagged, eyes were turned to the Capitol, where an effort is under way to earmark $212,000,000 of the recovery appropriations for farm parity payments, which would bolster the income on wheat, cotton and corn growers during coming months.

Despite the fact that no marketing quotas can be established for this year's wheat crop, the wheat share of the $212,000,000, if appropriated, would be paid, it was made clear, on the 1938 production in the course of the approximately 10 months marketing season that begins July 1.

Provisions for wheat loans make possible a return of 62 to 80 cents on a parity price of approximately $1.15 set by the Agriculture Department.

The wheat insurance program, under which farmers may pay their premiums in grain in years of abundant crops, likely will take a small portion of the surplus off the market.

Lack of support of wheat in the market was attributed in part to uncertainty over what steps the Government will take to counteract the tremendous yield.

The fact that the amount of the wheat loans has not been set, and uncertainty over the fate of the parity payments proposal, were said to be curbing buying.

"When a big operator faces such uncertainty," Duvel commented, "he sells if he is long on wheat, and gets out."

The steady decline in the cotton price is attributed to indications that the carryover on August 1 of this year will be in the neighborhood of 13,000,000 bales, more than twice the normal amount. Last year's crop, the largest ever grown, was said yesterday in revised estimates to have been 18,946,000 bales, as compared with less than 13,000,000 bales the previous year. The tremendous yield has exerted a depressing effect on the market ever since.

An acreage reduction from 34,000,000 acres last year to about 30,000,000 acres in 1938 is indicated, but reports on intentions to plant will not be made until next month. The first condition report on this year's crop is due in August.

A LOOK AND A RIDE AND YOU'LL AGREE...

HERE'S THE CAR OF THE YEAR!

Big, roomy, strikingly styled... today's brilliant De Luxe Ford V-8 brings still more of the "fine-car things" to buyers in the low-price field!

DE LUXE TUDOR SEDAN . . . 112-inch wheelbase, 123-inch springbase, 85 h.p. . . . Diagonal folding of front seat back gives easy access to rear . . . Luggage compartment reached from outside . . . Mohair or broadcloth upholstery.

YOU can tell at a glance that there's a different Ford V-8 this year. In beauty, no other car at any price is like it. But it's not until you ride in it that you know how different it is!

No low-priced car has ever been built to all-round standards as high as this one's.

In action, the quiet, flexible "feel" of its engine is a typical V-8 advantage. It's a feel that only 8 cylinders can give you.

Its interior is spacious. Partly because the body itself is big. Partly because its short V-8 engine and long springbase add to the passengers' share of total length.

In its rear seat the promise of a "front-seat ride" comes true. You sit well forward of the rear axle... Center-Poised where riding comfort is naturally at its best.

At the rear of every model is luggage space that's big . . . and opens from outside the car.

And with all its size, the car is fun to drive. Steering, shifting gears, braking . . . are next to effortless. Ford brakes act easily, stop smoothly . . . and have the safety advantage of steel from pedal to wheel.

Before you spend as much for any car . . . and certainly before you pay more . . . learn how sharply this De Luxe Ford car lifts the quality standards of low-cost motoring.

Civil Aeronautics Authority.

To the 75,000 persons who inspected the "skysleeper" installed opposite the Commerce Building during Air Mail Week, the tragedy reported from Cleveland will be particularly vivid. The plane that crashed ten people to their deaths near that city was of the same make and similar design.

Apparently both motors went dead at the same moment, a virtually unprecedented coincidence. Whatever the explanation, the accident revises one concept of present-day flying hazards. The elements—fog, ice and mountains—are not the only remaining dangers. Man has also to perfect his mechanics before he can fly with full security.

It is the hope that this and all air safety aims will be promoted by enactment of the McCarran-Lea legislation now pending in Congress. Both houses have approved its basic proposal to establish a new independent Federal agency—the Civil Aeronautics Authority—to regulate civil aviation.

At present the responsibility is divided between the Postoffice Department, the Bureau of Air Commerce, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Weather Bureau. Efficiency demands unification. But whereas the House would set up a three-man authority with an administrator and a safety director, the Senate has voted for a five-man authority with no administrator and a three-man safety board.

Conferees have been named to iron out the differences. Since the new agency will have jurisdiction over schedules, rates, routes and other powers similar to those exercised by the ICC over railroads, buses and trucks, the five-man board proposed by the Senate would appear preferable. The possibility of confusion arising between the administrator and the three-man authority is an objection raised to the House plan.

However, the House bill contains one section which the Senate rejected on seemingly thin arguments. The section limits the President's powers of removal to cases of malfeasance, inefficiency or neglect of duty. This is a standard provision in most independent agency acts. Lack of it might invite political interference. Aviation has enough difficulties without this added worry.

The D. C. Fair Trade Bill.

Yesterday the House hurriedly passed a bill legalizing the maintenance of minimum resale prices for trade-marked and branded goods. All but a few of the States have enacted so-called fair trade laws of this type, and passage last year of the Miller-Tydings act has removed Federal obstacles to effective enforcement of such laws within these States.

Retail druggists and book and cigar store interests are usually the groups most eager to secure legislation to ban price cutting. Locally the Palmisano bill is being pushed, it is stated, by a section of the retail drug trade. This bill provides that if anyone "willfully and knowingly" advertises, offers for sale, or sells any commodity at less than the price stipulated in any contract entered into under the proposed law, such person may be sued for damages. It is specifically stated, furthermore, that suit may be brought against anyone who undercuts the fixed price, whether or not he is a party to such contract.

In other words, any manufacturer of a proprietary medicine might, if he so desired, set the price at which he would permit his product to be sold. Thereafter all drug stores or other distributors in the District would have to conform to that fixed price. The same would hold true, of course, for trade-marked foods and other products. Although little public attention has been attracted to this bill, a representative group of consumers' organizations—the Consumers Council of Washington—has registered vigorous opposition to it.

The council contends that resale price maintenance laws increase prices to consumers, especially in stores featuring popular prices. This is the stock argument of opponents of this type of legislation. Advocates insist, however, that the aim is to prevent destructive price cutting, not to raise prices. While one side inveighs against the evils of indiscriminate price cutting and denounces sales below cost, the other side maintains that bans upon price cutting prevent efficient distributors from giving customers the benefit of lower prices. In fact, there is no end to the arguments for and against legalization of resale price maintenance. And so far experience under fair trade practice laws has yielded conflicting evidence in regard to the net benefits, if any.

One is almost forced to conclude that the legislation is both good and bad. It may help to curb destructive, unfair forms of competitive price cutting in some instances. In others, it creates new problems. Furthermore, it gives rise to acute enforcement difficulties, as distributors find all sorts of ways to evade the law.

If the District had a fair trade practice law, therefore, it would probably be a very doubtful blessing, although the competition of unbranded goods could be counted upon to curb overreaching in many cases and the dire results predicted by the Consumers Council might not follow. At any rate the people of the District are vitally interested in this proposal.

Dr. Warren's Contribution.

The late Dr. George F. Warren was widely and favorably known as one of the country's leading agricultural economists. During his many years of service as a professor at Cornell University he also established an enviable reputation as a stimulating and helpful teacher. News of his death would, therefore, have attracted attention even if his activities had been confined to academic circles. But his name would not have been so familiar to a great body of Americans except for his connection with the Administration's price-raising monetary experiments.

To Dr. Warren credit is generally given for persuading the President that prices could be raised, lowered, or kept stable by varying the weight of the gold contained in the dollar. According to this theory, if prices fall even by a fraction of 1 per cent, a corresponding decrease in the gold equivalent of the dollar would offset the decline and leave prices unchanged. In case of an undesired rise in prices the reverse procedure would presumably be effective.

That President Roosevelt accepted this formula as a program for raising and subsequently stabilizing the price level is not only evident from the policies followed, but is confirmed by frequent official statements.

In the President's recently published collection of papers and addresses, a note is appended to the 1934 declaration fixing the gold weight of the devalued dollar. The suspension of gold payments was "designed," he says, "to contribute to the rise in commodity prices which we felt was essential to restore the purchasing and debt-paying ability of the American people." Once the desired level had been attained, through a gold-buying program at gradually increasing prices, the next step was "to fix, definitely, the gold value of the dollar, at least for the time being."

In the light of subsequent developments it is no longer necessary to offer disproof of this crude, mechanical theory of price fixation. Abundant statistical evidence can be cited to demonstrate its untenability. Today belief in a commodity dollar of varying weight and stable purchasing power is confined to a faithful few. Significant of the prevailing disillusionment is the fact that Dr. Warren, whose name was displayed so prominently in the headlines a few years ago, long since retired to the swelling ranks of former presidential advisers whose names and exploits are becoming rather dim memories.

The dollar is now stabilized in terms of gold and little credence is given to occasional rumors of further devaluation. Nevertheless, it does not follow that the experiment launched at Dr. Warren's urging has been without permanent effect. While the goal of a stable price level has not been attained, the managed currency program has had profound repercussions upon our economic and financial system. Furthermore the chapter is not closed; there is a sequel that may yield some unpleasant surprises.

Sharp depreciation in the exchange value of the dollar, following abandonment of the gold standard in 1933, exerted a profound effect upon the prices of commodities entering international trade. That was a disorganizing influence which subsequently encouraged further currency disorders in other parts of the world. By entering the competitive devaluation race this country added to the existing instability of world currencies.

Undervaluation of the dollar in international exchange was also responsible for an abnormally heavy inflow of gold after passage of the gold reserve act of 1934. These accessions were later swollen by the widespread flight of capital from areas of political and economic disturbance.

As a result, abnormal gold accumulations—a direct legacy of the managed currency experiment—have caused and are causing new problems to arise. At first fears of inflation led to sterilization of inflowing gold during a period of rising prices and expanding business activity. Recently falling prices and depressed business have led to a reversal of policy. Gold is being desterilized, member bank reserves, already excessive, are being further increased, and some believe we are now heading for uncharted inflationary perils.

Our credit and currency system is still being "managed" in the sense that the automatic adjustments operative under a free gold standard no longer exist. But there is an absence of effective control machinery to take the place of that which was found wanting. We are again in the midst of a domestic depression with its familiar accompaniment of falling prices. Looking abroad, the prospect for an early stabilization of world currencies seems more remote than it did four years ago.

Emphasis has shifted from a managed dollar to managed credit and control of purchasing power by varying the amount of uncovered Government spending. At the moment, hopes seem to be centered on raising prices and stimulating industry by deficit financing. However, reliance is still being placed on mechanical manipulative action, although the method is different. Meantime the credit and currency system has been metamorphosed by our experiment with the commodity dollar.

Whatever the ultimate consequences of that initial experiment may be, history will assign to Dr. Warren much of the responsibility for giving a new direction to our monetary policies.

"Lip Service Is Not Enough."

"Mere lip service to principles," said the Undersecretary of State on Tuesday night, "is not enough. If the nations of the world are to work back to a healthy relationship . . . not only must these cardinal principles which we have announced be adhered to, they must also be implemented by constructive and positive achievement."

This statement by Mr. Sumner Welles is in line with the promise of American cooperation in behalf of peace made by President Roosevelt in his Chicago speech last October. It is in line with other high-minded and high-sounding statements made on numerous occasions by Secretary Hull. It is in line with a very fundamental national interest, which is to do our share in averting war so as to establish the one sure guarantee against our involvement in war.

A very real test of the Administration's readiness to implement the national will for peace "by constructive and positive achievement" may be at hand. For it is reported that the French government has asked the United States to throw the weight of its diplomatic support on the side of a peaceful settlement in the German-Czechoslovak crisis. And here, it seems, is a pertinent case where "mere lip service to principles is not enough."

The current crisis may not, at first glance, seem to concern the United States at all. Czechoslovakia is far removed from our shores. We have no direct interest in the future of the Sudeten German minority, which is the crux of the present very tense situation. Free from any alliances, unbound even by the now tenuous commitments of the League Covenant, it is easy for this country to remain completely aloof.

But it would be short-sighted in the extreme to imagine that an aloof attitude on our part would save us from the consequences of a European flare-up, should one result from the present or any other crisis. And the mere fact of our relative isolation, and our national freedom from partisanship in the issue, should make it easier for American statesmanship to contribute constructively to a settlement.

This does not mean that Uncle Sam should become an international busybody, eager to intervene in every international complication that may arise. And it certainly does not mean that the United States should take sides in the conflict between the Prague government and the Hitler-supported German minority.

The President was entirely right when he declared recently that "the domestic policies of other nations are of no concern to the United States." And Mr. Welles took a justified crack at several overzealous officials when, supplementing this remark, he said that "We surely do not advance the cause of world peace by undertaking publicly to assail" those policies.

But when an international situation arises in which the fundamental principles so warmly advocated by the Administration are obviously endangered, complete aloofness by the United States is to no one's advantage, and makes a mockery of the high-sounding professions in which we have so often indulged.

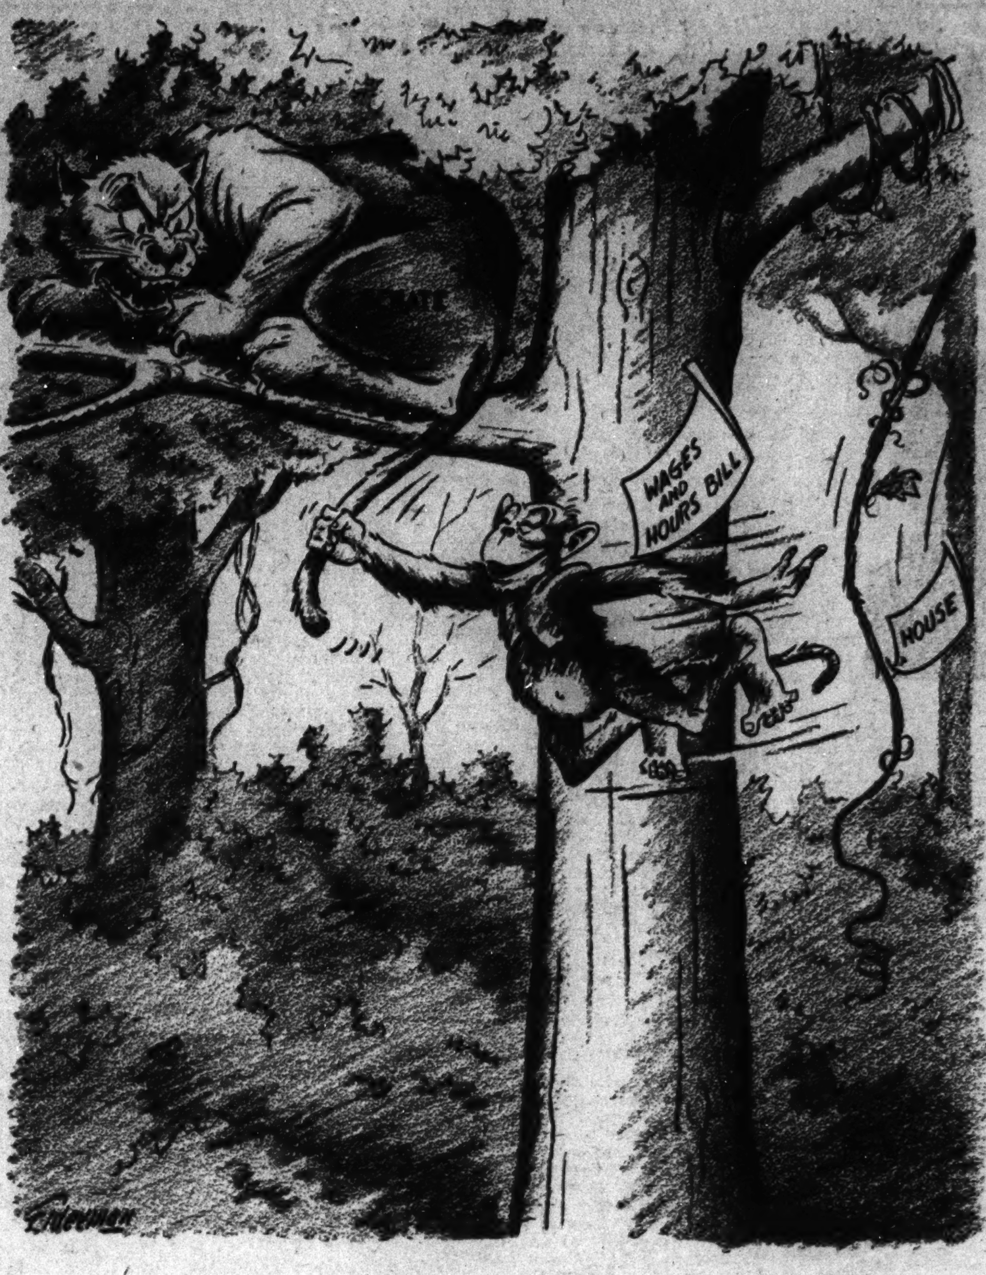
"There is," says Mr. Welles, "no uncertainty as to the foreign policy of this country." Unfortunately there is a great deal of uncertainty. It is remembered that President Roosevelt, last October, asserted that "the peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort to uphold laws and principles on which alone peace can rest secure." But it is not at all apparent that the United States is contributing to this concerted effort now that the need for it is clearly at hand.

An Undisfigured Highway.

It will be largely due to the Roadside Beautification Council of Baltimore if the new Gov. Ritchie highway, now under construction from Baltimore to Annapolis, is completely free from disfiguring billboards. And the success of the council in securing the voluntary co-operation of the advertisers is not the least interesting part of its successful campaign to this end.

Already the council, composed of prominent Baltimoreans, has secured the consent of oil companies and breweries to refrain from erecting any new billboards on this road and to remove those already in place on the completed sections. Other advertisers are expected to take the same enlightened position, to some extent because of the growing number of people who are quietly abstaining from buying products advertised on the highways in such a way as to disfigure the scenery and increase traffic hazards. In the background is the additional argument that if the roads cannot be cleared of glaring advertisements through co-operation a start will be made toward clearing them by law, as the Virginia Legislature recently demonstrated.

As between the two methods the preferable course is that of co-operation. And because of its demonstrated success in securing co-operation the activities of the Roadside Beautification Council are likely to find emulators in many cities other than Baltimore.



Not A Grapevine.

Letters to the Editor

British Taxes And Rates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of May 20 appears a letter under the caption, "Answers Another American" and signed "American," in which the following occurs: "While the 27.5 per cent income tax rate in England seems large, in comparison with our own, it should be remembered that we pay many taxes to which the English are not subject, such as Federal, State, county and municipal taxes, resulting, in fact, in our being, in all probability, the heaviest taxed people in the world."

This statement, in one form or another, appears so frequently and is so far from the truth that a correction of the error seems timely.

There is little doubt that the mistake occurs as the result of a misunderstanding of terms. In England only contributions to the expenses of the general or central government are called taxes, and all contributions to the expenses of local government are called rates. These rates are strictly analogous with State, county and municipal taxes in this country.

Unfortunately, data for the same year are not available for both countries. The decennial report of the Census issued in 1934 covers the year 1932-1933 and is the latest available for the United States, while the last report for England and Scotland covers 1936-1937.

Summarizing these reports, we have the following:

Revenue from Taxation (000,000 omitted).

	United States.	England-Scotland.
General government ...	$2,625	$4,315
Local government ...	8,852	3,008
Aggregate ...	11,477	7,323
Per capita...	$92.18	$166.42

Railroad Suggestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The crisis present in the great railroad industry contributes substantially to the economic ills of the Nation, and demands consideration of every possible solution. Accordingly I pose the following:

A declaration by the Federal Government of willingness to accept gratis the unencumbered title to the fixed plant of such economic railroad units as would be desirable in a system designed for national requirements. In consideration thereof the Federal Government to assume the cost of maintenance, improvements and betterments to such fixed plant and granting to the relinquishing owner a favorable operating franchise thereon.

Mortgages and liens securing bonds now held by the public may render such a program unworkable for many years. However, the acute financial distress broadspread in the industry will force many foreclosures and perhaps enable some bankrupt carriers to thus rid themselves of important charges against earnings. A first call on the earnings of a property thus aided might easily prove a more attractive investment than a first mortgage on a railroad property which has consistently earned deficits and lost ground.

Under such a program the Federal Government would be according to the railroad carriers assistance comparable to that now accorded to highway and waterway carriers.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to take this opportunity to thank your newspaper for its splendid co-operation in giving recognition to the original operetta which was produced by students of Montgomery Blair Senior High School in Silver Spring.

It has been gratifying to work with members of your editorial staff, and I particularly wish to mention the painstaking work of one of your photographers, Mr. McCoy, who certainly has done an excellent job. I have never worked with anyone who has been so conscientious or who has worked so diligently in order to make good pictures. He certainly is to be congratulated.

The directors of the operetta, Mrs. Metcalfe and Miss Schwartz, join me in this expression of appreciation.

Blinders Off?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just returned from a trip to that part of the country which he who disclaims any desire or intent to become chief lord had but shortly before denominated the "feudal" South. While in South Carolina I was present at a county convention of Democrats which instructed its delegates to a forthcoming State convention to vote for the abrogation of "Rule 32." It is good to know that the State convention has in turn struck down the chains by which through this rule the Democratic donkey was bound to the New Deal cart.

It would be an interesting study in itself to determine whether "Rule 32," which I understand bound registered Democrats to support in general elections all such persons as capture the party nominations for local, State, or national offices, should be regarded as binding the registered Democrat to support in the general election any candidate who being already in office is known to have violated the pledges of his party as contained in the platform upon which he sought and obtained his prior election.

However, with the abrogation of the rule that study becomes wholly academic. It remains to be seen, of course, how far the possession of the party label will (with other bait) serve to lure voters, and whether or not the plan to base party strength elsewhere upon those with whom the party locally has no association can continue to operate. Briefly, have the blinders been sufficiently removed from the donkey, and his spirit sufficiently restored, to cause him to kick over the cart?

On District Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am one of several thousand voters in the recent plebiscite who favored national representation but not local suffrage. Having no organization, this group was not represented in the hearing before the House Judiciary Committee, but it should be heard. There is grave danger that in trying to get too much the people of the District will get nothing.

I came to Washington from a State that has an inadequate absentee-voter law, requiring the voter to maintain that his absence is temporary, a claim that in my case would be pure fiction. Hence, I have not voted for 30 years. Three sons, in different States, can vote, while their parents, living in Washington, cannot. There is no sound reason why citizens of the District should not take part in presidential elections or have a voice in the selection of a national Legislature.

The question of local control is dissimilar. Every citizen of the United States has a direct and substantial interest in the government of the District. The language of the Constitution shows that this was in the minds of the framers. The national interest here is paramount, and the extent of that interest is increasing day by day. Police and fire protection, education, health, transportation, water supply, cleanliness, beautification—all these things, and others—are matters of concern to the country as a whole.

It seems superfluous to refer to the notorious delinquencies of city governments in this country. Surely our efforts will be better directed if we emphasize the national interest and cultivate an adequate apprehension on the part of the national Government. District representation in Congress would be in conformity with that theory, but local control would not.

Snub In Virgin Islands.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Negro press during the last week has extolled in headlines the action of a colored Federal judge of the Virgin Islands, causing the officers and cadets of the German ship, Horst Wessel, to be snubbed by the islanders during a temporary stay in the harbor there. The occasion, as I understand it, was a reception planned in honor of the visitors. By expressing personal disapproval of the committee's action the judge caused the invitations to be withdrawn.

Being a colored citizen myself, I do not feel that the judge used due discretion in this matter. There being no diplomatic breach between the United States and the German government, it is the bounden duty of every Federal officer to extend due courtesy to representatives of this or any other nation with whom the Federal Government holds diplomatic relationship.

No officer of the Federal Government can afford to allow his race or religious loyalties to inject themselves in any way against those representing a foreign power on a friendly tour in American waters, regardless of the racial or religious policies of such government.

Monument For Sun Dial?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many years ago the great astronomer, Camille Flammarion, suggested that the Egyptian obelisk in Paris, located in the Place de la Concorde, should be used as a sun dial. He claimed that when the obelisk stood at Luxor it was used as a sun dial. Paris has at last decided to let the shadow of this ancient shaft 100 feet high mark the hours, in memory of ancient Egypt.

Why not use the 500-foot shaft in Washington for the same purpose? There are various possibilities with such an enormous shaft to use colored lights, and a shaft of light to pierce a fog in daytime.

Electrical Giants.

Last year the electrical industry rang up on its cash registers sales of some $2,500,000,000, which compares favorably with the $2,600,000,000 take of the automobile manufacturers or the $3,000,000,000 revenue of the chemical industry. Upwards of 1,800 companies share this $2,500,000,000 business. But a good half of this gross is made by 25 companies, while 20 per cent of this total was accounted for last year by just two companies. One of these was the acknowledged lord of the industry, General Electric of Schenectady, N. Y. The other was Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing, with headquarters in East Pittsburgh, factories in 18 cities in six States, and a pay roll of 50,000 men. By comparison with shrewd, well-publicized G. E., which has made the most of its No. 1 position, Westinghouse is a hermit institution.

General Electric, with assets of approximately $375,000,000, earned for nine months of 1937 a net of $40,000,000 on a gross business of $260,000,000. Westinghouse, with assets of some $234,000,000, grossed $206,000,000 for the whole year. (All Westinghouse 1937 financial figures are estimates as of December 31.) This gross was 34 per cent over the gross for 1936, 67 per cent over 1935, 210 per cent over 1933—and only 5 per cent short of the 1929 figure of $216,000,000, which was Westinghouse's peak. During 1929 Westinghouse made a net profit of $27,000,000. In 1933 it had a loss of $8,600,000. But its 1937 net profit was $20,000,000, a remarkable comeback, which it achieved in the face of increased costs and taxes largely by operating economies. This allowed it to pay $16,000,000 in dividends—which amounted to $6 per share on 2,600,000 shares of $50 par common stock, and $6 on 80,000 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred. There is no Westinghouse funded debt. The dividends were widely diffused; no single person holds as much as 2 per cent of the common.

Free Lunch.

YEAR before last Mark and I were asked to undertake some joint editorial work in New York, which meant we could give our child, Jan, a home of her own again—on a modest scale. Before we left my parents in Chevy Chase, however, everyone made us feel sorry to go. The maid wouldn't charge us for the last week's wash, and my young sister Cissie tickled Jan in the ribs, saying, "What'll I do without you to get in my hair?" Then she gave her a parting gift of a chunky little overnight bag—monogrammed! Jan could only sit gulping, playing with its tiny gold key. Cissie was floored by the look of ecstasy on the child's face.

As we left the dining room Mark paused and felt the thick, rich carpet with his shoe, then said to me, "Nice hang-out, here. Don't blame me when you don't have all the comforts of this home up there." I told him, "Oh, booshwah!" and stopped his mouth with a kiss.

"You, two!" scoffed Jan patiently. "And your mugging."

Just outside of New York we found The House. In a village once full of sea captains, now populated by buxom Germans and beaten-down-looking Poles. The House was set on a shore cliff, overlooking a bay full of old schooners and new oil tankers. It had the dignity of two-story columns; but by the time our few sticks of furniture, salvaged from Boom Times, had been scattered about, the rooms were more than spacious—they were bare. Even a half-ton of books couldn't have furnished it completely.

But Jan liked moving. We let her get our picnic meals and forgot to send her to bed early. We ate supper off the packing cases without electricity, but candles throwing wagon-wheel shadows on the walls. She said once, looking about at her strange surroundings, "I feel like somebody different, here. I don't know who I'll turn into."

Eventually we found a colored maid, glad to hear Southern voices again, who served our meals at meal times. Then Jan started to school once more. The second day I said, "I want you to buy your lunch at the cafeteria tomorrow so I can work on some articles at home." But she told me there was no cafeteria at school. "We-ell," I decided, "I can't have Eva pack you a lunch in the thermos kit."

But the next afternoon Jan came barging into my study and spraddled down on a chair. "Mummy, I can't take my lunch to school any more, here! Because kids whose families aren't hard up all go home at noon and get fed right."

Then she blurted out the story.

At noon she had filed down to a basement with benches around the wall and a table and stools in the center. She'd taken a stool and placed her lunch box on the table when the teacher in charge had demanded, "Where's your lunch ticket?"

Jan had replied, "I haven't got a ticket. I didn't know you had to pay just to sit here. I don't want to buy any lunch; I brought mine."

"Then go over to a wall bench. This is reserved for pupils on relief."

Jan backed off; she was scared of actually seeing children who were on relief—like not wanting to look at the man hurt by the automobile out in front of grandpa's. Still, she couldn't stop from watching them presenting their coupons, grabbing their trays and hunching close over them at the table so no one could snatch one bite of it.

After a while her attention was attracted by her seat neighbors, who'd opened newspaper parcels of coarse, hunky sandwiches. One of them asked, "Does your old lady work, too, being as you don't go home to eat?"

"Yes," said Jan; "she helps my father."

"In his store?"

"No-o; on the typewriter, and——"

"A stenographer? Say, that's class. My mom's a cook."

The other girl, catching sight of Jan's wrist watch, sneered, "Jewelry, eh? Rich folks? Hasn't your old man ever told you that capitalists are blood-suckers living off other folks' sweat?"

"What's wrong with being rich if you can?" Jan had argued back, because she thought choosing to be hard up, if you could prevent it, sounded like so much baloney. But now she remarked to me diffidently, "Maybe there was something to their gabbing, though, because they were too tired even to play at recess. They have to sleep all in one bed or else on the floor . . . Say, you won't get me in wrong with them by letting it get out that we hire a cook, will you?"

Then, paradoxically, she rushed up to put on her velvet party frock for dinner, while I stood wondering whether to send her back to Chevy Chase and security again. Mark came home at that point and asked what was eating me. I led him up to Jan's room, furnished with only a table, an Army cot and a mirror. But Jan was flirting before that, making an umbrella of her wide skirt. "How'm I doin'?" she asked Mark, who kidded back, "Skip it, glamour babe!"

I interrupted, "Jan, would you like it better back at grandpa's, away from the free lunch set-up?"

"And give up," she gasped, horrified, "being with you all in our own house, with a room to myself? Hey," she grabbed Mark's arm desperately, "tell Mummy people aren't born with gold teeth in their mouth these days. Much less silver spoons! Golly, doesn't she appreciate being on the financial up-and-up again?"

Fair Enough

When The Will Flexes.

LAST WEEK your correspondent composed two little essays kidding the rompers off Benito Mussolini, his inflexible will and his invincible Black Shirt legions. For all these years Mussolini had been popping his eyes, shoving out that property chin of his waving his fancy dress bread knife, such as footsore suburban husbands wear at their belts at the annual costume party of the Junior League, and telling the world what he was going to do to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

PEGLER.

Now, everybody in Italy knows that the Black Shirts are only militia and that, far from being invincible, they are not so hot. The army has contempt for them, and the Duce himself has a realistic private estimate of their worth.

There came a time in Spain when the invincible Black Shirts got into a clumsy mixup and, due to no fault of the rank and file but a mistake of their commander, were chased by the Spanish rabble of which Mussolini had spoken so contemptuously. This might happen to any green army and be forgotten, but Mussolini had sounded off so loud and long about his inflexible will and his invincible legions that he had put his Black Shirts on a spot.

That "inflexible will" stuff is too tempting to be resisted when the will does flex. The same goes for that "invincibility" stuff. No man's will is inflexible against the world, and any outfit which claims to be invincible had better be if he doesn't want to be kidded when he isn't.

* * * *

YOUR CORRESPONDENT is still combing bricks, mortar and fragments of shattered bottle glass out of his scalp. The Fascists went nuts. Some of the letters would stifle a wet billy goat, and all of them are full of annoyance, although both compositions were only the faintest imitations of the kind of stuff that Mussolini, in his pep talks, and his journalistic yes-men, in print, have been heaving at the world in general for years.

The Americans have long had a reputation among the Europeans for boastfulness—and this is not to say it wasn't earned, although the American boasting had to do mostly with the height of our buildings, the extent of the country, the richness and wastefulness of the American people and the cost in millions of our libraries, jails, State universities, City Halls and sewage plants.

The Americans had dough; they regarded European money, which is reckoned in small units, as funny money and would toss tips to the mayors of European towns and commanders of European warships whose uniforms were pardonably confused with the lion tamers' costume worn by carriage starters at European hotels.

They undoubtedly were offensive, but their boasting didn't run much to military matters, for most of them didn't know a squad from a group of armies. Moreover, they had a low opinion of European aristocracy, honestly derived from the notorious conduct of the high-born he-trollops of the Old World who came over here to marry rich little American females for their money.

* * * *

AMERICAN PRINCIPLES have corroded somewhat since then, but in those days Americans had a feeling that a man with no money who married a rich girl and moved into her set sacrificed his manhood.

But never did the Americans blab about their inflexible will or their invincible legions as Mussolini and, more lately, Hitler have done. Although we used to twist the old lion's tail for fun on dull days in Congress and in our papers, this sport never developed the ripe, insulting scurrility of the expressions which Mussolini and his journalists have dished to all and, for full measure, sundry.

Mussolini and his press finally reached a point where they apparently convinced themselves that the lack of response in kind was due to awe of his inflexible will and his invincible legions. The truth was that most countries were amused and couldn't be bothered to talk back. Moreover, most of it wasn't even reported outside Italy.

Nothing said or printed here even approaches the viciousness of the internal propaganda in Italy against other peoples or the threats which have been sounding through Italy against various nations in turn and in groups.

A bulldozer can't take kidding, however. Even mild kidding which touches him on his vanity drives him crazy, and the easiest way to get a Fascist's goat is to needle him a slight jab on the subject of the inflexible will and the invincible Black Shirts and then say "Guadalajara."

"Can Mexico afford a war?"

"No, but she is trying to arrange to pay for it by time payments, a thing Homer Cummings is now investigating."

Paris Letter

France, Made Nervous By Dictators' Moves, Pins Hopes For Security In New Military Pact Signed In London.

By Jacques Kayser.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris.

THE OUTSTANDING question in everybody's mind here concerns the international situation. It is this enigma which occupies the center of the stage in the conversations of all Frenchmen. Foreign news dominates the front pages of the newspapers and practically monopolizes all political meetings. There is hardly a Frenchman who does not realize to the full the dangers which confront his fatherland.

The average Frenchman is both pacifist and patriot. He ardently desires the continued maintenance of peace together with the maintenance of the honor and dignity of his country. Not readily prepared to sanction far-reaching concessions to foreign lands, he does not, at the same time, want his nation to run the risk of being plunged into foreign adventures.

Were it possible for the French government to say "no" to the dictators with all the force at its command, and if this "no" occasioned no risk, all of France would unite in demanding that such an attitude be taken. If, on the other hand, the impression prevails that the imperialistic policies of the dictators do not directly threaten French interests, the French would not seek to offer any resistance to the expansion of the totalitarian states.

But even the people who might be expected to adopt a role of absolute fascism are reacting violently to the events at present unfolding in the world.

All France Approves Franco-British Entente.

THE FRANCO-BRITISH entente is approved by the entire nation. The belief is strong that when these two nations work together the policies of Hitler and Mussolini can be checkmated. The average Frenchman, like every premier which France has had since the end of the World War, is profoundly convinced that the entente of the two liberal democracies is a necessity, that the interests of both nations are similar and, hence, that they are natural allies.

Frenchmen of the right, who for a long time have argued that French policy has been made subservient to Britain's, nonetheless rejoice in the Anglo-French rapprochement, which now is a fact. Why? For domestic reasons. They favor Mr. Chamberlain's policy of making peace with Italy, and of leaving Russia largely out of account. On the other hand, Frenchmen of the left, despite their reservations and their criticism of the Chamberlain policy, are fully aware of the dangerous position France would be in without the British alliance.

Thus the results of the conversations which took place at London between Messrs. Daladier and Bonnet on the one hand, and Premier Chamberlain and Lord Halifax on the other, were universally acclaimed here. From all over France a veritable flood of congratulatory telegrams and letters poured in to the officers of the French premier and the foreign minister.

A majority, extending from the right to the left, with the exception of the extreme left, was satisfied with the decisions reached regarding Spain. The extreme left wanted France to seek to persuade Great Britain to make an about-face of its position on this problem. It was urged that the British government openly abandon nonintervention since it had become a fraud in view of the fact that Germany and Italy had openly celebrated the success of their intervention. But on this point, for both factual and ideological reasons, this hoped-for about-face was unattainable.

Withdrawal Of War Materials Achieved.

BUT as a result of the leftists' insistence, the French negotiators did achieve one objective. They persuaded the British to admit the importance of the withdrawal of materials of war from Spain to make "nonintervention" effective. This capital question had until then been completely put to one side.

The French ministers said: "Evacuate the 'volunteers'—that's fine. But the civil war cannot be brought to an end that way. The speediest way to achieve that goal is to withdraw as well the munitions, the cannon, the tanks, the planes which have poured into Spain from abroad. Moreover, the existence of large stocks of arms in Spain, even when the civil war had nominally been brought to an end, would make that land a peril to the peace of Europe and particularly of France. For humanitarian reasons, for Spanish reasons and for reasons of France's security, the evacuation of materials of war from Spain is essential."

With the sole exception of certain left elements, therefore, the Franco-British agreement on Spain was applauded. On the other hand it was the extreme right which alone showed no appreciation of the Franco-British agreement concerning Czechoslovakia.

They have adopted as their slogan: "To stand back of Czechoslovakia is to favor war!" And they developed this theme into the propagandist argument that the friends of Czechoslovakia are the friends of Russia; to defend Czechoslovakia, therefore, is to play the game of the Reds. Thus the Paris weekly, Gringoire, published an article under the heading: "The French Will Not Fight for Czechoslovakia" and on the very same day, Goebbels' organ, Der Angriff reproduced this article on the front page under a no less joyously flamboyant headline.

But all this propaganda was checkmated by the attitude taken by prominent political personalities, even those who like Andre Tardieu are now outside of politics. Tardieu, often a supporter of and not infrequently the inspirer of much rightist propaganda, suddenly discovered that he was one of the fathers of Czechoslovakia since he had helped in the negotiation of the treaty of peace with Germany and Austria. And he then proceeded to come to the defense of Czechoslovakia and to show that for very selfish reasons France was obliged to come to that country's aid if it were attacked.

'Now Or Never' Said Decision Facing French.

IF ONE were to ask Frenchmen whether they were prepared to be killed for Czechoslovakia, the answer would be certain. But that is not the question. The real question for the responsible leaders of France is whether to let Germany annex with impunity and at its leisure one after another of Europe's small states, add to her economic resources, move further and further toward the east and one day, according to the plan adumbrated in "Mein Kampf," attack western Europe at a time when her power had become well nigh irresistible.

That is the problem. Put in these terms at London, it was difficult for the British to refuse to take the initiative in trying to mediate between Berlin and Prague in order to ease tensions in Central Europe. And, by end large, French public opinion was entirely favorable to this effort.

But the events which followed the conversations at London very greatly impressed the French public.

They were quite prepared for Hitler's triumphal voyage to Italy and they had expected spectacular demonstrations and dizzy speeches. They realized that among the Italian masses there has been a great deal of discontent and uneasiness. They anticipated, therefore, that difficulties would arise between the dictators. And they thought they discerned a trace of this in a comparison of the tone of the toasts exchanged in the Palazzo Venezia; The Duce was moderate and appeared to be reticent; the Fuehrer, on the contrary, was full of arrogance.

The French press made much of this presumed opposition, spoke of the weakening of the Berlin-Rome axis, announced the imminent conclusion of the Franco-Italian accord. But these illusions were soon shattered. The speech made by Mussolini at Genoa had the force of a cold shower. The majority of Frenchmen, misled by the commentators, had expected a speech friendly toward France. It proved, on the contrary, a very disagreeable speech indeed, so far as France is concerned.

The reaction was instantaneous. The very newspapers which had most persistently supported the Mussolini policy, even when that policy cut across French policy, admitted that the Duce had gone too far. Even had the Franco-Italian negotiations previously led to a definite agreement, that agreement, by virtue of Mussolini's remarks, would have lost most of its value.

In the meantime Frenchmen are determined to bear whatever additional sacrifices are necessary to strengthen the national defense. The speed with which the great national loan was subscribed is proof of this patriotic determination. It is also not out of the question that, with the aim of strengthening the national defense, the 40-hour law will be modified through agreement with the unions.

Prague's "Brazen Provocations."

IF THE SITUATION which gave it rise were not so deadly serious the world might find no end of amusement in the latest Nazi press campaign against Czechoslovakia.

Certainly few outside of the Third Reich will take seriously the charge voiced by the Voelkischer Beobachter that Czechoslovakia has "acted as a provocateur and played with fire" or the assertion of the Berlin Boersenzeitung that the Prague government was following "a policy of pin pricks" directed against Germany.

To believe those and similar statements being made by the Nazi press is to believe that the Czech leaders have all gone crazy, whereas from President Benes and Premier Hodza down they happen to be among the most sober, level-headed and unprovocative statesmen in Europe.

* * * *

THERE HAPPENS to be no doubt that on Friday night the Prague authorities made a sudden move to ward off a surprise attack. Reservists were called to the colors and garrisons along the German border strengthened. The maneuver was carried out with a sobriety and dispatch that aroused the admiration of the world.

The German press now insists there was not the slightest need of this mobilization of Czech strength for any defense purposes; that, on the contrary, it was definitely designed to create a new "war guilt lie" with Germany again the victim.

Let us examine the record. Over a period of many months Dr. Goebbels' highly active propaganda machine has been engaged in a violent campaign of provocation against Czechoslovakia with the definite purpose of forcing the Prague government to break with its allies, Russia and France, and to become a satellite of the Third Reich.

The springboard of this campaign was the alleged mistreatment of the Sudeten German element in Czechoslovakia. In the Nazi press hardly a day has passed without crocodile tears being shed over the fate of this minority, although, actually, the Sudeten Germans have received far better treatment than that of almost any other minority in Europe.

* * * *

SINCE the union of Germany and Austria this campaign has been carried on with redoubled force. Apparently the presumption obtained for a time in Berlin that, surrounded as she now was on three sides by a greatly enlarged Third Reich, Czechoslovakia's will to independence could quickly and easily be worn down. The fact that Great Britain showed no inclination to render Czechoslovakia any military aid in the event the latter country was attacked and that France appeared to be tied to the British chariot probably were added factors in determining German complacence on this score.

In the course of time, however, the fear began to grow in Paris, London and Prague that Germany was not prepared to wait for Czechoslovakia to fall into her lap, that she might seek to hasten matters either by a show of force or by force itself.

The Berlin government now denies any such intent. But the tenor of German press remarks concerning Czechoslovakia weakens the intended effect of such denials.

* * * *

IN EVERY totalitarian country the press obviously speaks not with its own voice but with the voice of the rulers. Every newspaper in Germany, therefore, must be regarded as the mouthpiece of the regime.

It was thus ominous, to say the least, when practically the entire German press began last week to speak of the "intolerable" situation in Czechoslovakia. It was recalled that precisely the same language had preceded the German march into Austria.

The conclusion was inescapable that Hitler was preparing German public opinion for a sudden thrust in the direction of Czechoslovakia. And this conclusion was fortified by reports of mysterious German troop movements and concentrations along the little republic's border.

To be sure such reports were denied when attention to them was called by the British ambassador at Berlin. But similar denials had been given at the time German troops were actually on the march towards Austria two months ago.

* * * *

BY MONDAY, probably as a result of Czech firmness and British and French pressure on Berlin, the Czechoslovak situation appeared to ease somewhat. In particular the announcement that Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten German leader was conferring with Premier Hodza was welcomed as a sign of hope. But the breathing spell proved only temporary.

During the last few days the Nazi press campaign against Czechoslovakia has flared up anew and to more extreme heights than ever. But the emphasis this time has been somewhat different. The keynote now is "the brazen war-like provocations of a great power by a small one."

This has an ominous resemblance to the charges made by Italy in 1935 that Ethiopia was attacking her, by Japan last year that it was not she but China that was the aggressor. Is the parallel to hold good in the case of Germany and Czechoslovakia as well?

The fact that Dr. Goebbels' own organ, the Angriff, speaks of the Prague regime as a "government whose reason for existence is doubtful enough" certainly suggests that an attack on Czechoslovakia by the Third Reich cannot be dismissed as a possibility.

On the other hand there is also the interesting circumstance to be taken into account that the German press attacks on Czechoslovakia are now accompanied by abuse of Great Britain as well. Despite Premier Chamberlain's generous gesture in disclaiming any particular credit for the easing of the situation in Central Europe and in attributing a fair share to German moderation, Hitler's journalistic mouthpieces are lashing out furiously against the London government for the part it played in the latest European crisis.

Britain, it is said, deliberately created a war scare in order to create the "legend of the rescue of peace," as the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung puts it.

It is difficult not to deduce from this anti-British attitude of the Nazi press that Britain's intervention in the Czechoslovakian crisis may have been crucial and that this intervention went beyond a mere homily to the Nazi leaders to be good.

If this is the case, if Great Britain is really prepared to be hard-boiled with the Reich rather than prepared to give it the earth with a white fence around it, the Czechoslovak crisis may prove to be the real turning point in European affairs which some say it is. But of that we cannot be sure.

After all, Great Britain has permitted herself to indulge in other shows of strength, at the time of the Nyon anti-piracy policy for instance, only to retreat soon after.

A Better Job

By Sigmund Spaeth.

The Young Arnstadt Organist.

"OUR ORGANIST—what is the young man's name—oh, yes, Johann Sebastian Bach! He seems badly in need of discipline. We gave him a month's leave of absence that he hight hear the great Dietrich Buxtehude in Lubeck. It is now three months since he left, and we hear nothing of him."

These ominous words are spoken by one of the deacons of the new church in Arnstadt, where Bach has been employed since his eighteenth year.

"Remember he has to walk over 200 miles each way. That takes time," suggests a milder pillar of the church.

"Not three months," insisted the first speaker. "Besides the lad is strong and has had good practice in walking."

There is considerable discussion of what should be done to this independent young musician who three years ago had won the post of organist and choirmaster by a brilliant display of musicianship which left them all gasping for breath. It is decided that there must be at the very least a "citation," meaning a formal complaint, demanding explanation of his conduct, with hints of possible dismissal.

The Arnstadt citation convinced young Bach that he should look for work elsewhere, and he had no difficulty in winning a competition for the post of organist at St. Blasius Church in Muhlhausen. The salary was less than at Arnstadt, but to its 85 gulden were added 12 bushels of corn, two cords of wood, six trusses of brushwood and three pounds of fish, with the loan of a cart to transport his belongings.

Church's Head Fears Tyranny Has Hit U. S.

Freedom of Speech and Worship Threatened, Presbyterians Hear.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 26.—The Rev. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, N. J., retiring moderator, in his sermon today at the Presbyterian General Assembly, declared "there are evidences that the same tyrannies that have swept across Europe and that now are surging over Asia, are beginning to threaten our precious liberties—the freedom of worship, the freedom of speech and the freedom of assembly."

Opening the 150th General Assembly, Dr. Foulkes said:

"Into the face of crafty and sinister foes—parading Caesars who proclaim their totalitarianism of dominion and power—the crucified and risen Christ flings His one and only resource, 'I will build my church.'"

Dr. Foulkes said the seven preliminary principles adopted by the synods of New York and Philadelphia in 1788 have a "remarkable relevancy to the contemporary scene."

Quoting one of these principles, "God alone is Lord of the conscience," he added:

"Let that word be said again to the leaders and the marshaled hosts of the new paganism that has arisen out of our secularized, mechanized civilization; to the dictators who are arrogating to themselves the powers and prerogatives of deity . . . 'God alone is the Lord of our consciences.'

"Let us not forget, in this connection, those of our Christian brethren—and, one dares to add, those of our Jewish brethren—for whom it is a matter of life and death to utter such a creed."

Dr. Foulkes said that "the church has lost no little of its divine militancy."

The assembly opens tomorrow for its business sessions. Among the proposals to be considered is one requiring all ministers to retire at 70 years of age.

Among other speakers today was the Rev. Joseph Nowak, of Baltimore, who said that unless the church forsakes its "middle class aspirations" and "shows a more sympathetic attitude toward labor," workers will turn to leaders who will build here a country having in it "no more Christianity than Germany or Russia."

Eliot Resigns Post As Pension Counsel

Thomas H. Eliot, of Boston, has resigned as general counsel of the Social Security Board, the White House announced yesterday.

In his letter of resignation Eliot gave no reason for leaving the Government service, but he did say:

"In tendering my resignation I want to assure you of my continuing deep interest in the social security program and in the humanitarian objectives of your Administration."

Eliot's resignation was dated May 17. Accepting it May 23 and beginning with "Dear Tom," the President said Eliot had had the "rare experience of seeing the principle of social security grow from the status of a social idea to a complete and full acceptance of that idea by the American people."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Story of a Dismissal.

A pathetic story is sent in by U. F. W. A., Local 17, as follows:

On Monday, Herman Miller, an employe at the Social Security Boarwd at Baltimore, was dismissed on the grounds that he had falsified his age on an application filed seven years ago.

This arbitrary and sudden dismissal came at a time when Miller was in particularly dire financial straits. Mrs. Miller became afflicted with tuberculosis last year and there was considerable expense incident to her illness. The couple has a 3-months' old baby to support.

The clerk affected applied for a civil service position in 1931 and although he was 17 years and 5 months old at the time, mistakenly entered his age as 18. He had been employed by the Social Security Board for the past 18 months and had received an efficiency rating of very good. In fact, during this time, he had received a promotion.

On Tuesday, the adjustment committee of Local 17, U. F. W. A., met with representatives of the Baltimore Social Security Board and protested against the dismissal. At the union's request, the board agreed to write a letter to the Civil Service Commission detailing Miller's splendid record, and on the basis of his outstanding performance, expressing a hope that he be retained as an employe of the board. The union also has asked the Civil Service Commission here for an appointment in order to discuss the case.

And the above case is one of many where the close eye of the Government fixes, at however long last, on the records of all. It is far better to put the exact facts on the applications—even though the facts appear a little to your disadvantage—than to record something else. For they are certain to make much of the slightest misstatement.

The growth of Federal credit unions is interesting—enrollment now has passed the half-million mark, although it is still less than four years since the first one was chartered. More than 2,700 charters have been issued since the Federal act was passed in 1934. About 90 per cent of all Federal Credit Unions operate in business or Government employe groups, while, on the other hand, churches, lodges and labor unions are showing a lively interest in the value of co-operative credit to their members, it is pointed out by C. R. Orchard, director of the credit union's activities in the FCA. Returns from 2,153 of the credit organizations showed total year-end assets of $18,518,000, he disclosed.

Dr. Hrdlicka Goes On New Expedition To Aleutian Isles

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology at Smithsonian Institution, once more is en route to the Aleutian Islands to search for human remains along what is considered one of the original migration pathways into North America, the institution announced yesterday.

Last year, Dr. Hrdlicka discovered evidence of a separate type of people antedating present inhabitants of the islands. These were of an oblong-headed race, with both Indian and Eskimo resemblances, he reported.

Occupation of the islands by this earlier people apparently was considerably longer than that of the present race—the Aleuts.

Some of the blood of these oblong-headed people, Dr. Hrdlicka believes, still exists among present inhabitants. Remains of the same type were found some years ago on Kodiak Island.

The entire Aleutian region, he contends, can be looked upon as a "nursery of peoples"—of related strains of Asiatics from which either the pronounced Eskimo or typical Indian could easily have developed.

Engravers Beat Tax on Lunch to Keep Ball Team

Bureau of Engraving and Printing employes voted down, by 2,300 to 1,600 a proposition that they pay a 1-cent tax on each lunch they eat in the bureau cafeteria, the tax to have been applied to the recreation fund. The recreation fund largely means the baseball team fund.

Statisticians among them estimated that the tax would have netted $10,000 a year. The cafeteria is operated by a group of employes and is not a part of the chain of cafeterias operated in the Federal buildings here by the Welfare Recreation Association.

The opposition also considered that some of the employes don't eat in the cafeteria and that the burden of supporting the ball team would be placed on those who do eat there.

Ritz Brothers Reach Stardom In Crazy Film

'Kentucky Moonshine' at the Capitol Tomorrow. Other Programs.

Those incredible Ritz Brother rise to stardom in "Kentucky Moonshine," the new Twentieth Century-Fox comedy to be presented as chief screen feature of the bill at Loew's Capitol Theater, beginning tomorrow. The story of three "ham" actors and a young singer, who disguise themselves as hillbillies in the Cumberland Mountains in order to be "discovered" for a sponsored radio program in New York, is a completely goofy one, but it does hang together and permits the stars to undertake sustained characterizations for the first time. They introduce some convulsing burlesques in the closing sequences of the picture and are supported on the musical side by Tony Martin and Marjorie Weaver. Others in support include Slim Summerville, John Carradine, Wally Vernon, Berton Churchill, Eddie Collins and many more. On the stage, the entertainment will be supplied by Abe Lyman and His Orchestra and California Revue—one of the most popular attractions of its kind playing Washington.

So great has been the enthusiasm over the Warner Brothers' Technicolor production of "The Adventures of Robin Hood" and its atmospheric stage bill that the entire program will be continued for a second week at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow. Errol Flynn, Olivia De Haviland, Basil Rathbone, Claude Rains, Eugene Pallette, Alan Hale, Melville Cooper, Montagu Love, Robert Warwick and hundred more contribute to the supreme excellence of this fast-moving and engrossing subject. It embodies every element of mass appeal, plus the best natural color photography ever brought to the screen. On the stage bill are the Albertina Rasch Dancers, the Brown Twins, Carole Manners, Bob Dupont and the Hurst Foursome.

"The Adventures of Marco Polo," Samuel Goldwyn's newest spectacle-drama, starring Gary Cooper, with Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone, H. B. Warner, Alan Hale, George Barbier, Binnie Barnes, Ernest Truex and scores more, will continue as the major screen offering at Loew's Palace Theater for a second week, beginning tomorrow. This is one of Goldwyn's most magnificent productions that starts slowly, but ends in a cyclone of action. The supplementary features also are being held over.

With Lola Lane playing the title role, "Torchy Blane in Panama" comes to the Metropolitan Theater tomorrow for a week's engagement as chief screen feature of the bill. Torchy Blane is a girl reporter in this Warner Brothers release. Paul Kelly, Tom Kennedy, Anthony Averill and others appear in important supporting roles. The story has its inception in New York with a robbery and then moves to Panama with Torchy hot on the trail of the culprits. Humor and adventure are said to be blended in an agreeable mixture.

At the Little Theater, for the week beginning Sunday, the bill will have a completely Latin-American flavor. The chief feature of the program will be a revival of "The Gay Desperado," starring Nino Martini, with Leo Carrillo and Ida Lupino leading the support. The picture abounds in tuneful music. The companion attraction will be "The Wave," Paul Strand's classic of the Mexican fisherfolk, which will be held over for a second week.

Four short subjects will feature the new bill opening at the Trans-Lux Theater tomorrow—"Sleeping City," a Paramount pictorial; a new release in the "Stranger Than Fiction" series; "Jungle Glimpses," a travelogue, and Walt Disney's Silly Symphony, "Cock of the Walk." The bill will be based, as usual, on complete newsreel coverage of the world.

Acclaimed by aviation experts as the most authentic picture of the flying game ever filmed, "Test Pilot," starring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, with Lionel Barrymore and Samuel S. Hinds leading the support, will return to the Columbia Theater tomorrow for a repeat engagement, making its fourth week on F street. The film play is based on a story by Lieut. Commander Frank Wead.

The big news from Glen Echo Park this week is that the Crystal Pool, one of the finest natatoria in the country, will open for the summer season on Saturday of this week, at noon. Thereafter, aquatic sports may be enjoyed from 9:30 a. m., to 11 p. m., daily. Boyd Hickman, former G. W. star athlete, will serve for the fifth consecutive year as pool director. All of the other 50-odd amusements at the free-admission amusement center will, of course, continue in operation and furnish entertainment for all classes and all ages, with Henry Halstead and his orchestra supplying the dance music in the Spanish Garden Ballroom.

"Look Out for Live," starring Anna Neagle, will continue on the screen at the Belasco Theater through Saturday of this week. Beginning Sunday, a double bill of revivals will be presented, when both "The Life and Loves of Beethoven" and "Mayerling" will be included in the same program. Both are foreign-made pictures of the first rank, "Mayerling" having achieved especial acclaim with Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux in the costellar roles.

By virtue of the interpolated Washington scene in which it is given prominent mention, the Parent-Teacher Association will sponsor the engagement of the Civic Theater's production of ". . . one third of a nation . . ." the "Living Newspaper on Housing," now being presented nightly at the Wardman Park Theater. The engagement will continue through Saturday night.

The Wilson Line steamer City of Washington continues its daily trips to Mount Vernon and nightly cruises down the river on its fixed schedules. Dancing to music by Sidney's Orchestra, under the conductorship of Russ Cullen, continues one of the major diversions of these nightly excucsion miles down the Potomac and back.

Ginger Rogers and James Stewart Score Laughs In 'Vivacious Lady,' New RKO-Keith Screen Hit

Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn and James Ellison Render Fine Support in Romantic Farce; "The March of Time" Significant; "Robin Hood" Holdover Shatters Precedent; Notes of the Theater.

IT is not always vivacious, but it is a consistently amusing, and at times slightly risque, comedy that was revealed on the screen at RKO-Keith's yesterday, when RKO-Radio's production of "Vivacious Lady" was presented for the first time in Washington.

BELL.

The humor of this subject, which costars Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, is founded on sharp contrasts in personality and points of view, with a star of the New York night clubs on one side of the conflict and the scholastic dignitaries of a staid co-ed college town on the other. When the young professor of botany, whose life has been lived under the strict domination of his father, the president of the institution of higher learning in which he serves on the faculty, attempts to rescue a bibulous cousin from the pitfalls of metropolitan gay life, he meets and falls in love with the beautiful young woman who sings and dances in the floor show at the night spot where Keith Morgan is attempting to exhaust the liquor supply. They are married that same night, this diffident young man and the unabashed and vivacious young lady.

Returning to Old Sharon, Peter Morgan finds it a bit beyond his resourcefulness to discover a means of breaking the news of his marriage to his parents. President Morgan is so bound up in his devotion to his official duties, the traditions of his college and the fetich of impeccable respectability that he has no time to listen to his son's plea that he has an important piece of news to impart to the family. Mrs. Morgan, the mother, is addicted to convenient "heart attacks" which her family believe to be real instead of merely escapes from unpleasant domestic situations.

From this combination of circumstances is evolved a quietly played, but immensely provocative, romantic farce. There are implications, from time to time, that one must remember that marriage ceremony in New York to condone all that happens. Everyone at Old Sharon mistakes "Francey" for a single girl who has merely come down with the boys on a questionable sort of lark.

As the play progresses, the difficulty of breaking the news becomes more and more acute, until the elder Mrs. Morgan happens upon the truth, takes sides with the youngsters and leaves her husband as an unconscionable tyrant whom she no longer can stand after 28 years of submitting to his bigotry. "Francey" leaves her husband, too, because there seems to be nothing else to do. The denouement of all this is not the least amusing period of the play.

Instead of being continuously a "vivacious lady," Ginger Rogers here largely paces her playing to the deliberate tempo always characteristic of James Stewart's work before the cameras. In doing this, the talented Miss Rogers, who no longer can be looked upon as a mere dancing star, proves herself a comedienne of rich resource and subtlety. She seemed to these eyes to be perfectly teamed with the elongated and baffled Mr. Stewart.

The stars have been surrounded with a particularly able cast, led by Beulah Bondi, as the understanding mother; Charles Coburn, as the austere prexy, and James Ellison, in the role of the thirsty young man who could do with "Francey" himself if she can't make a go of it with Cousin Peter. Miss Bondi, as always, does an admirable piece of serio-comic work and Charles Coburn, who made his film debut no longer ago than in "Of Human Hearts," is wholly convincing as the hardshell elder Morgan. Frances Mercer contributes an ominous note as a feminine "menace" and sparring partner for Miss Rogers and Franklin Pangborn and Grady Sutton are prominent in several scenes.

The story of "Vivacious Lady" was adapted by P. J. Wolfson and Ernest Pagano from a tale by I. A. R. Wylie and was directed by George Stevens. It kept yesterday afternoon's second audience in an almost continuous roar of laughter—so continuous, in fact, that I missed what were probably some of the best lines in the script.

I am afraid Mr. Meakin has another hit on his hands.

* * * *

Also on the new bill at Keith's is the latest release of the "March of Time," in which three topics of vital interest are dissected with "Time's" customary thoroughness. "Racketeers vs. Housewives" depicts in what manner retail buyers are mulcted out of millions of dollars a year by unscrupulous dealers; "Britain's Bankrupt Peers" gives an illuminating insight into the consequences of exorbitant taxation in England and "Friend of the People" affords a foretaste of the November congressional elections and what a member of the House of Representatives is up against. This and an interesting issue of the Pathe News complete a thoroughly enjoyable bill for those who like to laugh.

* * * *

There is more to the announcement of the continuation of the engagement of "The Adventures of Robin Hood" through a second week at the Earle Theater than meets the eye in the brief announcement appearing in another column on this page (I hope) today.

Never before since the inauguration of the present Earle policy of combination screen and stage programs in 1930 has a picture been held for a second week on Thirteenth street. This breaking of precedent has been forced by public demand.

This is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that five de luxe performances, with six showings of the picture, have been given daily since its opening last Friday, instead of the customary four. All have played to capacity audiences.

In holding this magnificent Technicolor production a second week, the Earle merely is keeping step with the Radio City Music Hall, in New York; the Chicago Theater, in Chicago; the Stanley Theater, in Baltimore, and 322 other motion picture houses throughout the country in all of which the picture has been held a second week, or more. "Robin Hood" thus has established a company record for holdover bookings.

By a stroke of good fortune, it has been found possible to continue this week's stage bill along with the film play which it so handsomely embellishes. Ordinarily, the vagaries of vaudeville booking being what they are, this can not be done. Zone Manager John J. Payette of the Warner Brothers interests must have a rabbit's foot, or a horse shoe, or something, in his pocket.

Where are the five American soldiers who, 40 years ago, during the Spanish-American War, thrilled the world by submitting to the mosquito bites that paved the way for the conquering of the dread "yellow jack" that killed more soldiers than all the battles combined. Maj. Walter Reed is remembered as the hero of the conquest of yellow fever, but the names of Robert P. Cooke, Levi E. Folk, Warren Gladstone Jerehan, John Kissenger and John F. Moran have become largely obscured in the passing of two score years. They were the "human guinea pigs." If they or their descendants will communicate with Ray Bell—no relation—of the loewcal Loew organization, they will learn something to their advantage having to do with the early presentation of the M-G-M production of "Yellow Jack" on the screen at either Loew's Palace or Capitol.

Proving herself as effective a comedienne as she was dramatic actress in "Stage Door," Ginger Rogers scores another hit in "Vivacious Lady," which opened yesterday on the screen at RKO-Keith's. James Stewart is cast in the opposite role, with Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn and James Ellison leading the support. The story is an amusing one of the night clubs and a staid old college town.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 25.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON a short, gray-haired man tried to roll skee-balls in one of the alleys in Coney Island's Bowery. Next door was a Musee featuring the wax figure of Robert Irwin, the confessed slayer of the Gedeon women . . . The gray-haired man played for 15 minutes and then called the owner . . . "If you want to put up a sign, saying that I play here on Sundays, between 2 and 5, it's okay by me," he suggested . . . "Yeah?" the owner replied. "And who are you?" . . . The player pointed to the Irwin exhibit. "I," he informed, "am Mr. Gedeon."

DISTRICT ATTORNEY DEWEY is asking some judges to hold court during the summer and preside at a few cases he wants to try . . . Dewey, incidentally, thereby would remain in the limelight during the summer, and might stampede the Republican convention in September . . . Clifford Odets is writing a new play which will concern Wall Street. It will be strongly pro-Administration.

* * * *

ERNEST LUBITSCH last night explained why he won't produce another Mae West picture . . . When they were associated in their last film, Lubitsch complained about the script Mae had written. "You haven't given enough lines to Victor McLaglen," Lubitsch declared. "After all, McLaglen is a star, too, and he should have some lines to speak" . . . "I'm the star, and I'm writing this story," Miss West replied . . . "That's all right," the producer agreed, "but in every story there are parts for two players. Look at 'Romeo and Juliet'" . . . "Well," shrugged Mae West, "that was Shakespeare's technique!"

BENNETT CERF, who published the President's book, discussed a new circulation idea with Justice Sam Rosenman, who collaborated with the President in editing the subject-matter. "Here's what we're going to try to do," Cerf informed. "We're going to try and put the President's book on every battleship in the United States Navy." "What?" interrupted Mrs. Rosenman, "No destroyers?" . . . Johnny Palaue, the sad-faced runt in Borah Minevitch's band, will join the orchestra of Mike Reilly—the co-author of "Music Goes Round" . . . Assistant District Attorneys Grimes and Gelb will prosecute the case against Dixie Davis.

BILL HARD, the former newspaper man who now is secretary of the Republican national program committee, walked into a Washington hotel where John L. Lewis just had finished his lunch . . . Hard sat down at Lewis' table and chatted with the C. I. O. leader—while he finished his meal and paid his 85-cent check with a $10 bill . . . The waitress returned the change, and during the conversation, Lewis absent-mindedly started to pocket the money . . . Hard grabbed his arm. "Now wait a minute, John," he warned. "You can't pull the check-off on a nonmember."

* * * *

THE NEUTRALITY BILL'S embargo now has been applied to banning the shipment of a bullet-proof car for the use of the President of the Spanish Republic . . . Irwin Steingut, minority leader of the Assembly at Albany, held a secret consultation with Sidney Hillman at the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' convention in Atlantic City last week. Steingut wants an American Labor Party indorsement . . . Bea Kalmus resumes her song career at the Famous Door tonight . . . The movie scout who reported on the possibilities of Hiram Sherman, of the Mercury Theater, told his employers that Sherman wasn't funny in the show. The scout neglected to add that he had viewed Sherman in the role of Casca—in "Julius Coesar."

WHEN THE NEAR-HURRICANE hit the City of Fresno, in California, some editors—who knew that William Saroyan, the writer, lives in that city—phoned him the next day to try and get his report . . . "I'm sorry," Saroyan confessed, "but I don't know anything about it" . . . The puzzled editors weren't being kidded . . . Saroyan really knew nothing about the storm. He had been indoors all night long, until 8 a. m.—playing in a stud-poker game.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., May 25.—Maybe I'm wrong. But I believe it's news when an industry like the motion-picture business, with all its varied ramifications, makes a valiant effort to take care of its sick and unfortunate.

HEDDA HOPPER

Actors have always been the first to offer their services and money for war, famine or disaster. The hundreds of stars and featured players here could, by giving a couple of benefits a year, take care of their own people. But the Motion Picture Relief Fund prefers doing it another way. They ask one-half of 1 per cent from everyone earning a salary of $100 a week or more. If everyone signed up, that would be enough. Most of them have. But a few of the biggest—getting around $5,000 a week—haven't.

In my opinion, they shouldn't be asked to sign a pledge—it should be compulsory.

In almost every magazine you see pictures of beautiful homes, cars, jewels—that's Hollywood on parade. But for each one of these there's a back bedroom in a bungalow court, with a broken heart, dreams gone smash and health with them. These are the people being taken care of—over 500 a month, and it's steadily growing.

The fund gets 15 per cent from all benefits where actors give their services free. However, there are still a few abuses, such as stars going on the radio free. But that will be taken care of.

The fund executives expect to add $15,000 a year by selling postage stamps from fan mail. Many foreigners inclose stamps for return letters, which, of course, can't be used. Those stamps sell here like hot cakes to collectors. Another source of revenue is the selling of clothes donated by stars.

And bless them, even actors' managers are giving, which is like finding the end of the rainbow.

Maude Adams has now departed from the old Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica, which used to be the private residence of Senator Jones, who donated the land for the Soldiers' Home in Sawtelle. It was his wife who helped plant a double row of eucalyptus trees on Wilshire boulevard. Barrels of water on horse-drawn trucks were used to water them. Thirty years later she watched them being mowed down like great generals, for our modern highway, which now speeds us 50 miles an hour to the sea. Had the trees remained, traffic would have been cut in half. You can't whisk through beauty at that pace—or can you?

Two years ago I dined with Mrs. Jones and her daughter in a tiny house in New York. And with the pride and courage which has kept her alive for over 80 years she showed me portraits of five generations on her drawing-room walls. I mustn't ramble like this—I was talking about Maude Adams.

Few traces of Peter Pan remain.

She was a shy, gentle, retiring, rather plump little old lady—hair turning white. Movie producers hoped, until the very last moment, that she'd change her mind and do a part in "Young in Heart." But it's my belief she's been away from professional life too long to be able to go back and mingle with so many people.

U. S. Educators Of Blind, Deaf Meet on Funds

Studebaker Tells Session Here Vocational Training Should Be Specific.

Means of obtaining a share of Federal vocational funds for residential schools for the blind, deaf and socially handicapped children of the Nation were discussed yesterday at closing sessions of the conference for heads of these schools at the Office of Education.

Dr. John W. Studebaker, Commissioner of Education, said vocational training should be specific and that all education should be guided by what students will use in later life.

The afternoon session, presided over by Dr. Bess Goodykoontz, assistant commissioner, was given over to the working out of a program whereby the schools represented would have a closer co-ordination with the Office of Education.

Several of the school heads asked help of the Office of Education in getting readers for children of low intelligence quotients. The need, they said, is for stories with real punch, written in very simple words.

Dr. Goodykoontz said that the new division of occupations and guidance would be glad to work with the schools on these and other problems peculiar to the handicapped fields.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Just as golfers have their favorite type club, indeed their favorite shots, so the average bridge player, either consciously or subconsciously, prefers one kind of play over another. Most of them, for example, have a deep seated dislike for trump suits of less than five cards in one hand. When they themselves hold only four trumps, although dummy also has four, their sense of insecurity is apparent. The same thing often applies to notrump. I cannot name the precise complex (perhaps phobia) that attacks the inexperienced player who finds himself in a touchy three notrump contract, but the fact remains that he is not at his best in this department of the game. Yet notrump play offers no inherent difficulties, and indeed certain hazards present in trump contracts (adverse ruffs, for example) are happily absent. Usually the most important feature of notrump play is rapid suit establishment. Consider the following hand:

South, dealer.

♠ A Q 9 4
♡ 10 8 5
◇ J 6 4
♣ 10 9 5

West		East
♠ 7 6 2	North	♠ K 10 5 3
♡ J 7 4 3	West East	♡ K 9 2
◇ 8 7	South	◇ K 10 9
♣ A 6 3 2		♣ 8 7 4

♡ A Q 6
♣ K Q J

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 N T	Pass
Pass	Pass

North was not highly enthusiastic about his own last bid but properly refused to "hang" one short of game.

West opened the three of hearts and declarer captured East's king. Now, at the second play, declarer proved that he knew very little about notrump technique. Instead of going about the establishment of his diamond suit he wasted a precious tempo on taking the spade finesse—a play that could certainly have waited. The spade jack was led and passed. East won and returned a heart. Declarer ducked and West's jack won. A heart was returned, declarer winning with the queen. Success had now slipped from the declarer's grasp. The diamond suit was still unestablished and, when East took the lead with his diamond stopper, a club return to West's ace gave the defenders a total of five tricks (one spade, two hearts, one diamond and one club).

After winning the first heart lead declarer should have concentrated on his diamond suit establishment. It would have been quite all right, and good technique, to have laid down one club honor, but after that declarer should have led a low diamond from his own hand, toward dummy's jack. He could not afford to take the spade finesse, nor to take out dummy's spade ace at an early stage. Once four diamond tricks were established, declarer could have "played around" with the club and spade suits, and it would have been a simple matter to have taken nine tricks.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys—How To Get Happy Relief

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Dewey Arrests Tammany Boss

Hines

moned Hines to his office and had him arrested, too, him before Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora for arraignment.

Dewey asked $50,000 bail, explaining that the indictment in the case would show that Hines "and others conspired to force all policy game (lottery) operations into a single combination by force, violence and intimidation."

He said Hines' arrest was the result of three years of investigation of the "Dutch Schultz gang" and its ramifications.

The "numbers" game is regarded as a $100,000,000 racket by which hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers, chiefly in Harlem, are mulcted out of huge sums. Lottery tickets are sold for nominal sums in various kinds of winning combinations from three numbers selected from race track betting totals, Treasury receipts or similar uncontrolled figures.

The "take" of the racket bosses is enormous, due to the almost astronomical odds against winning, but the lottery has been heavily patronized for years in New York City.

Dewey told Judge Pecora that Hines was the "higher figure" he had been seeking for three years.

"I am prepared to prove," the young district attorney, who was elected last fall on a reform ticket, told the court, "that his man at 10:15 o'clock this morning advised a potential witness in this case to leave his home and go to a hotel and remain there under an assumed name and in hiding until, as he put it, 'this thing blows over.'"

Dewey said Hines received from $500 to $1,000 a week as his share of the proceeds of the racket.

Judge Pecora commented that $50,000 bail was "too high," since no indictment had been returned, and set bail at $20,000. Hines was released on the lower figure.

For years Hines, tall, gray-haired former blacksmith, was known as the "power behind the throne" in the reign of Boss John F. Curry of Tammany Hall, and he recently acquired national influence in Democratic affairs when he backed the Roosevelt Administration against the other district leaders of Tammany.

He became known as a strong "pro-Roosevelt" man before the Chicago convention of 1932, and has been a powerful patronage dispenser since.

Hines met his first real defeat last year when he failed to keep Martin J. Haley, his ally, in office as leader of the Nineteenth District. James J. Dooling, chief of the district leaders, forced the ouster.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

When Long-Time Suitor Talks Vaguely of Marriage, But Evades Explicit Planning, What Is Girl to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The boy friend is 40 and I am 33. We have been seeing each other almost every night for four years, and have a tentative agreement that we'll probably marry some day, but actually, I am very doubtful about the whole matter. The best way to describe our association is to say we have become a fixture with each other. The point I should like to establish in my mind is whether we should continue "as is," (which we could very easily do) or whether I should begin to pull up stakes and eventually terminate the friendship.

* * * *

After such a long association it seems hard to visualize life without him and yet I don't believe we are suited to each other. We never quarrel about anything because we dislike arguments and have agreed to disagree on controversial topics. We seem to have few interests in common and have adjusted this difference by my giving up this, and giving in to that, in accordance with his wishes, but it has begun to dawn on me that I am making a fool of myself and benefiting neither of us.

* * * *

On the other hand, he has many fine qualities and has been so good to me all these years that I don't know whether I would be wise to give him up. He has stood by with apparent devotion, rendering helpful assistance, through quite a number of adversities, personal illnesses, deaths in the family, etc., which puts him in the position of being my most dependable friend. For his part (or so he says) he wouldn't know what to do without me, as I am the only woman he has ever known who would put up with his peculiarities.

* * * *

I think insofar as he is capable of loving anybody, he loves me, but the trouble is that he is so self-sufficient, and has lived his own life without regard for others' opinions for so many years, that it just doesn't occur to him to realize how his attitude makes me feel. He will go out of his way to give sympathy and assistance to others, but will accept nothing of the sort for himself. If you offer him sympathy for any reason he will say, "Skip it," and if you offer assistance of any sort that may be needed, he is often downright rude in his refusal.

* * * *

The whole situation is very confusing when I try to give it serious thought. He often speaks of marriage, but always in the future tense, and when I mention the pleasure one must derive from having a home, he replies, "Here, now, let's not go domestic." Incidentally, he ran away from home when he was 16 and his wife ran off with another man after two years of marriage. He holds a responsible position with a salary entirely adequate to marriage (if $500 a month be considered adequate). His only real interest in life seems to be his job. He has often broken dates with me to work until 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning (which fact I know positively to be true, and not just an excuse). What would you advise me to do? Your comments will be appreciated. JILL.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR JILL: As I see it, this situation will never be completely resolved until another man enters the picture. If confronted with a final choice between marrying you and losing you to some other man, I dare say your quasi-fiance would, with inner reluctance and outward alacrity, march you off to the altar. But the real question is this: If you, on the other hand, were confronted with an alternate choice of husband, would you turn down that chance in favor of this man? In my opinion it is problematic, to say the least.

* * * *

It appears to me that this man's principal merit in your scheme of things is—and has been—the fact, merely, that he is a man—a sort of scenic prop for filling in the background of your life, and around whom you have built an increasingly unsatisfactory illusion of congenial companionship. It is probable that almost any other male of the species, of contemporary age and comparable achievement, chosen at random and substituted in his place, would have filled the bill about as well.

* * * *

It is very significant that, after four years' association, you should find yourself groping to the conclusion that these four years have been wasted years; that you have been "making a fool" of yourself; and that the relationship has yielded little, if anything, of constructive import to either. It suggests, to me, that this has been a case of asking for bread and getting a stone instead; of tending barren soil in season and out of season, hoping against hope for an eventual yield that is not automatically forthcoming. It suggests that you have been, all along, closing your inner eyes tightly, and crossing your fingers tensely, against the bitter truth that this man is NOT the adequate answer to your emotional and social needs and expectations.

* * * *

So far as your needs are concerned, he seems to be a grabbed-at and elusive makeshift, and it is likely that, as his wife (supposing you are able, eventually, to annex him as a husband) you would find yourself as baffled, heart-hungry and uncertain, as alien in understanding and interests, as you have been as his sweetheart. You would probably find yourself thinking, with cynical sympathy, of his former wife and imagining you understood the reasons why she had abandoned him, after two years, for another man.

* * * *

There is but one intelligent, foresighted course of action for a woman in your position to pursue, and that is to acquire other equally eligible and more matrimonially minded suitors. You are selling yourself too cheaply to this man; letting him suppose the cards are, and forever will be, stacked entirely in his favor; that you always will be there, his for the taking when, as and if it suits his lordship's pleasure to bestow the honor of wifehood upon you. I think it is mistaken kindness to him and gross injustice to yourself to permit the association to "continue 'as is'" and that, while it may not be necessary to "terminate the friendship," it is certainly imperative to lift it out of its present dead level of stagnation. Which, of course, can only be done by opening the doors of your life to other masculine friendships and letting the strong wind of rival competition clear the vapors which currently cloud the vision of both of you concerning your need of and intentions toward each other. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

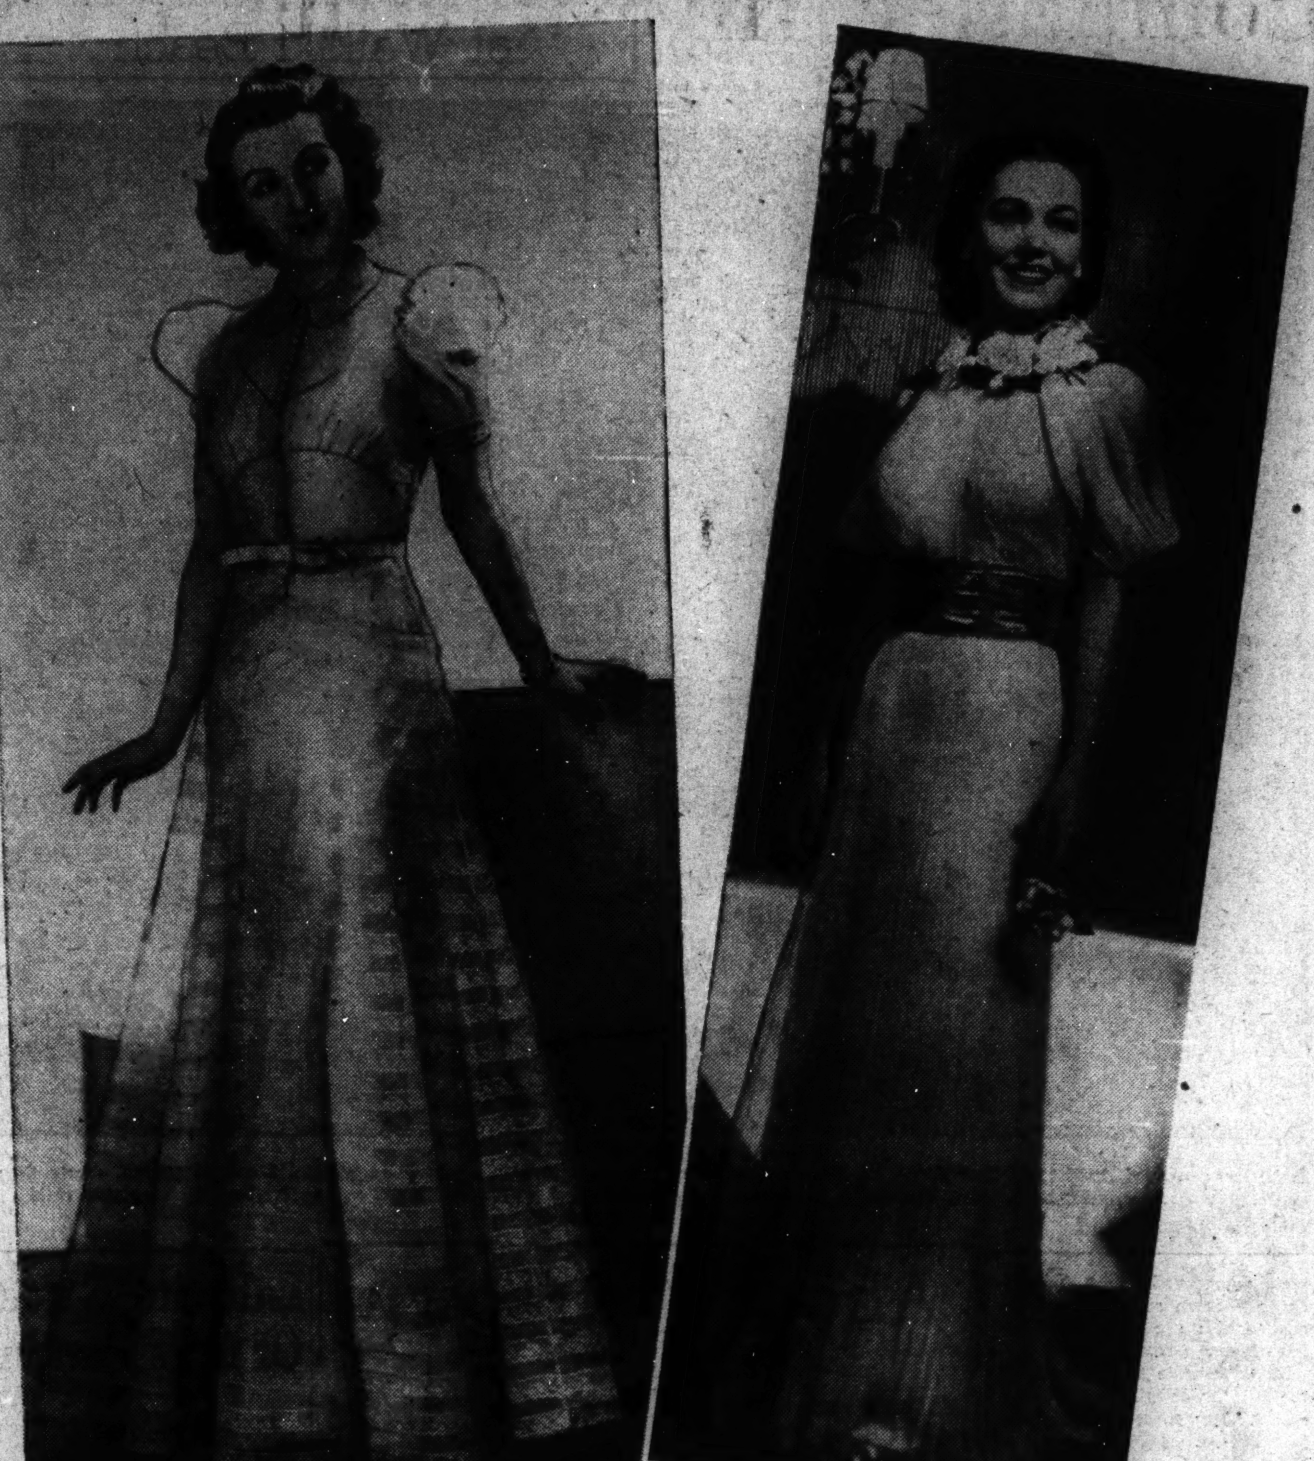
White For Graduation And Summer Dancing



WHITE marquisette with rows and rows of val lace on the wide skirt fashions this charming shirtwaist dress, suitable for graduation and later for summer dances. Posed by Dorothy Thomas, N. B. C. radio singer. At right, is a white pleated chiffon gown, more feminine in styling, with softly draped bodice and sleeves; worn by Maureen O'Sullivan. Note wide belt and clever arrangement of gardenias about the throat.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

High Society.

"Honestly, aren't society people a scream? . . . They give me the biggest laugh. I simply don't see how they can take it all so seriously. I'd be bored to death.

"Did you see Marie Nitter at the Sniffin tea? . . . Oh, you got her too, did you? . . . I never saw such a social climber in all my life . . . Did you see her talking to old Mrs. Mackerel? . . . She'll never get to first base there . . . Besides, why should anybody run after the Mackerels? . . . Who are they? After all, what have they got? . . . Oh, some money, and of course they've been here forever, but when it comes down to real breeding, . . . or brains well, what are they?

"The whole thing about society is it's so artificial. And where does it get you? . . . Nowhere! . . . Unless of course you've got a lot of money . . . And even then it's such a horrible bore.

"Say, another one that's a social climber is Marjorie Chitt . . . You know I can't understand how on earth a girl of her intelligence would be that way . . . And after all where does it get her? . . . What? . . . You don't mean SHE was at the Blinks dinner? . . . Well of course the Blinks aren't what you'd call real society anyway. They just run with that little smart crowd of newcomers.

"Of course as far as that's concerned anybody can get in society if they try hard enough. I know I could go a lot of places I don't go if I really wanted to . . . but I loathe it. The people are all so insincere . . . you know it's simply nothing but a cut-throat game.

"I can't even understand why people with money would care about society . . . I'd think they'd want to live simply . . . and be themselves. And it's so tiresome. Take this entertaining . . . and these teas. There's nothing on earth as big a bore as a tea . . . unless it's a garden party. Those things just get me down.

Of course I don't say there aren't some very fine people in society. I've got some very good friends . . . like the Minks and the Swanks . . . but what I mean is it's not because they're in society . . . you know what I mean . . .

"Say I wonder if Sally Chirp will crash that Van Gilder party . . . What? . . . I'll bet she does too . . . well all I can say is what are the Van Gilders? . . . Everybody knows they made their money in sauerkraut. I wouldn't walk across the street to one of their parties.

"You know when I see the way everybody runs after the Mackerels and the Sniffins and the Van Gilders and all, I'm certainly glad I'm a free woman . . . What? . . . The Mackerels? . . . A garden party! . . . Not a BIG party? . . . A benefit? . . . Oh I see . . . Well I don't know . . . Oh I suppose I'll have to go . . . I hate such things like the very devil, but then it's a benefit . . . I suppose I should . . . and I would sort of like to see her garden."

The Gown Graduates the Girl; This Year It's Long and White

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE GOWN, as well as the diploma, graduates the girl and life begins in an entirely new manner. Books are exchanged for a career and the wardrobe necessarily becomes more sophisticated. A survey of Washington schools and stores has disclosed that in most every instance the graduates are going to wear long, white gowns this year, and they want them styled differently from the dresses they have been wearing to school dances.

Many of the smart dresses are made in formal evening style, topped by a bolero. After graduation they then serve for summer dances. Numerous models feature the popular shirtwaist styling with high neckline, short puffed sleeves and bouffant skirts. For the girl who finds more feminine creations becoming, there are lovely gowns with soft necklines, draped bodices and sleeves.

Materials vary from informal cottons, through chiffon, lace, marquisette, organza, embroidered or shadow-printed organdy, dotted Swiss, mousseline. Many sheer cottons are elaborately trimmed with lace to give a more pretentious effect. Some of more sophisticated gowns are equipped with two sets of removable trimming—white for graduation and gay colors or pastel tints to accent the gown for summer wear.

Accessories to complement the graduation gown should be chosen with as much thought as the gown itself. For instance, if jewelry is worn, it should be chosen with discretion. Save the costume jewelry to wear later. Stockings should be in any of the currently popular shades for evening wear, which means not too coppery in tone. Shoes, smart, but not elaborate, and flowers (the graduation corsage, if this is allowable by the school) in white tones and simple arrangements.

Over-Straining of Will Power May Backfire on Diet Plan

Crunchy, Space-Filler and Satiety Foods Are Essential.

By Ida Jean Kain.

CIVILIZATION IS ONLY as old as the last square meal, and if you don't believe you could revert to the primitive, go on a rigorous diet for a few days. You will be ready to snatch food right off anybody's plate!

Of course, there are no statistics on the subject, but probably the lightest sentences imposed on cases of stealing because of hunger are those passed by judges who have tried a reducing diet. Only a person who has been through the experience can sympathize with hunger pangs.

The self-restraint exercised by the greatly overweight person on a reducing diet is almost beyond belief, and I have the utmost respect for the reducer who carries out her diet. There is nothing that demands more will power.

Your reducing program is more likely to succeed, however, if you do not put your will power to too great a test. It is a smart idea to make your diet as satisfying as possible, so that it is not too hard to follow.

In making up the low-calorie menus, be sure that you include some of the satiety foods, some crunchy foods which require chewing, and some that are space fillers. Among the foods with a high satiety value are the proteins. Eggs, cheese, lean meat and milk give substance to your reducing diet, and every reducing menu should contain a normal amount of these foods.

The crunchy foods and those which require considerable chewing are invaluable in the low-calorie diet. Without adding any appreciable number of calories, they still create the impression of a great deal of food. In this list are celery, apples or crunchy biscuits.

The space fillers are the foods high in water content and also the foods containing much indigestible fiber. The watery fruits, such as peaches, pears, grapes and oranges, while high in sugar, are much lower in calories than the dried fruits, which are low in moisture content. The fruits to be avoided are prunes, dates, figs and raisins. The watery vegetables include tomatoes, summer squash, turnips and eggplant. These are practically all water. You get your indigestible fiber in salads, lettuce, cabbage, celery and greens of all kinds.

It takes some planning to have reducing meals that prevent hunger pangs, but this is the only successful way to stay on your diet, for while you experience it hunger is the driving force in your life. It can drive you right off a diet!

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 25.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN Miss Jane Todd, of old crusted Westchester County, is a proud and happy solon these days, for her "gin marriage law" is working like a charm in this section of the Empire State!

ALICE HUGHES.

It was this inevitable statute, you may recall, which helped put us among the more civilized commonwealths. It was born of dire need, particularly in this wicked city, against whose manifold sins even the late Rev. Billy Sunday marched and hollered in vain. Thousands came to see his show, but few, alas, remained to pray. At last the 3 a. m. marriage evil became intolerable. Dozens if young squirts with a snootful of bubble-water were wont to shoot to nearby Gretna Greens toward dawn, rout out sleepy but fee-hungry clerks and justices, and become spliced before they had any notion what day it was, if any at all. This made dandy copy for the gaudier press, but it distressed the quieter element who still believed that marriages were not properly made in a tub of scotch and soda.

Jane Todd acted with her bill, and the law soon read that 72 hours had to elapse between license and the vows. Now a quick checkup reveals that it works fine. Judge Mintzer, of Harrison says that self-starting weddings have dropped 50 per cent; Clerk Crowely, of Armonk reports a 75 per cent drop. "People still come here for romantic reasons," says the latter, "But almost no kids from night clubs bustle out here at sunrise. A last I'm getting some sleep."

* * * *

All honor to Miss Janie, who saw her duty and done it. Marriage remains a great institution here, but now it is done reflectively and in cold blood!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Local smart-spots and society columns are agaga, for our No. 1 Eligible Bachelor, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt (just call me Al) has a new girl! Of course, Al has always played the field up to 25, and has stood off daughters and mamas with spartan bravery. But his friends say his present young lady, Manuela "Molly" Hudson, of San Francisco, is an extra-important crush. She's a very striking-looking miss, daughter of a San Francisco lawyer and cousin of the wife of the owner of Seabiscuit, the great galloping steed. Is young Al going to succumb?

* * * *

I learn with no dismay whatever that Mrs. Francis McNeill Bacond, III., who takes fine photographs as Tony Frissell, is addicted to putting goldfish in her finger-bowls. Shucks, we can take it . . . But when I hear that Mrs. Hamilton Twombly has 50 silver breakfast services, I admit to a vague sense of impending disaster. To the barricades, Mrs. Twombly!

Evening Dresses Take Large Skirt

Paris (U.P.).—It begins to seem as though the chic of any evening dress will be gauged by the yardage in the skirt. Molyneux, always a leader in evening fashions, started the style when he introduced the crinoline bridesmaid dresses in his spring collection. Now he has settled down to the more easily worn Winterhalter type of gala gown, with a very full skirt hung on a tightly fitted bodice.

At least six of Europe's smartest women have ordered the Winterhalter evening gown of black tulle which has a tight bodice, dropped shoulders and a fluffy pleating around the decollette held by a huge bunch of lilies-of-the-valley.

Ann C. Meem Becomes Mrs. E. B. McLean, Jr.; Notables Among 1,000 Guests at Reception

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

One of the most important weddings in Washington this year took place yesterday afternoon when Miss Ann Carroll Meem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, became the bride of Edward Beale McLean, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean.

The marriage, which united two prominent Capital families, climaxed a romance that began as a childhood friendship. Also, it celebrated the bride's nineteenth birthday and commemorated the wedding exactly a month ago of the bridegroom's brother and best man, John R. McLean 2d, and the former Mrs. Agnes Payne Bacon.

Approximately 40 persons, mostly relatives, witnessed the quiet nuptial ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on Thirty-fourth place. More than 1,000 guests, including scores of Washington notables, attended the reception afterward at the Sulgrave Club, where members of the bridal party and the bride's mother received. The bridegroom's mother, wearing the famous Hope diamond, also was a center of attention, as was Mrs. John R. McLean 2d, who with her husband returned from their honeymoon trip to Honolulu especially to attend the wedding.

Such celebrities as Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman ("Aunt Bessie" to the Duchess of Windsor), Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, dozens of diplomats, many "big names" in political circles and "cave dwellers" in droves, drank champagne at Sulgrave Club by way of wishing the couple happiness. Most of the crowd was still on hand an hour and a half after the reception began, when the bride tossed her bouquet over the bannister and disappeared with her husband and members of the wedding party. The bouquet was caught by small Leila Hill Dunn, who served as flower girl.

Half an hour later the couple slipped through the crowd inside, and through the throng lining the streets outside, and were away on their wedding trip. With several stops on the way, they will go by train to Colorado Springs, where they will make their home. They plan to spend some time in Chicago and probably other cities before proceeding to Colorado.

Wedding Veil Is 100 Years Old

For the first time in their lives the Meem daughters, who always have dressed as twins, although there is 14 months' difference in their ages, stepped out in frocks decidedly different yesterday afternoon when one was a bride and the other, Miss Eleanor Eastbourne Meem, an attendant.

With Mgr. Edward S. Buckey, pastor of St. Matthew's Church officiating, the ceremony was performed before an improvised altar at one end of the drawing room of the Meem home. A wide panel of white satin, outlined with smilax, draped from the ceiling to the floor and centered with a crucifix served as a background for the bridal scene. Palms were massed on either side of the altar, which was flanked with standards filled with white peonies and roses and lighted by tall white tapers in silver candelabra. A runner of white satin extended from the altar down the center of the room to mark the aisle.

While a violin and a harp played softly, the bride appeared on the arm of her father. Her exquisite ensemble, designed by her mother, was fashioned in keeping with her 100-year-old wedding veil, which was worn by two other Ann Carrolls. For some time it has been a valued possession of Mrs. Meem's sister, Mrs. Charles Astor Bristed, of New York, who is the godmother of yesterday's bride.

Bridesmaids Gowned In Louise Pink Chiffon

Blending with the handsome veil was the bride's gown of soft antique ivory satin, made with full puffed sleeves and sheared at the low, round neckline. A fitted yoke girdle formed the center section of the gown. From the hipline another band of shearing rippled off into an extremely full skirt, which terminated in a train. The veil, arranged cap shape, was caught on either side with bunches of orange blossoms, and sprays of orange blossoms were scattered the entire length of the veil and the tulle panel on which it was mounted. The bride's shower bouquet was of white orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley. As a final touch to her ensemble, the bride wore at her throat a diamond clip, gift of the bridegroom.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Meem and Miss Evalyn Walsh McLean, sister of the bridegroom, wore frocks of Louise pink chiffon, made in the same style as the wedding gown. Around the full skirts were bowknots of darker pink French velvet, matching the narrow velvet girdles. Their broad-brimmed hats of christine straw were also trimmed in French velvet bowknots. They carried bouquets of pink roses.

Little Lelia Hill Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Hill Dunn, and a cousin of the bride, did her duties as flower girl, wearing a bouffant pink organdy frock, trimmed in white lace and a bandeau of sweetheart roses. Other attendants, in addition to the best man, were Monroe Lee, of Kansas City and Hollywood, Calif., a cousin of the bridegroom's mother, and Gordon Moore, of Lynchburg, Va., a cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Sumner Welles Among Guests at Home

Following the wedding, the small group of guests at the Meem home gathered in the dining room, around the white rose center table to drink the health and happiness of the couple in sparkling champagne. The only person in the company who was not a member of one of the families was Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the Undersecretary of State, whose mother, the late Mrs. Richard Townsend, was the bridegroom's godmother.

Later, all guests at the wedding were at the Sulgrave Club for the mammoth reception. The bride's mother, attired in a handsome frock of black chantilly lace over pink chiffon and a wide-brimmed black hat, received with the newlyweds and the two bridesmaids. Although he was not in the formal reception line, Mr. Meem did his share of greeting guests as he stood at the top of the stairway.

The bridegroom's mother, known far and wide as Evalyn Walsh McLean, held a little court of her own in the small room at one side of the ballroom. She wore a handsome gown of figured white and black chiffon and a broad-brimmed black hat. The Hope diamond was at her throat and a large ruby pendant also hung from her neck on a diamond chain. A corsage of white orchids, similar to those worn by Mrs. Meem, was on her left shoulder. Both her corsage and that of the bride's mother were gifts of the bridegroom.

Mrs. 'Jock' McLean Center of Attention

By Mrs. McLean's side during most of the reception was Mrs. "Jock" McLean, whose frock of navy marquisette was cut on simple lines and worn with a large navy blue hat. A corsage of orchids also accented her costume.

At exactly 5 o'clock, the bride and bridegroom threaded their way through the crowd to the dining room, where they cut the four-tiered, towering wedding cake. After pausing for a few moments to talk to the guests standing at the long center table where sandwiches, cakes, tea and coffee were served, they moved on through the throng to the ballroom. There, many of their contemporaries were dancing to the music of Sidney's orchestra. A few hasty farewells were voiced there and then the young couple with members of their wedding party were off up the stairs and out of sight.

Among guests at the reception were several from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and the Virginia hunting country. Mrs. Meem's sister, Mrs. Richard Dana Skinner, and Mr. Skinner, of New York, were there; also Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, who is a house guest at Friendship; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Aldrich and Mrs. George Roebling, all of New York. Mrs. A Mitchell Palmer came over from Philadelphia to attend the wedding and was completely surrounded by friends eager to learn about the threatening notes she is reported to have received recently.

Miss Gertrude Meem, aunt of the bride, was glimpsed in the crowd. Her frock of light blue lace was set off with a hat of a blending shade, trimmed in pink. Mrs. Alfred French, another of Mr. Meem's sisters, also was among the guests. She was gowned in black and was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Kate French.

Here and there, on the dance floor, in the dining room or in the spacious lobby were droves of Washingtonians who have known the bride and bridegroom for many years, as well as many who have met them more recently. To mention at random but a few who were present—there were Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Joseph Leiter and her mother, Mrs. John R. Williams; Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. James J. Davis, the Misses Josephine and Helen Patten, Miss Lelia Peachy, Mrs. Royal T. McKenna and her three daughters, the Misses Helen, Martha and Joan McKenna; Mrs. Effingham Townsend and her daughter, Miss Margaret Townsend, who will make her bow to Washington society next winter; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines; Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., Mrs. Albert Niblack, Senator Theodore Green, Dr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Bayne, and Mrs. Charles Dunn.

More diplomats than one is likely to see at a party given by real "cave dwellers" were also on hand for the reception. The Minister of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi were seen in the crowd; also, Mlle. Nora van Haersma de With, daughter of the Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Hearsma de With; Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian legation, and Miss Ann Mahoney; the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, Mme. Vladimir Hurban, wife of the Czechoslovak Minister; Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Minister, and the Counselor of the Rumanian legislation and Mme. Victor Mircea Babes.

Among other guests were Mrs. Ralph Worthington and her daughter, Miss Ethel Worthington; Mrs. Emil Hurja, who will entertain Sunday after next at a tea for Marquis James, Pulitzer prize-winning author; Mrs. Joshua Evans and her daughter, Miss Marianna Evans; Mrs. George Angus Garrett; the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Miss Mary B. Adams, the Misses Katherine and Gertrude Pearson, Miss Laura Tuckerman, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, and her daughter, Miss Angelica Lloyd; Ralph Snowden Hill, Miss Alice Barry, Mrs. Charles Bradley and her daughter, Miss Barbara Bradley; Mrs. Charles F. Wilson and her daughter, Miss Mary Wilson; Col. and Mrs. Joseph Cecil and their daughter, Miss Caroline Cecil, and so on, through the Social Register and Who's Who in Washington.

When the couple left on their wedding trip the bride was wearing a frock of Alice blue wool crepe, fashioned with an eton jacket over a tucked pink blouse, a navy blue hat and accessories, and a variegated coat, in which shades blended with her dress.

The new Mrs. McLean numbers among her ancestors some of Washington's oldest settlers. Her father, who is president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., comes of a family that came to Georgetown from Virginia in 1756. Mrs. Meem, formerly Louise Hill, was descended from the Carrolls and Youngs, two of the families who originally owned land which is now Washington. Mrs. Meem is also connected with the noted Livingston family of New York.

Yesterday's bride and her sister made their debut at a huge reception here last November and were later presented at the Bachelors Cotillion in Baltimore. The bridegroom's father was formerly publisher of The Washington Post. Through his mother, he is a grandson of the late Thomas F. Walsh, of Colorado, who "struck it rich" in silver-mining activities.

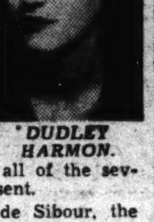
About The Town

With Dudley Harmon



DUDLEY HARMON.

SOCIETY retrieved its minks and silver foxes from moth balls last evening and braved the cold night air to attend the first of the three spring dances at the 1925 F Street Club. Chief feature of these parties is supposed to be the opportunity to sit in the garden under a romantic moon surrounded by roses and other flora. Last night a good time was had by all of the several hundred present.

Viscount J. H. de Sibour, the moving spirit behind these dances, had postponed the first one once owing to last week's bad weather, but felt it would be all too confusing to change the date again.

• • • •

SO the Japanese lanterns swung in the garden and supper, which was served at 9 o'clock, consisted of the usual lavish F Street Club spread, with everything from hot soup to cold chicken.

On the theory that it is much more fun to arrive at a dance in a herd rather than singly or with one other person, a number of cocktail parties were held before the event. Mrs. Emory Sands had invited a few friends to drop into the club, where she is living, for a drink early in the evening, and Mrs. Mondell Gregg entertained at her apartment on N street in Georgetown. George Duca, of the Rumanian Legation, also brought along a group with him.

• • • •

A SCORE or more tables were set in the garden under the trees. The wall of young trees surrounding the garden cuts it off completely from the office building which surrounds the club.

Wraps were the big feature of the evening, and if anybody had sported a new dress for the occasion, it was more or less hidden beneath fox or mink. At one table sat Mrs. S. Kent Legare and Mrs. Albert Dewey, both with silver fox capes, with Mrs. Legare's sister, Miss Julie Dell Zimmerman, who was in a white fox wrap.

Viconte de Sibour sat at a table with Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, the latter wearing a green orchid on her mink cape, the former Austrian Minister and Frau Prochnik, and the attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Harold Sims.

Rhumbas were all over the place, with the prize going to Miss Bettina Belmont, up from Middleburg, and Mrs. Emory Sands, who wore a red and white frock with a jacket. John Galliher was another rhumba expert of the evening.

• • • •

MRS. SIMS SNOW, wearing a black velvet wrap over her red chiffon frock, was in a large and merry party which included the Greek Minister, Mrs. William T. Mann, in a black and white lace frock; Frederick Nichols, Miss Carolyn Chantry, George Williams, Donald Downs and Mrs. Scudder Doeg.

Nearby sat Miss Nancy Leiter with Miss Mary Lou Marsh and John Vietor. Both Miss Leiter and Miss Marsh wore flesh-colored tulle frocks.

Others seen were Miss Angelica Lloyd, in a blue fox cape combined with a darker blue dress; William McAvoy, Blair Bolles, Mr. and Mrs. George Pulver, George T. Summerlin and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., Miss Stellita Stapleton, with six men; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Baker with Lawrence Baker, jr., Richard Look, Miss Eleanor Meem, whose sister, Ann, was married yesterday to Edward Beale McLean, jr., Kemper Simpson and Mrs. Marion Warburg.

British Victory Seen By Woman Laborite

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The next elections in England will see a great turnover for the Labor Party, in the opinion of Miss Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor under Ramsay MacDonald in 1929 and now a Parliamentary candidate for the Reading Division. Miss Bondfield, who is the guest of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, asserted "England is very unhappy over many things which are happeneing."

Although "Great Britain will speak as one voice" in a crisis from outside, there is much dissatisfaction with the Chamberlain policies, she said, pointing out that elections fought on this issue have shown overwhelming majorities for the Labor Party.

She declared "the world would be a much happier place to live had the policy of Arthur Henderson been pursued after the government went out in 1931."

Miss Bondfield is on sabbatical leave as chief woman officer of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers and is investigating our experimental efforts in fighting the depression. "You're not afraid of spending money to do it properly," she said. "In England we are extremely critical of the government's failure to deal in any thorough-going way with the areas where economic life has departed, such as places where coal mines and shipyards have been closed. We need the same type of program which has been inaugurated here.

Re-armament work has taken up the employment slump for the present but foresight is needed to prevent another great depression when this is over, Miss Bondfield said. Her mission here is to study projects which might be set up in England. She was much impressed with the WPA project at Green Hills, Ohio; PWA buildings, the TVA, including the care taken to protect the health of the workmen and provide for their families, and the CCC camps which she saw in Florida.

"It took me some time to learn what all your letters stood for," she said, but apparently she had the New Deal alphabet at her command.

Contrasting this country with England she remarked our lack of respect for law compared to that of the British. There, as long as a law is on the statute books, it is respected but the English make no bones about changing laws which they do not like, she said. She also believes the British, because the country is older, have a greater sense of individual responsibility for citizenship.

Miss Bondfield was excited, she said, when she learned at 11 o'clock at night that the wage-hour bill had passed Congress. She has worked in labor circles ever since she first joined as a young girl clerk in a ladies' outfitting department. She favors protective legislation for women workers and says that which has been passed has come at their own request. There are more women workers in factories now than ever before in England, she added, refuting the statement that protective measures result in women being displaced by men.

Miss Bondfield and Secretary Perkins will speak at a dinner being sponsored by the American Association of University Women at the Mayflower June 2 under the auspices of the education committee of which Mrs. Robert Olesen, new club president, is the chairman. Miss Dorothy Sells, who made a survey of labor conditions in England a year ago, will be among the guests of honor.

Soroptimists Have Luncheon

Mrs. Henry A. Flather Tells of Girl Scout Camp at Rockwood.

Mrs. Henry A. Flather, chairman of the national Girl Scouts committee for Rockwood Camp, and Mrs. Benjamin Cheatham, a member of the national board and of the national camp committee for the organization, addressed the Soroptimist Club yesterday at its weekly luncheon at the Willard Hotel. Miss Nora Huffman, a past president of the club, was in charge of the program.

Mrs. Flather described Rockwood and the advantages it offers to the Girl Scout campers. It affords four modes of living, she said: Actual camp life; cabins where cooking and a general home-making program can be carried out; cottages more fully equipped and furnished and the main house with its two wings, connected by a large dining and recreation hall. The arrangement makes it possible to conduct a domestic science program for the girls, she said, as well their other projects.

Mrs. Cheatham, outlining the history of the Girl Scout movement from the time it was started in England, stressed the need for Scout leaders. Describing the variety of activities included in the plan of the organization, she suggested it as an opportunity for service and recreation for older women interested in constructive work for girls. The girls are taught home-making, good citizenship, preparedness for service in case of emergency and are encouraged in developing interest in handicraft, nature lore and wholesome outdoor sports, she said.

Mrs. Erna Imbrie, mother of a Girl Scout, also was on the program, presenting a group of songs, accompanied by Mrs. Jewell Downs.

The club has recently contributed books toward the establishment of a medical library at Children's Hospital for which Miss Mattie Gibson, the superintendent, expressed appreciation in a letter to the president, Mrs. Agnes Newman. The Venture Club, which is sponsored by the Soroptimists, has also contributed a hospital bed to the institution.

Stanford Club Stages Dinner

Party Welcomes Mrs. C. A. Thomas, of Palo Alto, a Hoover Classmate.

A dinner, followed by a Stanford alumni reception, was given last night at the Rock Creek home of Miss Harelan James, executive secretary of the American Civic Association. The party was to welcome Mrs. Chester A. Thomas, of Palo Alto and Santa Barbara, on a brief visit to Washington. Mrs. Thomas, who was Marylyn Main, of Santa Barbara, was a Stanford classmate of Miss James and of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the trio having been graduated in 1898.

Her husband was right tackle on Stanford's football varsities of 1896 and 1897. He fought through the Spanish war and the insurrection in the Philippines as first sergeant of Stanford's famous fighting Company K of 70-odd undergraduate volunteers. When he returned he married Miss Main and went to Arctic gold fields as chief mining engineer for the Guggenhem interests at Dawson City. Their two sons, born there, are near the age of the Hoovers' sons.

Mrs. Thomas was early left a widow and returned to California, where she was appointed postmistress of Stanford University, and served until both her sons were graduated from Stanford.

At the small informal dinner preceding the reception by members of the Stanford Washington colony of 205 alumni, were Mrs. Thomas, Miss James, Mrs. Harry Franz, Harry Franz, '17, of the United Press; Harry J. Robinson, '34, secretary of the local group and himself a native of Nevada, and Archie Rice, '95, who was a schoolboy neighbor in Santa Barbara of Mrs. Thomas, and in Stanford was four years a classmate of Herbert Hoover.

Ickes and Bride Sail for Britain On Honeymoon

President Knew of His Wedding Plans, Interior Secretary Reveals.

By the Associated Press.

Cork, Ireland, May 25.—The bobbing little steamer Innisfallen carried beaming Harold L. Ickes, United States Secretary of Interior, and his red-haired, freckle-faced young bride across the Irish Sea tonight toward London and the Continent.

Ickes, 64-year-old widower, and his wife of a day, the 25-year-old former Jane Dahlman, of Milwaukee, hurried aboard the Innisfallen here as "Mr. and Mrs. Woods," with many smiles and a word of praise for Irish eyes that do not pry.

"People Most Kind."

"I have enjoyed every moment of my honeymoon in Ireland," said Ickes. "The people have been most kind, and they never tried to butt in on our privacy."

Married secretly in Dublin yesterday to the surprise of two continents, the couple stayed last night in a "three-room hotel in the little village of Corkbeg, where there are only half a dozen houses," Ickes said. Corkbeg is near Cork.

"We had planned this honeymoon trip for some time," Ickes confided, adding that he previously had informed President Roosevelt of his intention to wed the young Smith College graduate, who is the sister of Mrs. Wilmarth Ickes, widow of the Secretary's stepson.

Return in Three Wekes.

The Innisfallen sailed for Fishguard, little Welsh port, whence the honeymooners were to entrain for London. Later, they said, they "probably" will go to the Continent.

"But I have to be back on the job in three weeks," the Secretary added. They carried but little luggage.

The bride, who will be the youngest Cabinet wife upon her return to Washington society, wore a jaunty tan swagger coat and skirt with a biege jumper, dark brown felt beret, brown gloves and low-cut black shoes. She carried a brown handbag. She was content to let her husband do all the talking.

Mystery Explained.

New York, May 25 (AP).—French Line officials, apparently as mystified as everybody else as to how Secretary Ickes sailed in the Normandie last Wednesday without disclosing his identity, offered an explanation today.

The Secretary, the line said, must have occupied an A deck suite booked in the name of R. G. Sucher. Officials recalled that when the ship sailed all passengers except Sucher had signed their names on board.

When the Normandie was at sea the line wirelessed the captain, asking if the cabin was occupied. They received in reply the statement that it was and took it for granted that Sucher was on hand. Checking today with the steamship agent in Washington, through whom the suite had been engaged, the line learned it had been reserved for Ickes in the name of Sucher.

The action followed confiscation yesterday of the entire property of the Monastery of St. Lambrecht in Syria, for which no reasons were given.

Nations Must Trade or Collapse, Hull Cautions; Answers Critics

Hull

foundations for our own national economic well-being. At the same time we are strengthening the foundation of enduring world peace, which is so essential to the continued progress of civilization and to the well-being of the people of every land.

Hull Answers Critics.

Hull replied in vigorous terms to "vicious charges," "veritable hysteria" and "high-pressure propaganda" which he said had entered the attack on the reciprocal trade program which has brought agreements with 17 nations to date. He added, however, that the attacks had subsided or entirely disappeared as soon as the terms of the particular agreement became known.

"Nearly four years of operation of the trade-agreements program," he said, "have belied completely the dire prophecies of injury and destruction to American farmers, workmen and businessmen, in which critics of the program have so freely and so recklessly indulged."

Cites Gains.

He cited figures showing increases in exports by the United States and, in some cases, simultaneous decreases in imports, but in connection with the latter he warned:

"This tremedous drop in the volume of our imports is not a sign of prosperity. It is the exact reverse. Leaving aside the commodities affected by the drought, the major portion of the decrease in imports is accounted for by raw materials and semimanufactures. These shrinking imports are indicative of idle mills and factories and of increased unemployment. They were not caused by displacement of American finished products by foreign goods. On the contrary, the imports of finished manufactures have also declined substantially. Our country will be far better off when recovery from the present temporary decline in business activity will necessitate an increase rather than a shrinkage of the volume of imports."

"A Two-Way Process."

The imports decline, he added, has another definitely unfavorable implication. "Sooner or later it must lead to a decrease of exports, since trade must necessarily be a two-way process."

He cited increases registered in 1937 and the first few months of 1938 as examples of benefits from trade treaties. During 1937, he said, American total commodity exports increased by $889,000,000 over exports during 1936, while imports rose by $661,000,000 over imports for the previous year.

During the first three months of 1938 American exports increased by $115,000,000 over exports for the same period of 1937, while imports decreased by $291,000,000.

He said the "repercussions of the catastrophic droughts which affected many of our important farm areas in 1934 and 1936 are clearly reflected "in import and export figures for agricultural products during the first three months of the current year.

Food Exports Rise.

"The impairment of some of our staple crops reduced or almost annihilated our ability to export such commodities," he said. "And in some cases led to abnormal and temporary importations. As the effects of the droughts have worn off, the situation in this respect has reversed."

He said that during the first three months of 1938 exports of crude and manufactured foodstuffs of agricultural origin rose in value from $47,000,000 during the first three months of 1937 to $111,000,000 in 1938; imports of foodstuffs fell from $221,000,000 during the first three months of 1937 to $130,000,000 during the same period of 1938.

He warned that international trade is not a panacea for all the manifold ills that afflict our country and the world at the present time. It will not alone bring us prosperity. Yet without its expansion on a sound and constructive basis full and sustained prosperity is impossible for any nation.

"Our country, in common with all countries of the world," he added, "is confronted today with many domestic and international problems of the utmost gravity. The solution of these problems requires from each nation vigorous and cooperative effort at home and thorough-going economic appeasement internationally. And an indispensable foundation for both is healthy and expanding trade among nations."

Air Routes Held Vital.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said yesterday the maintenance of United States supremacy in commercial airline communication with Latin-America was of primary importance in the race for a larger share of Latin-American markets.

Warning against "an attitude of smug compliance," he said whatever advantages this country's industries may have presently in their dealings with Latin-American countries had been attained only with great effort.

"Europe is actually closer by sea to South America than is this country," he pointed out, "and the Old World's cultural and social traditions are intertwined closely with those of the Latin Americans."

13 Training Planes Ordered by U. S.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson yesterday announced the award of a contract for construction of 13 basic training planes, valued at $570,913, to the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Burbank, Calif.

Explaining that obsolescent planes from combat squadrons have been used in the past for training pilots, Johnson said progress in aviation has been so rapid that bombers in production five years ago are now unsatisfactory for instruction.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?

What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

You'll go for EAGLE HOOK LINE and SINKER
FRED, WHAT GIVES THAT EAGLE WHISKEY YOU HAD UP AT THE HOUSE, SUCH A DIFFERENCE IN TASTE? IT'S THE SMOOTHEST WHISKEY I EVER TASTED!
WELL, I'LL SHOW YOU RIGHT HERE — SEE THAT BOTTLE... AND THAT BOTTLE.....
—AND THAT BOTTLE...AND THAT BOTTLE...
EXACTLY... AND THE PEOPLE WHO MAKE THEM ARE THE SAME PEOPLE WHO MAKE EAGLE.
GOSH, FRED, EAGLE OUGHT TO BE BETTER!
AND IT IS, TOO! YOU GET YOURSELF A BOTTLE OF EAGLE AND YOU'LL GO FOR IT HOOK, LINE AND SINKER! IT'S THE SMOOTHEST BLEND THERE IS!
EAGLE
YOUR GUIDE TO GOOD LIQUORS

If you haven't tasted National's Eagle yet, do it TODAY! It's as mild as any whiskey you ever drank. And smoother, we think, thanks to the old American blenders' skill . . . but what makes the real difference in any blend are the whiskies the blenders start with.

And when you realize that the same people who make Eagle also make America's great bonded whiskies, you can see why Eagle SHOULD taste better! It's that pre-war whiskey taste! That "extra whiskey flavor" as one man puts it. Try Eagle! And remember . . . Eagle at its price is America's greatest whiskey value!

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

OLD WHITE HOUSE PHONOGRAPH RECORD.

There's a mysterious phonograph record at the White House, which no one has ever heard. It's the one President Roosevelt always tells his secretary, Mr. Steve Early, to play when a correspondent screws up his courage and asks the President whether it's true that he has endorsed Candidate Zilch, his loyal follower, for Congress or for governor, in a primary election.

* * * *

no endorsements.

Since in each instance Candidate Zilch has already high-tailed it out of the White House, after a chat with Mr. Roosevelt, beating his chest and roaring "The President's for me!" and since the President has made it plain that he never endorses Candidate Zilch, shallow thinkers have assumed that (like Cousin Teddy's nominations for the Ananias Club) the refrain on the phonograph record means that Candidate Zilch is a liar.

* * * *

Actually, this is a deplorable error. I am the only man alive except President Roosevelt and Secretary Early, who has ever heard this phonograph record. I sneaked away from a White House party the other evening, into the office wing and played it over twice, taking notes on the cuff of my turtle-neck sweater. Here it is, a more or less verbatim transcript of a conversation between President Roosevelt and Candidate Zilch.

"—the tune nobody knows"

ZILCH: Well, Chief, I've decided to run.

FDR: Have you read any good books lately?

ZILCH: I was for you before the convention.

* * * *

ZILCH: I've played ball on every Administration bill.

FDR: What's the phosphate situation out in your State?

* * * *

ZILCH: My opponent is a rat, Chief.

FDR: Have you seen Jim Farley's new stamp?

ZILCH: I can pull the whole ticket over by 200,000 votes.

* * * *

FDR: That's a nice necktie you're wearing.

ZILCH: I was wearing it when I led the parade for you at Chicago, Mr. President.

FDR: Have you ever gone up to the top of the Washington Monument?

* * * *

* * * *

FDR: Did you ever hear the story about St. Peter and the newspaper publisher?

ZILCH: My opponent knifes you every chance he gets.

FDR: You ought to see Washington in cherry-blossom time.

* * * *

ZILCH: I've read all five volumes of your state papers.

FDR: Did you ever try gargling a salt solution for that cough of yours?

ZILCH: If you won't endorse me how about letting Jimmy say a word for me? Or Jim? Or Harry? Or Harold?

"—Zilch makes a statement"

FDR: I'm sorry you can't stay for lunch.

ZILCH: If that rat is nominated we may lose the State in November.

FDR: Next time you see Jim Farley get him to show you that new postage stamp.

* * * *

(At this point Candidate Zilch's retreating footsteps may be heard; and you can easily picture him backing out of the door as he is heard to say, "Thank you, Mr. President, you don't know what your support means to me" . . . You picture the President taking a long puff at his cigarette and looking up at the ceiling for a full five seconds before another Candidate Zilch is ushered in. Outside in the foyer there is a clamor and a clatter, plainly audible, as the newshawks surround Zilch and he makes a statement.)

* * * *

ZILCH: Boys, the President is for me 1,000 per cent . . . He and I are buddies. Keep this under your hats: I think he'll boost me for Vice President in 1940 . . . I'm not sure whether he will make two or three speeches in my State. He told me to see Jim Farley and tell him to start the ball rolling. The President says I have been a bulwark of strength to him; he doesn't know how he could get along without me. Boys, you can quote me as saying it's in the bag. Nice place you have here.

William S. Torbert (left), Senator Arthur Capper and Dr. Freeman Weiss, president of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, at the association's thirtieth anniversary banquet last night at Sherwood Church.

The Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, organized 30 years ago on Schuyler S. Symons' front porch, last night celebrated its anniversary and three decades of progress with a banquet at the Sherwood Church Hall, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, the principal speaker, praised the work of the association in promoting the Woodbridge section and the entire city.

Congratulating the residents on the size of the area's vote at the suffrage referendum, he declared his belief that Washingtonians should be permitted to vote for Congressional Representatives and in Presidential elections. He said he hoped Congress at its next session would pass legislation making such votes possible.

George F. Bowerman, District librarian, told the association members he felt a complete branch library was a pressing need in their section. Unfortunately, he said, Federal funds made available recently for library construction had been granted with the stipulation that any branch library be erected on land already owned by the District. No such site seems available in the Woodbridge area, he said.

Among guests present at the dinner, attended by more than 150, were Miss Abbie Sisson, retired principal of the Langdon elementary school; Sybil Baker, director of the playgrounds department; Elizabeth K. Peeples, director of the Community Center department; Representatives Charles G. Bincerup, of Nebraska, and Washington I. Cleveland, head of the American Automobile Association.

Entertainment features included an accordion duet by Dorothy Talbott and Gertrude Betts, and songs by Harry Angelico, accompanied by Mrs. Angelico.

Schuyler Symons, who played an active part in the organization's birth, was present at the anniversary celebration. Also present was William S. Torbert, an active member for the past 28 years. The toastmaster was Freeman Weiss, the association's present head.

Calvary Class Dinner Marks 29th Birthday

Dr. Arthur C. Christie, a Former President, Tells of Physician's Life.

The Calvary Men's Bible Class—one of the oldest and largest organizations of its type in Washington—last night celebrated its twenty-ninth birthday with a banquet in the Guild Hall of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church.

Heading the list of speakers was Dr. Arthur C. Christie, former teacher and president of the class, and internationally known radiologist, who described highlights of his 34-year medical career in private practice and in the Army.

Greetings were brought from Lieut. Comdr. Edward M. Webster, retiring president of the class; the teacher, Edwin Dice, and the pastor of Calvary Methodist, the Rev. Frank Steelman. Music was provided by Arthur M. Tabbutt and Miss Edith M. Gottwals, of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South. Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, gave the invocation.

At the annual meeting, preceding the dinner, Edwin Dice and John W. Fisher were chosen teacher and associate teacher. Other officers elected were L. A. Bageant, president; Ralph Bodle, first vice president; F. S. Gettle, second vice president; Charles Brett, treasurer; T. LaFrance, secretary; C. E. Werbaek, assistant secretary; Col. J. William DeGrange, historian; William B. Wells, chorister, and Ralph Wolfe, pianist.

Special guests included Dr. M. H. Christie, father of the guest speaker; Dr. Walter F. Atkinson and Dr. V. N. Ridgeley, former pastors at Calvary; Fred C. Croxton, first president of the class, and Edward M. Hall, its first teacher.

The dinner was served by the Calvary Women's Guild. Arrangements were in charge of A. S. and K. P. Vipond, L. A. Bageant and L. J. Johnson, chairman.

Cafeteria Union Of CIO Victorious Iu Election Here

By a vote of 542 to 119 the United Cafeteria Employes Local Union No. 471 (C. I. O.) was chosen as bargaining agent by the cafeteria employes of the Welfare and Recreation Association, the operator of lunchrooms in 22 Federal Buildings here. The election, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, was held yesterday and Tuesday under direction of NLRB Examiner Robert Kenadler.

The election settled a four-month dispute between the employes and the welfare association management over what organization should represent the employes. The dispute was taken to Secretary Ickes ten days ago. He said he did not wish to interfere in labor disputes, but since the welfare association functioned under the Interior Department, he suggested that the issue be brought to election under the NLRB. The welfare association agreed.

Van Devanter Son Blames New Deal For U. S. Mistrust

Winslow B. Van Devanter, son of the former associate justice of the Supreme Court, last night said blame for Nation-wide "lack of confidence" should be placed "mainly on the present administration of government in Washington and in some of the States."

U. S. Can Resist Alien Doctrine, Envoy Asserts

America Able to Absorb All Opinions, French Ambassador Finds.

The United States is powerful enough to absorb foreign ideas and opinions without danger to her interests, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, French Ambassador, told the American Federation of Arts last night at its closing banquet.

"America, that most hospitable, young and free country may without fear open wide her doors to foreign influences, because she is strong enough to assimilate them," he declared.

Expressing admiration for American architecture, the ambassador compared Radio City, New York, to the gothic cathedrals of France and emphasized that "the constant collaboration of French art with that of other countries, its stubborn independence and power to regenerate itself, were bound to win over the sympathies of America."

This country's museums, he added, "house treasures admirably classified and presented. Their wealth is all the more remarkable because they could not depend on the forceful proceedings used up to the beginning of the Nineteenth century by some governments. They are rather the natural heirs of great collectors."

The other speaker of the evening was William M. Milliken, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, who discussed the past, present and future of the federation.

Earlier in the day a round table discussion was held on the subject of an ideal Federal arts bill and reports were made by officers on the work of the organization.

D. C.'s Fire Boat Decommissioned

Fires on the Washington waterfront will be fought by land apparatus "for a short period," because the District's fire boat is out of commission, it was disclosed yesterday.

The Firefighter, in service more than 30 years, will have to undergo minor repairs before the Steamboat Inspection Office issues another certificate to replace the one which expired Tuesday.

Site on South Side of the Mall Favored for New Art Gallery

The Smithsonian Gallery of Art Commission yesterday announced its preference for locating the new Smithsonian Gallery of Art on the south side of the Mall between Fourth and Seventh streets northwest, opposite the site of the National Gallery of Art.

The gallery will house art treasures in the custody of the Smithsonian for which inadequate quarters, the commission pointed out, are now available in the new National Museum Building. An appropriation of $40,000 has been authorized for plans and other preliminaries. Private donations, the commission stated, are expected to pay for construction.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission, was elected chairman, with Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to serve as secretary of the commission. Delano, Dr. Abbot and Edward Bruce were made members of the ways and means committee.

Other members of the commission attending the meeting were Representative Kent E. Keller, chairman of the House Library Committee, and Charles L. Boris, jr., chairman of the Smithsonian Art Commission.

Collins Seeks End to Relief Fund Tangle

Transfer of Training School Girls to Blue Plains Expected.

Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, yesterday went with District officials before the deficiency sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee to help straighten out Budget Bureau tangles over the relief fund and the National Training School for Girls.

While declining to disclose what he had told the sub-committee, Collins is understood to have urged that the will of the sub-committee on District appropriations, later approved by Congress, be followed in both matters.

That would mean that the school would be permitted to close July 1 and the colored girl occupants transferred to the Industrial Home for Colored Boys at Blue Plains.

Appropriation Doomed.

It also would mean that the sub-committee would not sanction a $209,500 appropriation from the $900,000 relief fund.

District officials, it is understood, asked that the money be provided as supplemental appropriations. They pointed out that $189,500 was needed as the sponsor's contribution for a WPA project for women and $20,000 for train fare for stranded transients during the next fiscal year.

Unless the $189,500 is appropriated, the sub-committee was told, 2,000 women now employed in WPA projects in Washington will lose their jobs. If the money is taken from the relief fund, an equal number will be cut off the dole.

After the hearing Collins reiterated the opinion that the National Training School should be closed and the girls moved into a Blue Plains building to be vacated by the transfer of 40 boys to foster homes.

"Why, you could send a girl to Vassar for what it costs to keep a girl at the National Training School for Girls," he said.

Three Methods Proposed.

The Budget Bureau, in its report, suggested three possible ways of handling the Training School appropriation. One of them would follow out the intent of the Collins sub-committee.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, however, is prepared to insist in the Senate that appropriations be made to continue both the Training School and the Children's receiving Home for the next fiscal year, while an expert study is made of the whole child-welfare problem in the District.

Browns Nose Out Nats, 4 to 3, in 13-Inning Battle

The Washington Post Sports

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, May 25.—None has dared to speak out, but it is fairly obvious that the 16 major league club owners have reason to be alarmed at the most recent pronouncement of the little man with the white hair and battered hat who operates out of Chicago.

POVICH.

When Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis the other day told the St. Louis Cardinals they could not fire two of their ball players—Roy Henshaw and Silas Johnson—he struck a new high note in the authority of his office. It was a ringing warning that with Landis rested the final decision in all matters pertaining to organized baseball.

To review the Henshaw-Johnson case briefly, we recall that the Cardinals sent the two pitchers to their Rochester farm, that Henshaw and Johnson protested to Landis that they hadn't been given a fair trial by the Cardinals and that Landis upheld them.

The implications of that decision by Landis are clear enough: He has appointed himself the final authority not only in league affairs but in judging the capabilities of the leagues' players.

* * * *

There is reason for the club owners to quake at that turn of affairs. Hitherto, ball players were hired, fired, released outright or on option at the will of the magnates, usually on the recommendation of the managers. There was none to say them nay. If a club owner did not think that Pitcher Joe Drizzlepuss was good enough for the big leagues, he farmed him out. But now . . .

It is doubtful if Judge Landis ever saw Henshaw or Johnson throw a ball, yet he has ruled that they have not been given a fair trial by the Cardinals. That is just a hint of the scope of his authority under his contract with the two big leagues.

The only solace for the club owners generally is that Judge Landis by his most recent pronouncement is taking it out on the St. Louis Cardinals, and does not intend to apply the rule generally to other clubs in the two leagues.

* * * *

For several years Landis has been at odds with the Cardinals, particularly their chain-store system of baseball. From its inception, Landis has been opposed to chain-store baseball and has battled valiantly in an attempt to stamp it out. But on that score he has been beaten by the combined efforts of all the club owners, who recognize chain-store methods as the cheapest medium for obtaining playing talents.

However, Landis blames the Cardinals for popularizing the chain-store method and has also accused them of sharp practices without the baseball law. Whenever he has unearthed evidence of irregularities in the Cardinal chain, he has cracked down on the St. Louis club.

Early this spring he declared 90 members of the Cardinal chain free agents when he discovered that the Cardinals had interested themselves in two clubs in the same minor league. That was illegal, making for collusion in the league pennant race, and with his full authority Landis cracked down.

* * * *

With Landis, the Cardinals are always under suspicion and another sample of his determination to give the Cardinals no breaks from his office was his ruling in the Dick Siebert case. Siebert, the property of the Cardinals, had shuttled back and forth from the Cardinal camp to their Columbus farm in the American Association until, when he was released a couple of weeks ago and sent back to Columbus, he protested to Landis.

Landis agreed with Siebert that his record in the American Association had warranted him a fair trial in the big leagues and that the fact that he was the property of the Cardinals impeded his advancement in his profession. For Siebert is a first baseman and the Cardinals, with Johnny Mize on the job, have no need for another first sacker. In the interests of Siebert, and using the authority of his office, Landis commanded the Cardinals to put Siebert on the market and accept a reasonable offer from a big league club.

* * * *

Thus, the Athletics, needing a first baseman, bought Siebert from the Cardinals, filling their own want and giving the ball player a chance to advance in his profession.

Such actions by Landis have made it fairly obvious by this time that though he is paid his $50,000 salary by the club owners of the two big leagues, he nevertheless gives the ball players a fair shake.

An official of the Washington club, commenting on Landis' action in the case of Henshaw and Johnson, expressed no alarm that the judge had set a dangerous precedent.

"At least the Washington club is unworried," he said. "But other clubs who may be phenagling with farm systems and keeping good players out of the league, have plenty to worry about. Any club will be all right as long as it keeps its nose clean!"

Mrs. Meckley Is Defeated In Baltimore

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 25.—Mrs. Betty Meckley's four leaf clover charm failed to bring her luck today. She lost in one of the biggest upsets in years in local golf tournaments. Mrs. Jerome Sloman conquered the Washingtonian, 1 up, in the second round of match play in the Maryland State Golf Association women's championship at Elkridge Hunt Club.

A burst of close matches came with three 19-hole engagements and five 18-hole contests. Mrs. W. B. Hurst, jr., and Mrs. C. D. Warfield, two of Baltimore's best, failed on the nineteenth hole to District players. The former bowed to Mrs. L. G. Pray, a 7-handicap golfer, and the latter succumbed to Mrs. Florence Godfrey.

An upset among the Washington brigade was the 1 up decision Mrs. Myron Davey took from Mrs. C. S. Stern. The latter qualified with an 86 to her rival's 92. Mrs. Davey, in the championship flight for the first time was 1 down going into the seventeenth.

Mrs. Sloman Steady.

It was the first time Mrs. Sloman ever had defeated Mrs. Meckley in their long series of competition. Thirteen of the eighteen holes were halved. Mrs. Sloman annexed the fourth, fifth and twelfth to be 3 up. This lead the Middle Atlantic champion lessened by taking the fourteenth and seventeenth.

Mrs. Sloman was steady, driving and sending her second shots straight down the middle. Mrs. Meckley overshot the green several times and had the misfortune to see her putts go in and out of the cup. Mrs. Sloman one-putted the seventh and eighth. Mrs. Sloman missed only three shots all the way around, a short putt on the ninth and fifteenth and a third shot on the sixteenth, but this she followed up by dropping a 15-foot putt for a 5.

Mrs. Meckley's approach on the seventeenth was dead to the pin, as Mrs. Sloman was just on as the former cut the lead to 1 up by annexing the hole. Mrs. Meckley's approach to the eighteenth was short and Mrs. Sloman's was on as they halved the hole. Their card:

Par, out—564 435 345—39

Mrs. Meckley, out—565 645 355—44

Mrs. Sloman, in 555 454 556—44—86
Mrs. Meckley, in 556 444 546—43—87

Wins 17th and 18th.

Mrs. Hurst was 2 up going to the seventh, but the match was even at the turn. The Baltimorean again was 2 up aproaching the thirteenth. Mrs. Pray, who has reached the semifinals in a former State test, was victorious on the thirteenth and fourteenth to square matters, and went ahead on the fifteenth and sixteenth. As Mrs. Pray three-putted the seventeenth and eighteenth, Mrs. Hurst won these two to even the match once more.

On the decisive nineteenth, Mrs. Pray's drive was short, but her second good. Mrs. Hurst topped her second, but had a fine third. Mrs. Pray chipped within 3 feet of the cup and Mrs. Hurst was trapped. Mrs. Pray putted well, sinking several long ones.

Miss Dettweiler Wins.

Mrs. T. E. Schulederberg and her conqueror by a 1-up margin, Mrs. W. R. Stokes, of Manor, each carded 86. The latter was 2 up at the turn and out in 42. Their cards:

Detroit Scores, 7-3, as Greenberg, York Hit 2.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 25.—Those home-run twins, Rudy York and Hank Greenberg, hit a pair of four-baggers apiece today to account for all the runs as the Tigers trampled the New York Yankees, 7 to 3.

It was the Yanks' third straight setback, the first time this season the world chamions had been humiliated in that fashion.

York hit his first in the third with two mates aboard, and was followed by Greenberg's first poke. Rudy's second came with one on in the fifth, and again Greenberg followed with a round-tripper. All the scoring came off Rookie Joe Beggs, the Yankee starter.

George Gill went the route for the Tigers and was touched for 12 hits. Five of them were made by Red Rolfe, who connected for a triple and four singles.

Harder Holds Boston as Indians Hike Lead.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 25.—Cleveland's Indians drove home four runs in the seventh inning against Boston today and stretched their American League lead to three full games over the Red Sox. The score was 6 to 4, with Mel Harder limiting the losers to seven hits.

The slugging Tribe won the game off Fritz Ostermueller's slants by combining six hits with a Boston error for the deciding tallies.

Lary doubled, and after Campbell fanned, Hale singled Lary home to tie the score at 3-3. Solters forced Hale, but Averill doubled, and Trosky, Keltner and Hemsley followed with singles to drive in three more tallies.

Only one of the Boston runs was earned, Cleveland making three errors. Boston had only four men stranded on the bags compared with ten for Cleveland.

Averill's two-base blow in the pinch continued a "two-out" hitting streak which started Sunday when he contributed two important blows with men on bases in a crucial game against the New York Yankees. Yesterday he made two more blows against New York with two out to drive in six runs.

Chicago, May 25.—Chicago's White Sox touched off a home run barrage today to come from behind for a 7-to-4 victory over Philadelphia in the opening game of the series.

The Athletics worked up a 4-to-0 advantage at the expense of John Whitehead in the first six innings, but saw it swept away when homers by Gee Walker and Rip Radcliff and Mike Kreevich accounted for all but one of the Sox runs. Luther Thomas was the victim of the first two home runs in the sixth, while Kreevich hit his off Nelson Potter in the seventh.

4 Americans Advance in British Golf

By the Associated Press

Troon, Scotland, May 25.—The United States forces suffered two vital setbacks in the British amateur golf championship today, but still had four big guns firing as a field of 32 reached the first real climax of the international affair.

Defeated were Walker Cup Captain Francis Ouimet, of Boston, and Reynolds Smith, of Dallas. Survivors were United States Champion Johnny Goodman, of Omaha; Charles (Chuck) Kocsis, of Detroit; Charley Yates, of Atlanta, and Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans. The only trouble now is that Goodman and Kocsis meet in the fourth round tomorrow morning in what looks like one of the decisive matches of the tournament.

Ouimet was beaten, 1 up, in a third-round match by Cecil Ewing, burly Irishman who played on the 1936 British Walker Cup team. Smith, beaten 2 up by Jocelyn Walker, former Cambridge star, went out in the second round, together with American-born Robert Sweeny, the defending champion, who lost to Dr. W. M. Robb, 5 and 4.

Play Only Once.

Goodman and Kocsis, who reached the third round yesterday, played only once today, the American champion swamping Albert W. Briscoe, Irish Internationalist, 6 and 5, and Kocsis disposing of John S. Montgomerie, 4 and 2. Yates beat Frank Pennink, English champion the last two years, by 3 and 2 in the morning, then beat Stanley P. Morrison, 5 and 4. Haas' victims were Dr. J. D. MacCormack, by 7 and 5, and Derek A. Drayson, 4 and 3.

Two down at the eighth, and beaten by the powerful hitting and miraculous putting of the Irishman, Ouimet met his challenge twice and then, when he appeared ready for his reward, faltered and was lost.

In the most difficult section of the course, going "round the bend," Ouimet fired four straight 4's, one under par, at Ewing from the ninth through the twelfth. This gave him a one-hole lead. Even after he lost that, he rallied to win numbers 15 and 16 and strode to the seventeenth tee 1 up.

Then the "impossible" happened. Ouimet misjudged the cross-wind from the tee, chipped poorly and lost his lead to Ewing's bogey 4. Again at the home hole, with a great, rushing gallery cheering him on, he under-hit his approach and lost the hole and the match to Ewing's regulation 4.

Smith Falls First.

The first American to fall was Smith, who never looked like a winner. His driving and putting were bad. Two missed 5-footers on the first four greens put him in a hole and after that he never got ahead.

He fought gallantly to get even at the tenth, and then watched Walker stroke putts home from all over the green to win the match. Like Ouimet, Smith killed himself off at the seventeenth. He cut out his tee shot, lost the hole to Walker's par, and the former Cambridge captain closed him out by sinking a 12-footer for a birdie on the home green.

In order to get an idea of just how tough the four surviving Americans are one must look at their cards. Yates, the man who made putting look easy, was 3 under 4s for the 30 holes it took him to eliminate Pennink and Morrison. Kocsis was 2 under par for the 15 holes he needed to thump Montgomerie; Goodman was even par aganist Briscoe, and Haas shot even par for both his matches.

Warneke to Join Team.

St. Louis, May 25 (AP).—Lon Warneke, No. 1 man on the St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff, will rejoin the Redbirds Friday at Cincinnati and is slated to pitch the Friday night game, Cardinal officials announced today.

Ossie Bluege Steals Second

Eastern Nips Central, 8-5

Virtually Clinches D. C. Interhigh Title.

Eastern virtually clinched the Inter-High baseball championship and preserved its undefeated record in the series yesterday by turning back Central, 8-5, at Griffith Stadium.

Several hundred students watched the crack Lincoln Park nine push over four runs in the opening inning and then coast to an easy victory behind the 5-hit pitching of Lefty Stockwell and Rip Carver, who relieved him in the ninth. Stockwell granted four hits in the eight innings he worked and fanned eight.

Dick Rozelle was Central's opening hurler and he lasted until the eighth when Dizzy Dezerne came in and held Eastern to a single hit. But the damage had been done by that time, for the Guyonmen were leading 8-3. Central managed to score a single run in both the eighth and ninth innings but its rallies were checked in time.

Both teams had a big first inning, with Central coming back after the four Eastern runs to make three as Stockwell passed two batters and wild-pitched a man home. The game moved along with Eastern holding a run margin until the fifth. Then the Lincoln Parkers quickly pulled away with a run in the fifth, two in the sixth and another in the seventh.

Al Kidwell, shortstop, and Lee Lusby, second baseman, led Eastern's 11-hit attack with two apiece. Kidwell had a triple and Lusby a double. Catcher Kenny Bransdorm with two singles in three trips was best for Central.

Giants Trim Cards, 3 to 1

Schumacker Allows Losers 3 Hits.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 25.—Prince Hal Schumacher was back in form today for the first time in a month and with his pitching arm and homer-hitting bat sparked the Giants to a 3-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The win enabled Bill Terry's Terriers to hold the 2½-game margin in first place in the National League and marked the first time in two weks they had put two consecutive wins together.

Schumacher, in his first full nine-inning job since he whipped the Boston Bees on April 28, pitched six-hit ball against the Gashouse Gang. The only run scored off him came on Don Gutteridge's homer in the fifth.

After Gutteridge's wallop tied up the score, Schumacher proceeded to put the game on ice in the fifth by clubbing a long homer into the upper leftfield stands. Jojo Moore came through with an extra run on a four-base smash in the seventh. All the Giant scoring was at the expense of Lefty Clyde Shoun, who was finally lifted in favor of Curt Davis in the eighth.

Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Cards, was tossed out of the game in the second inning during an argument with Umpire George Barr. Frisch protested a called third strike on Pepper Martin.

Wild Heave Helps Score Final Tally

Rookie Southpaw Lets Griffs Down With But Ten Hits.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, May 25.—A young fellow named Howard Mills, a tall blond, left-handed chap of 22 years, pitched 13 innings of ignominy at the already hapless Nats this afternoon and beat 'em, 4 to 3.

Today the Nats were licked not only by the last-place St. Louis Browns, mind you, but by a raw rookie southpaw who was making his first start in the big leagues after a period of undistinguished service at San Antonio.

He hooked up with Monte Weaver in what eventuated, after an unsteady start by both hurlers, as a brilliant pitching duel, and then after Weaver had been withdrawn for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning, young Mills took on Pete Appleton for the rest of the distance and out-pitched him, too.

Uses Side-Arm Curve.

For 13 innings he threw an annoying side-arm curve at the Nats' batting order, escaping threat after threat and, when the game wore into the fourth extra inning, it was not Mills, the rookie, but Appleton, the veteran, who cracked.

Mills had tacked nine shut-out innings onto his shaky start and Appleton went back to the mound after a Washington threat had petered miserably in the thirteenth. He was in trouble immediately, pitching a left-field single to Harland Clift, the first batter.

Clift moved to second on Kress' sacrifice bunt and then Appleton dug his own pitfall with a wild pitch that sent Clift to third. He passed Bell and Mazzera purposely to set the stage for a double play, but George McQuinn sent the 1,248 customers home happy with a long fly to Mel Almada that permitted Clift to score from third after the catch.

All told, the Browns made 11 hits off Weaver and Appleton, while Mills was holding the Nats to 10. In the last nine innings of the game the Washingtons managed to nudge Mills for only 4 hits.

Weaver's had been a courageous performance, despite the fact that he permitted three of the Browns' four runs. For a half-hour before the game he had been a patient of Trainer Mike Martin on the rubbing table. Cracked on the knee by a foul ball during batting practices, Weaver limped in pain to the clubhouse and displayed angry looking bruises on his right kneecap. Manager Bucky Harris ordered Jimmy De Shong to take over the pitching job, but Weaver insisted that he could pitch. After allowing the Browns six hits in the first three innings, he held 'em to one hit in the next four.

Nats Score Early.

The Nats caused a great deal of commotion in the making of only 1 run to take the lead in the first inning. After Bluege fanned, Buddy Lewis beat out a slow bounder to Heffner and Al Simmons slammed a single into left. Young Mills then filled the bases by walking Bonura and then he wild-pitched Lewis home from third. Then he walked Stone to fill the bases again.

It began to take on all the appearances of a juicy uprising by the Nats, but the excitement suddenly subsided. Cecil Travis popped up and Almada grounded out and Washington had only a 1-to-0 lead for its trouble.

In the second inning the Nats were out there trying to come from behind. Because the first two Brownie hitters—Buster Mills and Harland Clift—had wiped out Washington's lead. Mills had rammed a two-bagger into right center and Clift had swatted his second home run of the season into the leftfield seats.

The Nats made it 2-2 promptly, however. Rick Ferrell pumped the first of his three two-baggers into leftfield and Bluege scored him with a single to left. But the Browns got that run right back against the unsteady Weaver. George McQuinn, the Clarendon, Va., boy, who plays first base for the St. Looeys, rapped

Ticket Sale Sags on Eve of Ross-Armstrong Title Fight

Barney Is Favorite; Late Rush to Henry

Odds May Break Down Into Even Money Before Ring Time Tonight; Jacobs Will Be Lucky if Fight Grosses $150,000.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 25.—Barney Ross, the battling bridegroom, and Henry Armstrong, who is challenging his right to the world's welterweight title, finished their heavy chores in preparation for the fight, and announced that they are fit and ready.

Mike Jacobs the promoter was anything but ready, however, as ticket sales lagged with no immediate prospect of a pick-up that will send the gross receipts up near the $250,000 he figured on drawing with this show. When the boxoffice closed tonight less than $100,000 was in the till, and observers believed that if the fight grosses $150,000 Jacobs will be lucky.

Ross has been guaranteed $40,000, and Armstrong $25,000 for working tomorrow. Rent for the Garden Bowl, on Long Island, scene of the fight and a jinx to champions, is $40,000 for the season and, since Jacobs isn't figuring on using it again this summer, he must make the whole amount on this show. Hence, the overhead—not including preliminary talent and hundreds of other incidental expenses . . . adds up to a cool $105,000. So it is no wonder Jacobs is not exactly happy on the eve of the festivities.

Despite the fact that no champion ever has successfully defended his crown in the rambling bowl, where a ringside seat is tantamount to a goal-line pew in football, Ross rules a favorite. A heavy influx of Armstrong money from the West, however, sent the odds tumbling sharply down and, with Al Jolson flying here purportedly with 50 grand to wager on Henry Armstrong, the boys may enter the ring on even terms.

The financial situation at this stage is 8½ to 5, if you want the odds, and 9-5, if you want to lay them—take your choice of fighters.

Prematurely gray around the forehead, but as chipper as the day he lifted the regal chapeau from Jimmy McLarnin's warped features, Ross worked only three rounds today before an audience of 500 at Stillman's gymnasium. Yesterday's turnaway throng, which overflowed to the sidewalk, was caused by a prevailing belief that Barney intended to box a few rounds.

Ross weighs 141 pounds, but may go to 143 before the first bell. He is in superb condition and if he loses the blame will lie entirely with Armstrong. This reporter did not see him box, but impartial observers who have followed the routines at both camps says he looks better than ever, is punching sharply and boxing beautifully.

Armstrong, too, is reported in fine fettle, although he has not appeared in town and will not show until the weighing-in party tomorrow. He scales 135½, wringing west, and will have to eat a hearty meal to make the required 136 pounds stipulated in the contract.

His drying-out process will be conducted in negative style. Whereas most pugilists almost use a butcher knife shearing off excess poundage before weighing-in, Armstrong must try to keep fat until he makes 136, then will dry out to get back to 133 pounds at ringside. Meade thinks Henry will fight better at 133.

To insure making this figure, Meade will have his fighter do eight rounds of shadow boxing in the dressing room. He wants him to be perspiring freely when he climbs into the arena, to insure getting off fast against the slow-starting Ross. Meade's plans are aimed at a quick knockout—the quicker the better.

Ross punches hard enough to score a knockdown if he gets a clean shot at Armstrong's proboscis, but the wiseacres figure he will win, if it goes that way, by a decision.

He will be trying for a knockout, however, if Armstrong shows no disposition to lag in the last few seconds of each round. If Henry insists on slugging it out, during those precious seconds, stealing Ross' thunder as it were, then Barney must step up the pace and he may find it difficult. Therefore, he'll try to get rid of him.

HISTORY OF WELTERWEIGHT DIVISION.
(How Title Changed Hands.)

Paddy Duffy was recognized as champion welterweight in the early '80s and he defended his title several times. He retired and the title was held in abeyance until 1892, when it was claimed by Mysterious Billy Smith.

Dec. 14, 1892—Billy Smith defeated Danny Needham by K. O. in 14 rounds, San Francisco. Two years later Tommy Ryan defeated Smith in 20 rounds at Minneapolis and was considered welter champion. On March 2, 1896, Kid McCoy kayoed Ryan in 15 rounds at Maspeth, Long Island, but when both McCoy and Ryan entered the middleweight ranks, Smith again claimed the title.

Dec. 18, 1901—Joe Walcott halted Ferns in 5 rounds at Fort Erie, Canada.

Apr. 30, 1904—Dixie Kid won from Walcott on foul in 20 rounds at San Francisco, but Dixie Kid's claims were not taken seriously and Walcott was still considered champion.

Oct. 16 1906—Honey Mellody, of Boston, defeated Walcott in 15 rounds at Chelsea, Mass.

November 1, 1922.—Mickey Walker defeated Britton in 15 rounds at New York. In 1923, the New York State Athletic Commission ordered Walker to fight Dave Shade for the title and on his failure to do so declared Shade champion. Jimmy Jones, of Ohio, fought Shade in Boston on July 27, 1923, and won on points in 12 rounds. Jones claimed the title but public continued to accept Walker as legitimate champion and in 1924 the New York Commission restored Walker's title.

June 3, 1927—Joe Dundee defeated Latzo, 15 rounds, New York.

September 5, 1930—Tommy Freeman dethroned Thompson in 15-round contest at Cleveland.

February 22, 1933—Young Corbett 3d outpointed Fields in 10 rounds at San Francisco.

Bobby Jones concluded his brief visit to the city yesterday with his second par performance in as many days, a 70 over the Columbia course. Pairing with Dana Belser, they defeated Freddie McLeod and Albert MacKenzie, 4 and 3, with McLeod's 75 next, followed by MacKenzie's 77 and Belser's 81. More than 100 club members watched the match.

Golfdom's grand slam king missed only three greens over the route, and if his putts were dropping he could easily have had a 64 or 65. He birdied the first hole with an 8-foot putt, then 3-putted the third and ninth. He birdied the twelfth after trapping his third and dropped his first long putt in his two rounds here on the fifteenth hole, a 25-footer. He had par for 69, but pulled his second shot on the final hole and finished with a bogey 5 for the 70.

He had birdie putts of 7 feet and under on four holes on the back nine that failed to drop and commented that "my putter was a little unruly during both rounds here." Jones left for Cincinnati last night and he will gradually work his way to Denver, scene of the National Open.

Washington entries in the Baltimore Country Club invitation tournament today are led by three Columbia members, Harvey Johnson, Miller B. Stevinson and Albert R. MacKenzie.

Four teams reached the semifinal round of the Treasurer's Cup play at Chevy Chase, with Page Hufty and George Galbraith requiring only 13 holes to win, 7 and 8, over George Elliott and W. G. Brantley. Another favored pair, Frank Reeside and J. K. McKammon, upset Johnny Brawner and Reeve Lewis, 3 and 2.

FINEST QUALITY GENUINE WHITE BUCKSKIN

Everything from a Goatskin to a Cowhide is tanned WHITE this year. Even Genuine White Buckskin is more confusing, as it is sold in six different grades, and an expert leather man can't tell the difference in the window

But for the last fifteen years, Regal Stores have been recognized as Headquarters for Genuine White Buck from Coast to Coast, because we have made in our own factory, and sold in our own Stores more fine quality Genuine White Buckskin Shoes than any other shoe manufacturer in America.

The finest quality Genuine White Buckskin, used in Regal Shoes, costs about 50% more than the average cost of upper leather in any line of $5 shoes. It is used in the most expensive shoes, but it is too expensive for a cheap shoe.

And it is worth the difference because no one has ever discovered a real substitute for Genuine White Buckskin. It is porous and cool. It is easily cleaned. It has a soft look and "feel," and will look as well next year as this year.

P.S. You can pay twice our price, and not get any better quality Genuine White Buckskin—and this year a good many would like to save the difference.

Frank Brooke Wins Rappahannock Purse Easily at Charles Town

Trixie Lass Gets Place; Favorite 4th

Winner Pays $8 Mutuel; Lady's Favor Runs in Third Spot.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25.—The dark blue colors of Mrs. Kenneth N. Gilpin, of nearby Virginia, continued to dominate the feature races of the Charles Town Jockey Club, when Frank Brooks scored an easy victory in the running of the Rappahannock Purse, a test of 7 furlongs, which lured seven horses to the post. Jockey Lou Machado brought the gelded son of John P. Grier home five lengths in front of H. O. Witts' Trixie Lass, with Lady's Favor beaten three additional lengths. Timber Lady, installed the favorite, was fourth.

Frank Brooks, winner in his first start over this track, came back today to provide an $8 pay-off for the faithful. His time of 1:32 1-5 was made over a heavy, holding track that was drying out in spots.

A crowd of 6,000 witnessed the program and saw Frank Brooks hop to the front at once. Timber Lady was off poorly, but soon took the role of No. 1 chaser, followed by Lady's Favor. Frank Brooks drew out gradually and there wasn't a "catcher" in the group. Palumbo saved much ground with Trixie Lass, but the latter was no match for the winner under the conditions.

Wise Revue, after taking three beatings here, came through with a victory in the first race, winning by two lengths from Gee Sharp, with Spotless third in the field of eight. Running in the colors of R. V. Parrish and ridden by Jockey Bobby Root, Wise Revue supplied a $24.40 pay-off. Proteus was a dull-running favorite.

Tractable, an 8-year-old gelding who has been running out at the turns, stayed in today and accounted for the second race, paying a $6.60 mutuel. With Jockey A. Gaither driving him, Tractable took command in the early stretch and won by two lengths over Handley, the pacemaker most of the way. Lady Buck was third in the group of seven.

Jockey Manny Berg brought Mr. Melvin through on the inside to win the third race from Barney Allis, who came very wide into the stretch. Baby Witt was third in the 6-furlong test. The winner was well played at a $7.20 mutuel and is the property of G. R. Lindsay.

Schley Buck came out of winter retirement to win at the first asking for G. G. Waugh, jr. The son of Canter gave away weight to his rivals and downed Caidon, the favorite, by a length and a half. Caidon was kept on the rail in the heavy going and tired badly after leading the field into the stretch. Miss Darling was third to the $9.20 winner.

SCHLEY BUCK, taken under steadying restraint while running with CAIDON, came out in better going and wore down leader to win going away. CAIDON was hard ridden, went to rail and tired in deep footing. MISS DARLING went evenly. HYDRANGEA had no excuses. The others were not prominent.

Cubs Whip Brooklyn

French Gives 3 Hits as Chicago Wins, 7-2.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, May 25.—Larry French, the Chicago Cubs, Southpaw ace, pitched a three-hitter today to trounce the Dodgers 7 to 2 and win his third straight hurling victory.

In addition to his flinging, he struck the most damaging blow in the ten-hit attack when the Cubs fired at Tot Pressnell by doubling with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to send the final three Chicago runs across. Ripper Collins hit his sixth homer of the year in the second inning.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Dodgers.

Dear Al: Selections at Charles Town.

Jockey D. Scocca got an unscheduled mud bath in the second race. After bringing Lady Buck into third money, he was tossed out of the saddle. He escaped without injury. Jockey Johnny Taylor was suspended for five days for rough riding in the first event. He had the mount on Take Off. The gelding was not named for Gypsie Rose Lee. Hillen Smith won the checker championship of the press box today. Jockey Bobby Root was the second rider to get tossed after a finish. Gold Sweeper went flying into the mud and he walked back. The track superintendent's crew was hard at work on the track today and, barring rain, hope to have it good by post time for tomorrow's program. Minors are not allowed in the betting ring at Charles Town. This is a State law. In answer to inquiry: Earl Sande rode Zev in that match race. Gregg Johnson, serving as a placing judge here, is taking stall applications for the ten-day Blair meeting which opens July 27. Apprentice J. Howell has left this track to head for Agawam. Lou Pikor left for the same track. Luke Connell lost three shoes in the running of his last race here, according to his trainer. John Bosley was a visitor here and says he will send Pompeius over the jumps. The horse Never Idol has been barred by the stewards for one week. The reason was not given. Lou Machado has been the only jockey to ride both ends of a daily double since the meeting began. BILL.

First Race—I'm going to take a shot at the moon in the day's opener by picking Dun Lucky. This one appears to be in shape and may surprise this gang. Luke Connell and Sweepemup to take care of the others.

Second Race—Sun Belle has shown little in two starts here. Breaks from an inside post out of the 5-furlong chute and I'm going to string along. Silver Arch turned in a fair effort the other day and is dangerous. Speedy Tour may take the third money.

Third Race—Veritas has the rail position in this field and should make the most of it. Kilgore will do the booting. Trip has shown speed and should be a threat. Look Forward is a possible upsetter.

Fourth Race—Anya seems best of this field and needs only the right ride. Scold and Hiblaze have that early speed that makes horses dangerous in this short sprint.

Fifth Race—Mad Dash gets another chance. This one almost fell getting out of the gate in that last. With better racing luck, I look for a set of brackets. Morvim has been close in races here and is a threat. Crossing Over may awake.

Sixth Race—Madame Walter gets in this with light weight and may lead throughout. Gagne will like that and I'm passing off that last as a conditioner. Caleb for the show end.

Seventh Race—Bungalow has been kidding around. Berg will turn on the heat this time and take down the dicision. Aufoin has been running honest races here. Petee Lad for the show award.

Best bet—Anya.

Yarosz' Pilot Takes $1,200

Agrees to Terms for Bout Here With Abrams.

Ray Foutts, manager of Teddy Yarosz, and Goldie Ahearn, local matchmaker, yesterday reached a compromise in their financial battle anent the guarantee the former world's middleweight champion would receive should he decide to sign for a ten-round match with Georgie Abrams next month at Griffith Stadium.

Foutts demanded $1,500, and Ahearn only wanted to offer $1,000, but late in the afternoon they compromised on $1,200. The next step is to get Yarosz to sign.

"We have compromised on $1,200."

The matchmaker was in Philadelphia for the express purpose of signing up Adamick for a fight at the stadium either next month or early in June.

Although Foutts agreed to send Yarosz to Washington for the $1,200 guarantee, the matchmaker will not be relieved until the former champion's contract is received.

In the meantime, new headaches awaited Ahearn upon his arrival home. Sid Fishel, Abrams' cigar-smoking manager, said that his boy is really taking a long strike in agreeing to meet Yarosz, who cleaned up the middleweight ranks a few years ago after winning the title from Vince Dundee. Teddy held on to his title until he collided one night with Babe Risko, who grabbed the crown from him in a blistering battle. Since that loss to Risko, Yarosz decisively trounced the Babe.

Fishel said that Abrams had been "fighting for peanuts" in the past, and that he is a big enough drawing card to warrant a healthy percentage of the gate. He will file his squawk today.

Jim Adamick Kayo Winner

By the United Press.

Adamick tossed punches too hard and too fast for the veteran Philadelphia Italian. He took the first round with a barrage of rights to the head and body. The second round was even.

Ettore took the third round with a show of his old aggressiveness.

Browns Nip Nats, 4 to 3

Nats

a double past Buddy Lewis, took third on Heath's single off Bluege's upstretched glove, and scored while Heffner was in the act of hitting into a double play.

In the fourth, the Nats were off again. Almada drew a walk from Rookie Mills and Ferrell pounded a double against the leftfield wall only inches shy of a home run to make the score 3-3. But again the Nats were restricted to a single run, chiefly because Monte Weaver, attempting to bunt, succeeded only in hitting a soft grounder to Clift who tagged Ferrell as he raced into third.

Weaver Settles Down.

As if in appreciation of his pals' feat in twice tying the score for him, Weaver settled down after the second inning and pitched superbly. He gave up a pair of useless hits in the third inning, but then suddenly reformed. Through the fourth, fifth and sixth innings the St. Looeys couldn't get on base against Monte. He pitched a double to Heath with one out in the seventh, but turned in his fifth successive shut-out inning.

This fellow Mills was doing all right for himself, too. The Nats had men on second and third with only one out in the seventh after Bluege walked, Lewis beat out a hit to Kress and Simmons sacrificed. But Mills didn't surrender. He bore down against Zeke Bonura and Johnny Stone, Bonura popping to short right field and Stone grounding out, and the Nats got nothing out of the inning.

Weaver was withdrawn in the eighth so that Wes Ferrell could hit for him. Ferrell tapped a puny grounder back to Mills after brother Rick had swatted his third double with two out. Then Pete Appleton went in to duel the Brown rookie.

Into extra innings moved the game, with Mills and Appleton pitching superbly. The St. Louis rookie warded off mild threats in the ninth and eleventh, but Appleton was truly sensational. They didn't get a hit off Pete in the eighth, ninth or tenth, and it was no fault of his that the eleventh contained a St. Louis threat. Because wiht two out, the hit that started the fuss was a fluky pop single to short leftfield by Mel Mazzera. McQuinn singled to left to put Mazzera on second, but Appleton got rid of Heath on a meek fly to Stone.

Trouble In the Twelfth.

There was trouble for Pete in the twelfth, too. Heffner began it with a single through the box with none out. But Zeke Bonura lifted Appleton out of trouble by grabbing Mills' attempted sacrifice bunt and starting a double-play via Travis, who eventually relayed the ball back to Ossie Bluege, who covered first.

A triumphant finish appeared in sight for the Nats in the thirteenth, after Travis led off with a walk. When he wild pitched Travis to second, Rookie Mills seemily had cracked under the strain. Almada laid down a sacrifice that moved Travis to third, but Mills stayed in there and pitched. He walked Rick Ferrell purposely, and then grabbed a grounder off Appleton's bat, trapping Travis between home and third and running him down. He disposed of Bluege on a grounder and escaped undamaged from the inning.

Lee and Ellis Reach Finals

Will Play Robinson-Miller Duo Here Friday.

The teams of Anne Ellis-Margo Lee and Dorette Miller-Margaret Robinson advanced into the final round of the doubles play in the Star City of Washington tennis tournament yesterday at Army and Navy Club.

The Misses Lee and Ellis scored a mild upset in turning back the No. 2 seeded combination of Sara Moore and Winnie Sutties by the scores of 4—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Miller experienced little difficulty in defeating Cynthia Davis and Jean Wilmerding, 6—1, 6—1.

Miss Ellis and Miss Lee came from behind to nip their favored opponents. They dropped the first set and were behind, 4—2, in the deciding set, but won out when Miss Ellie took her service, and she and her partner broke through Miss Moore's service.

Yesterday's winners will clash Friday for the championship following the match for the singles titles. Singles finalists will be determined this afternoon. The semifinal encounters bring together Sara Moore, seeded No. 1, and Willie O'Steen, the most improved player in the tournament, and Mrs. Robinson, seeded No. 2, and Winnie Suttle, another tourney surprise.

Man of the Month

(Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties' "Man of the Month.")

By Arch McDonald.
(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

Three Washington players distinguished themselves yesterday despite the defeat at the hands of the Browns. The most outstanding Nat was Rick Ferrell.

To Ferrell, four points in the Man of the Month Club, because he tried valiantly to slug the Nats to victory with three solid doubles, two of which were only inches short of home runs.

To Monte Weaver, three points, because he went into the game with an injured knee and after a shaky start pitched five scoreless innings before being taken out for a pinch hitter.

To Pete Appleton, three points, because until he yielded the winning run in the thirteenth, he had pitched five scoreless innings in an attempt to hold the Browns in check.

A home run by little Emmett Mueller, Phils' second sacker, in the second inning, provided the winning run.

Brown and Bruns Headline Mat Program at the Arena Tonight

Promised a shot at Jim Londos in the opening outdoor show of the season, Orville Brown, the strapping Kansan, and Bobby Bruns, his rival from Chicago, will "shoot the works" tonight at Turner's Arena in their headline wrestling match.

Revenge will be Bruns' motto tonight. Still fresh in his mind is that freak decision rendered by Referee Bortnick two weeks ago in his second engagement with Brown, who was awarded the fall after both collided head-on and flopped to the canvas. Brown, however, happened to be on top, and hence the decision in his favor.

In view of such a finish, Promoter Turner is bringing the two back to his arena for a third battle. Their first bout was a 30-minute draw.

With Londos meeting the winner, both Brown and Bruns will unravel everything in their mat category to get that crack at the Greek, who plans to leave this country after his appearance at the stadium.

Overnight Bruns became a mat favorite in Washington. A year ago he came here begging for a chance to wrestle and was given the cold shoulder by Turner. When he went to town a month ago and held Brown to a draw Turner was so impressed with the Chicagoan that he elevated him immediately to a top spot. That was one of the quickest jumps to stardom ever enjoyed by a grappler here.

The Arena management also announced that all tickets sold for last Friday's Brown-Bruns match will be honored tonight.

The first bout gets under way at 8:30 o'clock.

In the semiwindup Chief Thunderbird, the British Columbia Indian, whose war dance keeps the crowd in an uproar, will hammer away at Jake Patterson, the erstwhile Devil Dog.

Frenchy LaRue meets Boris Demitroff; barefooted Bhu Pinder tackles Ivan Vacturoff, and Eddie King takes on Jack Pontz in other matches.

Promoter Turner announced last night that a round by round account of tonight's Ross-Armstrong fight will be broadcast through the Arena's loud-speaker system.

Wheat Prices Tumble to New Low Records

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 25.—Five cents Winnipeg wheat market collapse and 4⅛ cents here smashed low price records today that, except between 1930 and 1934, extended back 30 years.

It was the third successive day that Chicago quotations had reached new bottom levels, largely because of prospects that the 1938 domestic harvest getting under way now in Texas would result in bumper production.

Favorable weather developments in the United States and in parts of Europe, disturbing price tumbles abroad, and enlarged liquidation of Chicago May contracts, together with almost total suspension of north American export business, all put a heavy weight on prices.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ¾ to 3¾ cents lower, compared with yesterday's finish; May, 72½@72¾; July, 72½@72⅝. Corn, ¾ to 1⅛ cents down; May, 55½@55⅝; July, 56⅝@56¾. Oats, unchanced to ½ off: Rye, ½ to ⅞ decline, and provisions a setback of 2 to 30 cents.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 25.—The stock market closed with an irregular tone as gold mining reacted sharply on profit-taking sales near the end of the session. Industrials were in good demand, especially tobacco, steel and aviation shares. The gilt edged and transatlantic groups held steady, while oils had a tendency to sag. Foreign bonds sold off and rubber issues remained featureless.

Paris.—International securities and banking issues closed weak in the bourse, Suez Canal lost 500 francs, Royal Dutch was down 140 and Bank of France issue declined more than 400 francs from Tuesday's final prices. Rentes were also heavy with losses ranging from 75 to 185 centimes, and the industrial groups lost considerable ground.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures touched new low ground for the season and finished 1⅛d to 1⅜d not lower. The market sagged on cheaper and larger Russian offerings, smaller milling demand and weakness in the Winnipeg market today. Easiness in the Bombay cotton market combined with disappointing trade reports caused continental selling and liquidation in cotton futures here, and prices were down 9 to 11 points net at the close.

Cotton Slumps; Foreign Selling

New York, May 25 (AP).—Cotton slumped into further ne wlow ground for the movement today under heavy foreign selling and general liquidation. October declined from 8.35 to a closing low of 8.25 and final prices were 16 to 19 points net lower.

The market opened 9 to 10 points lower in sympathy with the action of Liverpool and Bombay and under active offerings from these markets. Offerings seemed to be influenced largely by the more favorable quotations here as compared with prices prevailing on the foreign cotton exchanges.

Auto Builders To Ask Lower Steel Prices

Heavy Buying Expected if Concession Is Granted.

New York, May 25.—It is almost a foregone conclusion that the automobile companies will press for lower steel prices when their initial orders for material for the fabricating of their 1939 models are placed some time this summer, says the Standard Statistics Co.

Although most steel mills are losing money at current levels of operations, the fact that first quarter losses were relatively small when viewed against average industry operations of less than 32 per cent of capacity for the period, promises to be a powerful argument for the consumer in his demand for price concessions for fall delivery.

Order Volume May Rise.

On the basis of precedent, it would appear that the steel companies will be induced to lower their price schedules some time later this summer if it then appears that concessions will induce the actual placing of a substantial volume of orders. The fact of the matted is that steel prices have held unchanged in recent months and are being quoted at these same levels for the third quarter because of the absence of a sufficient potential demand to furnish a real test of the price structure.

Thus the expected pressure to be applied by the automobile makers when fabrication of 1939 lines begins late this summer would appear to have a better than even chance of forcing the issue and of bringing about a lowering of steel prices generally. It remains to be seen, however, whether the steel price cuts, expected this summer, will be accompanied or followed by wage cuts.

The long stalemate in the steel industry as a result of the inelastic character of steel prices because of the freezing of wage rates at record levels is likely to be broken, therefore, within the next two or three months, notwithstanding the fact that only last week the industry announced unchanged prices for the entire third quarter.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shiveiy, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Continue Decline in Dull Trading; U. S. Bonds Weak; Wheat Lower.

New York, May 25.—Stocks continued their drift down the slope in a dull day of a little over 550,000 shares. Leading stocks gave up from a fraction to a point. United States Government bonds weakened and then recovered a bit before the close. July wheat dropped 1⅛ cents to 72½ cents a bushel. Dollars rose to a new high level on this movement against francs and sterling, reflecting the flight of war-shy funds in Europe.

Again sellers were no great respecters of stocks or groups of stocks. Railroad shares were depressed by the reports of poor earnings for April and the general outlook for a flat business summer. The same consideration on prospects held down the steel shares, as the industry has little chance of improvement before the autumn. Motor stocks continued heavy on the wholly unseasonal decline in sales and doubts as to whether the contemplated relief, bonuses and distribution of Government largesse will come soon enough to help matters this summer.

Norfolk & Western dropped nearly 4 points on light offerings, but just in perversity an early gain of 3 points was made by Sloss Sheffield, but the advance was later given up. Allied Chemical, Anaconda Wire, Union Carbide, Case, Eastman Kodak and a few others dropped 1 to 3 points. Steel floated along about even with the board. General Electric weakened considerably and the coppers softened. Ingersoll Rand, suffering from a thin market, gave up about 5 points. Most of the price movements that went further than a point took place among preferred issues.

Disturbing News.

Again it was easier to find justification for a bearish stand on markets than it was to defend a bullish position, but the market isn't thinskinned. If it were, price swings would be wide and the sales volume would increase sharply at times. No particular change in the European war news took place and while the tension along the Czechoslovakiian frontier is hard, the feeling is general, on both side of the Atlantic, that the hour for a general war has not yet struck.

It may be difficult for an American to make head or tail of the European animal; it is more difficult for him to distinguish bow from stern when he takes a look at his own ship of state, which seems to be sailing away on the high seas, first on one tack and then on the other, while swinging to anchor in the Potomac basin. It is equally difficult for the shore observer to tell whether the quarterback and his teammates on the crew are manning the pumps to empty a leaky hold, or whether they are merely priming the pumps in the engine room so that a good head of steam can be had for assisting the propulsion of the ship — provided some one remembers to slip the cable.

Straining at Anchor.

Threatened passage by the Senate, now that the House has got rid of the measure, of the wage and hour bill merely means that another anchor has been thrown out. Another political compromise with sound economics is being made, apparently; business already is suffering from too many of them. If the bill goes through, then both the major "objectives" for which the special session of Congress was called last autumn will have been attained. The mere calling of that session had much to do with greasing the skids for the slide of business into that depression which so many commentators, taking their cue from the President himself, are pleased to term psychological.

Business slipped a bit further last month and inasmuch as no sign of improvement is appearing this month, it is quite likely that second quarter corporation reports will look even less favorable than those for the first three months. At any rate the reduction and omission of dividends continues, several contributions to that side of the ledger being made today. Industrial production in April fell from 79 per cent in March to 77 per cent of the 1923-25 average, according to the Federal Reserve Board's index. The fall occurred largely because of the slump in textiles and lumber. A year ago the index was around the peak at 118, so that the year has brought one of the sharpest declines in business on record.

Foreign Trade.

Foreign trade figures for April were fairly good, and exclusive of silver imports the excess of exports was slightly larger than that for March. Merchandise exports were virtually the same as in March, although the month had one less day and imports were a few millions lower. Compared with a year ago the position was much stronger, as exports were $6,000,000 higher and imports were $127,000,000 lower. However, foreign trade improvement is coming to a halt and unless the large crops and lower prices stimulate agricultural shipments while barring food imports, lower trade figures from now on may be anticipated, notwithstanding the continued heavy European and Far Eastern demands for materials of all sorts. Incidentally, the Government took in more than $15,000,000 of silver last month, a tidy bit of waste for the taxpayers and, in large part, a means of keeping afloat the "expropriation" new deal in Mexico.

1937 Tobacco Income Highest in 19 Years

By the Associated Press.

American tobacco growers last year received a cash income of $318,563,000, the largest since 1919, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday.

The bureau noted as "significant" a greater demand for cigarette or flue-cured, a material increase in the demand for burley and a reduced demand for other tobacco types.

Curb Declines Led by Utilities

New York, May 25 (AP).—Curb market stocks hit the downward trail more aggressively today and at the end losses of minor fractions to more than two points were well distributed among leading groups.

Trading activity again centered in the utilities, but as in the recent past losses were less severe than in other sections. American Gas surrendered more than a point at 24¾, Electric Bond & Share last ⅜ at 6⅞ and Niagara Hudson dropped ¼ to 7.

Elsewhere losses were generally heavier and included Babcock & Wilcox, Cuneo Press, Jones & Laughlin Steel, National Sugar Refining, Creole Petroleum, Newmont Mining, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sherwin-Williams.

Great Atlantic & Pacific and McWilliams Dredging were among the few gainers. Transfers amounted to 133,000 shares, compared with 99,000 the day before.

SEC Announces Reduced Fees For Trustees

By the Associated Press.

The Securities Commission reduced yesterday fees of the trustee and associates in the reorganization of Utilities Power and Light Corporation. The decision was the first of this type by the commission.

Compensation of Charles True Adams, trustee, was fixed at $1,000. He had asked $1,750. Melvin M. Hawley, his attorney, was allowed $3,000 for services as attorney to the temporary trustee and trustee during March. He had asked $4,500. Jay S. Hartt, who had asked $2,750, was allowed $2,300 for services as temporary trustee.

Future fees, effective as of April 1, were fixed on a monthly basis as follows:

Adams, who had asked $3,500, was allowed $2,000 plus $750 for expenses. Hawley was allowed $3,000 plus $1,200 for expenses, instead of $6,000 asked. Monroe, asked $2,000, was allowed $1,500 plus $200 for expenses.

Hartt was allowed $2,500 for himself, plus $2,500 for salaries of employes. The amount he asked was not given.

Fees reduced prior to April 1, covered the following periods: Adams, from March 16 to March 31, 1938; Hartt, from February 24 to March 16, 1938, and Monroe for March, 1938.

Old N. Y. Bank Will Readopt Original Name

Bank of New York & Trust Company to Become Bank of New York.

New York, May 25.—Trustees of the Bank of New York & Trust Co. have voted to return to the original name by which this, the oldest bank in New York, was known when it was founded in 1784 by Alexander Hamilton and other prominent New Yorkers, and will become the "Bank of New York," as it was known for 138 years out of the 154 years it has been in business.

The history of the Bank of New York, as it is now to be known again, is the history of banking in New York, and its development to a great extent influenced the course of commercial banking in America. Organized at a meeting of business men held on February 24, 1784, at the Merchants' Coffee House, it was the first bank in New York.

The first president of the bank was Gen. Alexander McDougall. Among the original directors and early presidents of the bank was Isaac Roosevelt, great-great-great-grandfather of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He served as head of the bank from 1786 to 1791. One of the most active founders of the bank was Alexander Hamilton. He served as director and wrote its original constitution, which served as a model for the State charter granted to the bank in 1791.

When Hamilton became the first Secretary of the Treasury the first loan he arranged for the Government, $200,000, was from the Bank of New York. As evidence of the first draft against this loan, the bank still has in its possession U. S. Treasury Warrant No. 1.

Without interruption the Bank of New York has paid dividends in every year but one, 1837, when a State law prohibited all banks from paying dividends because of panic conditions, and in that instance the back dividend was paid the following year. The bank has successfully faced all panics and economic crises that have occurred in its more than a century and a half in business. Among these have been the panic of 1837, the panic of 1857, the crisis of 1873, the bank panics of 1884 and 1893, the panic of 1907, the depression of 1921 and that which began in 1929.

Bob Burns Says—

One of the worst things an actor can do is to make a date way ahead to appear at some benefit because when the date comes, he pretty near always finds that he's contracted to be some place else. I wish I could be as methodical about such things as my Uncle Skinny Flint.

He was engaged to be married and the date was set for a Tuesday. On his wedding day, he went running around to his girl's house and he says "We can't be married today because I jest figgered it out and that would put our silver wedding anniversary on a Thursday and that's my lodge night."

William E. Buffington, 65, former comptroller of the Postoffice Department, died yesterday at his native Elizabethville, Pa., as the result of pneumonia contracted in March on a vacation in Florida.

Mr. Buffington entered the department in 1906 and was superintendent of the division of finance and director of the postal savings division before his appointment as comptroller. He retired from the department in 1934.

A graduate of George Washington Law School, he was a member of the District bar and had been engaged in a private law practice here after retirement. Before entering the department he had been employed at the Southern Railway, War Department and Pension Office.

He was a Shriner, member of the Mount Vernon Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and Washington Centennial Lodge of Masons. He also was a member of the Federal City Lodge of Odd Fellows, and of the Board of Trade. He lived at 1317 Harvard street northwest.

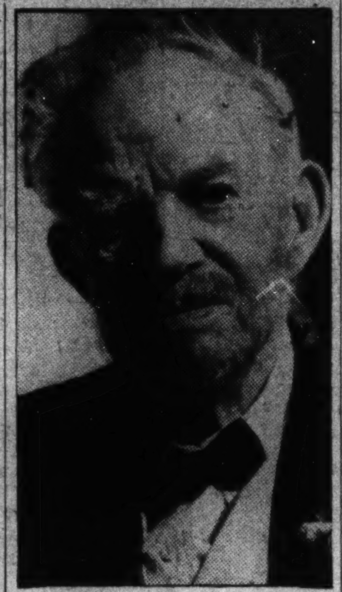
Henry R. Gibson, 101, Dies; Oldest Former Congressman

Once a Soldier, Lawyer and Editor, He Was Native of Maryland.



HENRY RICHARD GIBSON.

Henry Richard Gibson, believed to have been the oldest living former member of Congress, died yesterday at his home. His family said he was 101.

There was some question about the age of the bearded soldier, lawyer and newspaper editor. Biographies give his birth date as December 24, 1837, while the family Bible says 1836. The genial judge in recent years shrugged the difference off as "nothing to worry about."

Last Christmastime he rested in bed several days in preparation for a double celebration because the year before he had been ill on his birthday.

Born in Maryland.

Whenever he was born, it was on Kent Island, Queen Anne County, Md., son of a family prominent in colonial Maryland history. He attended schools there and in Bladensburg, Md., where he was graduated from Decker's Academy in 1858. He attended Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., graduating in 1862. In 1892 the college awarded him an honorary degree.

War was going on when he was graduated, and from 1863 to 1865 Gibson served in the commissary department of the United States Army. Upon his discharge he attended an Albany (N. Y.) law school and was admitted to the bar in 1865. The following year he went to Tennessee, hanging out his shingle in Knoxville.

His long political career began in 1868, when Gov. William G. Brownlow appointed him commissioner of claims. He served in several State offices and in the State Legislature until 1879, when he founded and edited the Knoxville Republican. In 1881 he became a postal inspector, and the following year became editor of the Knoxville Daily Chronicle.

Congress in 1894.

He dedicated several years to law and education until 1894, when he was elected to Congress from the Second District of Tennessee. He served until 1905, when he declined to run again. He has lived in Washington ever since. His home was at 1425 Allison street northwest.

Judge Gibson married twice. First wife was the former Frances M. Reed, of Brooklyn, N. Y., whom he married in 1863. She died in 1918. Two daughters survive, Mrs. Joseph Brownlee and Mrs. Walter A. Wells, both of this city. His second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Beckerdit Gibson, whom he married in 1920, also survives.

Edward T. Martin Rites Expected to Be Tuesday

Funeral services for Edward T. Martin, former manager of the Lee House and president of the Hotel Association of Washington, have been set tentatively for Tuesday at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Mr. Martin, who died Tuesday in Sarasota, Fla., retired eight months ago because of illness. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susan Martin; a son, Jerry Martin, of New York, and a daughter, Mrs. Susan Hust, of Takoma Park.

Mrs. Charles E. Marsh Will Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles E. Marsh, 62, who died Tuesday at her home, 1342 Taylor street northwest, will be held today at 11:15 a. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home. Burial will be in Piney Church Cemetery, Charles County, Md. A Native of Leesburg, Va., Mrs. Marsh is survived by three brothers, Dr. Charles B. Campbell and Dr. Fred B.
